UNION RENEWS COURT FIGHT ON SCALISE 'GRAB'

Dictatorship Bared in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 18 [Special].—Hearing will be resumed in Superior court here today of a suit which is expected to determine whether George Scalise, a former undertaker who served four and a half years in prison for white slavery, can depose local officers of the Building Service Employés' International union and control the union's treasury.

The suit is an injunction action brought by Charles Hardy Sr., Charles Hardy Jr., and George Hardy, officials of local No. 87 of the San Francisco union. They are fighting against their ouster by Scalise, who is president of the international union, and against trial by the international union's executive board on charges of irregularities.

[Chicago union leaders said the case has great significance inasmuch as Scalise has taken over one Chicago union and is trying to take over several others.]

Dictatorship Is Revealed.

The hearing, which opened Wednesday before Judge I. M. Golden, has revealed:

1. That the Hardys believe Scalise has made such tools of the union's executive board [three of them Chicagoans], that they will be unable to obtain a fair trial before it.

2. That a Chicago union leader, who is vice president of Scalise's international, has no idea what becomes of the $300,000 annual income which the international union collects from its members.

3. That a Chicago woman, who is sole trustee of the international union, has not seen its books for two years.

Revives Former Tactics.

In contesting their ouster, the Hardys charged Scalise was resorting to the same tactics by which he gained ascendancy in building service unions in New York and Chicago.

Scalise, who is 44 years old, was an undertaker in Brooklyn. He became affiliated with the Chauffeurs' and Garage Helpers' union there, and in 1933 became an organizer in the building service union of which Jerry Horan of Chicago was international president.

Scalise moved up to the fifth vice presidency of the building service union, and became president upon Horan's death in 1937. He receives a salary of $20,000 a year and has "automatic access" to funds of the union.

Scalise last year gained control of the Elevator Operators' union in Chicago. To do so he filed a court petition seeking the ouster of Matt Taylor, president of the Chicago local.

Audit in Slain Man's Pocket.

Taylor fought the suit, and a month later Louis Schiavone, with a copy of the union's audit in his pocket, was found shot to death. Taylor then dropped his fight, and Scalise took over.

The Hardys charged that the international union's executive board, which would try them on charges of irregularities, is under the complete domination of Scalise [they gave him a warm indorsement recently] and in the trial would carry out his orders to take over the San Francisco local and its 2,000 members.

No Check on Disbursements.

William McFetridge, president of the Chicago local of the Flat Janitors' union and first vice president of the International Building Service union, was asked in court here:

"Do you have any idea what becomes of the $25,000 a month which the international receives from its 70,000 members?" "No," replied McFetridge. "I don't."

Elizabeth Brady of Chicago, who is trustee of the international union, testified that a private auditor is employed to examine the books of the international union and that she had not seen them for two years. Thomas J. Burke of Chicago, third international vice president, a member of Scalise's board, testified he would give the Hardys a fair trial.

At the conclusion of last week's hearing, Judge Golden said no provision existed in the union's laws which gave Scalise power to take over the local's assets. "The court is concerned," said Judge Golden "with the charge that the executive board is so corrupt, prejudiced, and partisan that it will not give the Hardys a fair trial."

NEW DEAL IS HIT AS FAILURE OF 7 YEARS STANDING

First Big Gun Fired in Campaign.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—In a 33,000 word document depicting the New Deal as a failure and outlining a program for recovery of prosperity the Republican party today fired its first big gun in its campaign to regain control of the national government.

The document is the report of the Republican program committee, prepared after two years of study by a committee of 200 under the chairmanship of Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin. The report, made public by the Republican national committee, will be submitted to the resolutions committee of the Republican national convention next June as material for formulation of the Republican platform.

Recommendations Are Listed.

The principal recommendations of the program committee follow:

1. A 20 per cent reduction in government spending with the aim of balancing the budget in 1942.

2. Repeal of the emergency monetary powers of the President and creation of a monetary and banking commission to devise measures to restore stability and assurance to our monetary system.

3. Elimination of all tax exemptions of future issues of federal, state and municipal securities; some reduction of individual surtax rates in the higher brackets; repeal of the capital stock and excess profits tax; abolition of the normal tax on dividends.

4. A farm program that will make possible: [1] A "parity" between the prices of what the farmer sells and the prices of what the farmer buys that will bring about the greatest possible interchange of goods and services between city and farm; [2] an expansion of the farmer's market instead of a reduction of his output; [3] selective tariff adjustments to protect the farmer's home market and promote exports; [4] expansion of industrial use of farm products; [5] encouragement of coöperative marketing; [6] rational adjustment of transportation costs; [7] retirement by lease of marginal and submarginal lands; [8] reorganization of the soil conservation service in the interest of a more efficient soil conservation program; [9] a transition policy of farm subsidies until the whole national program results in a balanced recovery.

5. Protective instead of the present restrictive regulation of business and of the issuance of and trading in securities.

6. Amendment of the national labor relations act: [1] To secure equality of treatment to all parties; [2] to insure impartial administration; [3] to prevent governmental favoritism in disputes between employés and employers; [4] to permit employers as well as employés to initiate proceedings; [5] to protect instead of limit civil liberties; [6] to penalize unfair practices.

7. Determination of wages and hours by collective bargaining between freely chosen representatives of labor and management.

8. Realistic negotiation of trade agreements thru which genuine reciprocity may be realized, such agreements to be subject to approval by concurrent resolution of both houses of congress.

9. Strengthening our national defense sufficiently to protect the western hemisphere from aggression.

10. Adequate relief for all in need, with the federal government bearing a just share of the cost thru grants in aid to state and local governments under a bipartisan administration.

11. Realistic improvement of the administration of social security and the extension of its benefits to farm laborers and domestic servants. Retention of the present maximum of $40 a month for old age assistance.

12. A national health program carried out thru coöperation of the government, medical profession, and voluntary social groups.

Analysis of Policies.

The report is a comprehensive and searching, yet withal a temperate, analysis of New Deal policies. In the report the Republican committee at-

Land 2 Planes on a Mountain to Save a Life

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb. 18 (AP).—The far north heard with amazement tonight accounts of the spectacular feats of flying performed by two pilots who rescued Capt. Benton W. Davis yesterday from a snow-covered mountainside where his plane had crashed.

Davis is in a hospital here. He suffered fractured vertebrae, kidney injuries, and frozen feet in the crash, which happened on Friday while he was en route from Anchorage to Valdez, Alaska, about 75 miles north of Cordova, in a Civil Aeronautics authority plane.

Land on 75 Foot Space.

A widespread aerial search was begun as soon as Davis was reported missing and Kenneth Neese, one of the searchers, sighted the wrecked plane late yesterday. Neese was flying a large craft that he was unable to land at the scene and so he summoned two small ships.

Gren Collins, flying agent for the Alaska game commission, arrived first in his tiny Taylor Cub plane, flew over the wreck once, and set his ship down in an open space only 75 feet long.

The moment the plane touched the snow Collins headed it up the precipitous mountain. Almost before it came to rest Collins and a companion, Clarence Rhose, leaped out and blocked the plane to keep it from sliding down the mountain.

Second Plane Comes Down.

By that time Dick Miller, Anchorage flying instructor, was overhead in his small Aeronca ship. He landed at once near Collins' plane.

Their planes firmly secured, Collins, Miller, and Rhose climbed half a mile to the wreckage of Davis plane and carried Davis back to Collins' craft.

Then came the takeoff. Collins headed his ship down the steep mountain, gunned his motor as the plane swayed thru knee-deep snow, and finally lifted it, much as a ski jumper might take off. Miller took off similarly.

Declares Japan Has Made Final Offer to U. S. on Pact

TOKIO, Feb. 19—Monday—(AP).—Japan has made her "final offer" in an attempt to remedy the nontreaty status of trade with the United States, and "the situation now depends upon the future attitude of the United States government," Yakichiro Suma, the foreign office spokesman, said today.

SILVER GOBLET GIVEN TO STEPHEN DECATUR FOUND IN PAWNSHOP

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 (AP).—A silver goblet awarded to Stephen Decatur, naval hero of the war of 1812, has turned up here in a pawnshop where it was left as security for a 50 cent loan.

Detectives making a routine check of pawnshops found the cup yesterday. It is inscribed: "By the citizens of Philadelphia to their townsman, Commodore Stephen Decatur. Esteemed for his virtue, honored for his valour."

A man named Mr. Johnson had pawned the cup and given what police discovered was a fictitious address. They had no record of the goblet's having been stolen.

Of All Vacation Spots, He Picks the City Dump!

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 18 (AP).—There are hundreds of pretty places Harry Converse of Pipestone, Minn., could have gone on his winter vacation. But he picked Oklahoma City's dump.

The 64 year old sportsman kills crows as a hobby. The black pests are plentiful at the dump.

"I hate crows," he explained between shots. "Statistics prove that 64 per cent of our wild duck eggs are destroyed yearly by crows. I guess my two weeks' stay will cost me $250, but it's worth it."

Press in Rome Pours Ridicule on U. S. Envoys

ROME, Feb. 8.—President Roosevelt's appointment of Myron C. Taylor as his personal representative to the Vatican was used today by the Popolo di Roma to ridicule American diplomatic representatives. They are the object of "merry contempt" by the people, says the paper, and distinguish themselves for their lack of culture and manners, as well as for the diplomatic "boners" they "invariably" make in the course of their duties.

Calls Envoys Greengrocers.

That such an attack on American diplomatic representatives was permitted to appear in one of Italy's most important dailies on the eve of the arrival of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and Taylor in Rome surprised diplomatic circles here.

Americans pay no attention to the inexperience of their representatives, the Popolo di Roma states, and "as soon as an embassy post is vacant, they fill it with the first enriched greengrocer they happen to come across, provided he has given a conspicuous contribution to the President."

"The greengrocer," it continues, "takes the job of ambassador, pulls one boner after another, which are passed off as an expression of original personality or of Americanism, and when he is about to learn his trade, he is recalled home because the President has finished his term and the successor has other greengrocer friends to reward."

Two Cited as Examples.

The Popolo di Roma cites as an example Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to England, who "used to sell peas and newspapers," and William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France. It claims Bullitt gave a reception at the American embassy in Paris in honor of American navy cadets and was so tactless as to specify on the invitations issued to the girls of Paris' high society that they should come unchaperoned by their mothers.

In relating this, the newspaper sarcastically remarked:

"Let us hope Taylor will not get the idea of organizing similar receptions in honor—for example—of the sacred college of cardinals.

The paper says Taylor's only diplomatic experience was at the Evian, France, refugee conference.

Briton's Diary Tells of Life on Prison Vessel

LONDON, Feb. 18.—A sketchy account of the wanderings of the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, which the Germans finally scuttled off Uruguay, and the German prison ship Altmark was given today when the diary of a 23 year old seaman, George Johnston, was published.

[Other news of Great Britain's protest to Norway on its failure to discover the British prisoners on the Altmark, the German attitude, and the silence of the Altmark's crew, with a map and picture of fjords will be found on pages 2 and 3.]

Johnston was a member of the crew of the Newton Beach, which left Capetown last Sept. 27 and was taken over by the Graf Spee on Oct. 5.

Johnston's log reported that the German raider caught up with the steamship Ashlea on Oct. 8, the date on which both the Newton Beach and the Ashlea were sunk after their crews had been taken aboard the Graf Spee. Johnston's log continues:

"The Huntsman was captured Oct. 10 and sunk Oct. 17. The crew was put aboard the German tanker Altmark. The Newton Beach and Ashlea crews were put aboard the Altmark Oct. 18. There was a total of 153 prisoners from the three ships.

Ship Changed Its Name.

"The Altmark changed its course to undergo Norwegian registration as the Sogne.

"Oct. 23—The Trevanion was shelled and sunk by the Graf Spee.

"Oct. 28—The crew of the Trevanion was transferred to the Altmark. The total of prisoners now was 186.

"Oct. 28—The Graf Spee left for some fresh hunting ground and arrived back Nov. 26. Captains, chief engineers, second engineers, chief officers, second officers, four operators, two second stewards—26 men in all—were put aboard the Graf Spee.

"Nov. 28—The Altmark leaves the Graf Spee for an unknown port, with the third mate in charge.

"Dec. 1—The Doric Star was sunk.

"Dec. 3—The Taiora was torpedoed. Five men were hurt. The crew, except for the captain and mate, were put aboard the Altmark. The number of the crew of the Doric Star and the Taiora were 83 and 85.

"The Altmark now changed its name from Sogne to Chiguita. It also was painted gray thruout.

Graf Spee Chased by British.

"The Graf Spee was chased by the [British cruisers] Achilles, Ajax, and Exeter [no date is given] and believed by the prisoners on the Altmark all to have been sunk in turn.

"The Altmark steamed four days southward. Good God, how much longer?

"Jan. 22—Steaming northerly. Maybe Germany bound.

"Jan. 31—Making for Rome now.

"Feb. 14—Sighted land. May be Norwegian. Entered port but didn't go alongside. All prisoners tried to get out but the Germans put down two water hoses on us.

"Feb. 15—Surrounded by Norwegian destroyers and a sloop. Prisoners tried to make another break to attract attention but were repelled again. A British warship chased the ship up a creek. A destroyer comes in. The Cossack [British destroyer] boarded the ship and took us all aboard. One or two Germans were shot."

Johnston must have been guessing when he said "one or two Germans were shot" because today the count shows that seven members of the Altmark's crew died.

To All Requests: "No."

Johnston also produced a statement made to the British prisoners by the Altmark's captain. He said the notice posted by the captain read:

"In Amsterdam papers and eyewitnesses give a dramatic account of how German prisoners are being treated in Africa. In North Rhodesia and South Rhodesia, Germans have been put in native huts used in peacetime for native prisoners.

"They haven't been given mattresses to lie on, and 26,000 of them have been placed in concentration camps. Some are children, being only a few months old.

"Because of this, any request by the British prisoners on this ship, colored or white, will definitely be turned down."

CAPTURE THREE TOWNS ON COAST CLOSE TO VIIPURI

Fourth Village Taken in Central Sector.

MOSCOW, Feb. 19, Monday (AP).—The Russian army, claiming the capture of a town and two railway stations on the Gulf of Finland, today indicated it had cut off the fort of Koivisto, the western anchor of Finland's Mannerheim line, from the main section of the Finnish defenses on the Karelian isthmus.

[The loss of the fort at Koivisto would be a severe blow to the Finns. Its guns, arranged to fire either out of the Gulf of Finland or inland, have struck telling blows upon the Red army during the heavy fighting on the isthmus.]

The Red army communique said Russian troops yesterday occupied the station of Somme, the town of Johannes, and the station of Maksalahti on the coastal railway, reaching the western coast of the Gulf of Finland north of Bjorke [Koivisto] island.

Six Miles from Viipuri.

Somme is about six miles south of Viipuri, Finland's second largest city and objective of the Russians' drive. Somme, Johannes, and Maksalahti all are north of Koivisto.

Referring to the central section of the Mannerheim line, the Russian communique said, "Hard pressed by our troops, the enemy keeps retreating. Our troops reached the River Salmenkaita between the lakes of Vuoksi and Jaurapaan and occupied the fortified area and village of Muolaa.

"On Feb. 17 and 18 our troops captured 313 defensive fortifications including 41 artillery forts," the communique said. "From Feb. 11 to 18, inclusive, our troops have captured altogether 475 defensive fortifications, including 92 artillery forts."

21 Planes Downed.

The Russians said 21 Finnish planes were brought down in dogfights.

The latest reports would place the Russian line from Somme on the gulf eastward to Saino, a station on the Viipuri-Leningrad railway which was reported captured on Saturday, and from Saino southeastward to Muolaa.

[The Finns have reported a withdrawal of their troops to new positions on the Mannerheim line, but they have not given details. They have denied that the Russians have taken as many fortifications as they have reported.]

Finns Move in Fresh Troops.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 18 (AP).—Finland threw fresh troops into the path of the Russian juggernaut on the Karelian isthmus today, strengthening a new line of resistance as the Red army attempted to consolidate recent gains and struck again at areas far behind the front with its air armadas.

Shrieking sirens, which sent residents of Helsingfors scurrying to cover twice during the day, signaled a renewal of widespread air raids in which soviet bombers killed at least 40 persons in southern and central Finland yesterday. Twenty-four Russian planes were officially reported downed.

Meanwhile posters appeared in the streets of the capital ordering all men belonging to the second class of the years 1897 to 1919—heretofore exempt—to report immediately for examinations to determine their fitness for military service.

Pressure Lessens.

The Finnish high command's nightly communique reported a lessening of the steady pressure on the west flank of the Mannerheim line, where a bitter Russian offensive, now in its third week, has compelled the defenders to withdraw from some positions in the last few days.

Military men said the withdrawal was part of a strategic plan upon which the Mannerheim line was built. Its deep series of fortifications, machine gun emplacements, and rifle pits are designed to enable a small defending force to exact a heavy toll for every foot of ground yielded and foreign observers believed the Russians were only beginning to reach the main line of resistance.

Further gains, these observers believe, will cost the Red army even more terrific losses in men and equipment than the Finns say it has already suffered.

The necessity of bringing up fresh men, supplies, and munitions was believed by military men to be responsible for the lull in the Russian offensive. The Finnish air force was reported to have bombed with telling effect during the last week the railway line running thru the Leningrad "bottleneck" to the front, thus adding to the Russians' transportation difficulties.

The Finns officially reported destruction of "many" Russian tanks yesterday on the isthmus front, where they said the action was limited mostly to skirmishes and artillery exchanges.

Northeast of Lake Ladoga, however, they said they had repelled Russian assaults, capturing several strong points in counterattacks and killing approximately 570 of the enemy.

Many Killed by Bombs.

The Russians were estimated to have lost 130 additional men in skirmishes near Kuhmo, still farther north on the eastern front.

The number of persons killed in Russian air raids behind the lines yesterday was estimated officially at 40, but unofficial reports from central Finland indicated at least that many fatalities in Iisalmi alone.

Other cities bombed included the west coast port of Pori; Tampere, munitions center north of Helsingfors, and Riihimaki and Kouvola in southern Finland.

Russian war planes were reported to have fired on a passenger train at Grankulla, resort town near Helsingfors, setting one coach on fire, and in at least one instance they were alleged to have machine gunned civilians.

Hit Massed Troops.

The Finns said their own air force had seen "vigorous action" yesterday, fighting "many successful air battles and scattering and driving back enemy bombing formations."

Finnish planes also bombed enemy troop concentrations and columns close to the front as well as in reserve areas, the high command reported.

The communique said the Russians had bombed heavily Finnish positions on the Karelian isthmus, continuing the attacks until late in the evening. Further removal of women and children from congested areas followed yesterday's raids behind the lines.

TELLS HOW REDS ATTACK

MOSCOW, Feb. 18.—Eyewitness accounts of the fighting in Finland published in today's army newspaper, Red Star, disclosed the method of soviet attack on Finnish blockhouses.

One writer reported that a "hurricane of fire and metal enveloped the enemy defenses. Over the enemy's position burst air bombs as well as shells. The enemy's return fire weakened as gun after gun was silenced, then our infantry advanced, taking advantage of every scrap of cover. They threw grenades and summoned the Finnish survivors to surrender.

"Hard on the heels of the infantry came sappers, dragging heavy sacks of explosive," he went on. "One group, led by a Youth league commander, made its way into a central post, carefully cut the wires and discharged two hidden mines.

Capture White Coats.

"The enemy had fled, leaving behind coats, white robes, automatic pistols, cartridges, grenades, and bottles of benzine with a fuse attachment for use against tanks. At the end of the trench there was a half hidden steel door. Our sappers crept forward and found near the entrance a cask of kerosene as if the enemy had planned an explosive trap but was forced to retreat before it completed preparations.

"Walls of the casemate, a foot thick, were reinforced with concrete and covered with steel shields. The sappers piled explosive around it and set detonators. The fuse was lit, then the men hurried out and lay hidden in a nearby shell crater. With a terrific roar the blockhouse exploded like a volcano, hurling blocks of stone and iron high into the air while the ground shook as in an earthquake. The casemate was a heap of ruins."

Refuse to Surrender.

The writer related that sappers in that manner demolished several evacuated posts, including one of earth and timber, then came to a post where the enemy still was holding out and answered the soviet demand to surrender with machine gun fire.

"The sappers laid their charges under the wall and blew part of the post to pieces," he wrote. "The surviving enemies crept like insects from the ruins."

Reds Claim Important Victory

The large map tells developments in the Finnish-Russian war as reported by Finnish officials. The Russian advance as indicated in the small map (heavy solid line) is based on advices from Moscow. The Reds claim to have cut off the important Finnish fort at Koivisto in their advance toward Viipuri. The depth of the Mannerheim line (broken line) is a matter of conjecture. The area covered by the small map is outlined in black on the large map.

ROOSEVELT OUT IN PACIFIC AFTER TOUR OF CANAL

Destination of Ocean Voyage a Secret.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Feb. 18 (AP).—President Roosevelt made an inspection tour across the heavily fortified Panama Canal Zone today and sailed into the Pacific ocean toward an undisclosed destination.

Broken line marks President's route.

He crossed the isthmus by train after debarking from the cruiser Tuscaloosa at Cristobal and reboarded his ship, which had passed thru the locks, on the Pacific side.

With the President aboard, the Tuscaloosa was believed heading for Pearl or Cocos Island, but it was announced that his destination would not be revealed until tomorrow.

He'll Meet Panama's President.

The President expects to confer with President Augusto S. Boyd of Panama on his return after fishing in the Pacific.

[President Boyd was chairman of the recent Pan-American conference which proposed the 300 mile neutrality zone off the American coasts to safeguard the western hemisphere from involvement in the European war. Since then he has been the spokesman for the so-called declaration of Panama, sending and receiving all communications with the belligerent nations regarding neutrality zone enforcement.]

Two Destroyers Go Along.

The destroyers Lang and Jouett, which have accompanied the Tuscaloosa since it left Florida with the President, followed the cruiser into the Pacific.

Escorted by navy flying boats and army bombers, the President's ship reached Cristobal on the Atlantic ocean at 7 a.m. Chicago time and Mr. Roosevelt debarked an hour later. A 21 gun salute greeted him as the Tuscaloosa passed Fort De Lesseps. He was welcomed to the town of Gatun by a large crowd that had flocked in from the Canal Zone.

Confers with Zone Chiefs.

The President began his survey of the zone's defenses after a conference with navy, army, and civilian officials aboard the Tuscaloosa in Gatun locks.

Among those who conferred with the President aboard the Tuscaloosa were Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis, commanding general of the Canal Zone; Gen. Joseph Cummins, second in command of the Panama mobile defense force; Gov. Clarence S. Ridley, Admiral Frank Sadler, commandant of the 15th naval district; Ambassador William Dawson, Col. Jacob Devers, chief of staff of the Panama canal department, and Maj. Carl Rohsenberger, aid to Gen. Van Voorhis.

After inspecting the Gatun locks Mr. Roosevelt went on a three hour trip by auto to Fort Davis, Fort Randolph, the Coco Solo submarine and naval air base, and the army's France field. Salutes and full honors marked his arrival at each place.

Views Secret Work.

The President saw part of the secret work in progress on the canal and inspected army forces, including reenforcements he caused to be sent here after the European war began.

Visible during the President's ride were a squadron of seven destroyers newly stationed at Coco Solo, the augmented air fleet which operates in the daily sea patrol, and bombing planes, including a dozen new ones.

After returning to Gatun the President boarded the train for the trip across the isthmus. A crowd gave him a hearty farewell as he sat on the rear platform with Gov. Ridley and returned all salutes with waves and smiles.

N. Y. Woman Tells How She Escaped Tiger's Claws

CALCUTTA, Feb. 18 (AP).—Mrs. Lawrence Copley Thaw of New York, who is touring India in a supertrailer with her husband, related today how she recently escaped death in a tiger's attack in the Assam jungles. Mrs. Thaw said the elephant on which she was riding bolted when a tiger suddenly sprang at it from a thicket. Her gun jammed and she almost lost her seat. The mahout grabbed her as she was slipping from the fleeing elephant's back and held her until they reached safety, she said.

BRITISH ASK WHY NORWAY DID NOT FIND PRISONERS

Rescued Seamen Hailed by Home Towns.

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—The British foreign office today demanded an explanation of why a Norwegian search of the German prison ship Altmark, before she was boarded by a British naval force, had failed to reveal the presence of more than 300 British seamen.

Lord Halifax.

Foreign Minister Lord Halifax, in a statement handed to the Norwegian minister, complained that "the Norwegian government had in this matter failed in their duty as a neutral."

The British protest countered a Norwegian protest against the British navy's action in raiding the Altmark and freeing the long captive British seamen.

Asks Four Questions.

Lord Halifax was said to have asked Norwegian Minister Erik Colban:

1. "In view of the known character of the Altmark," whether she was searched and, if so, what was found?

2. If the Norwegian authorities had found prisoners aboard, what action would they have taken?

3. Precisely why did Norway apparently consider the Altmark as an innocent merchantman when she had been used as a prison ship for some time?

4. If she were considered a merchantman, why were Norwegian warships with her?

The British, jubilant over the spectacular release of the Altmark's prisoners, gave those of them able to return to their homes a hero's welcome. In Liverpool, where several lived, the seamen were escorted to their bunting draped homes by cheering throngs.

Sing Sea Songs.

In the station awaiting their arrival, the crowd sang sea chanties and when the train pulled in roared this welcome: "There'll always be an England."

Three hundred and fourteen of the seamen were admitted to two Edinburgh hospitals yesterday after the landing at Leith and about half of them were released later. They were said to be in "pretty fair shape," altho some complained of stomach trouble. One of the 70 Indians among them was said to have leprosy.

Britain's complaint to Norway, lodged yesterday but only disclosed today, added that the British government felt justified in pressing for the Norwegian internment of the Altmark, boarded Friday night in the shelter of Josing fjord [Gjessingfjord], near Stavanger, by officials and men of the destroyer Cossack.

Most Careful Search.

A communique tonight gave the text of the note to Norway, which explained the British view that when the Altmark entered Bergen last week it was "incumbent" upon Norwegian authorities to "subject her to a most careful search."

The note asked "full particulars" as to how this search was conducted, and said that reports received in London indicated that the examination had been "perfunctory."

The British complaint of "inaction" by the Norwegian government was justified, the note added, because had the Norwegians discovered the prisoners they would "either have released them or at any rate held them pending a full examination."

"Completely Justified."

During week-end discussions with the Norwegian authorities in London, the government stressed its point of view that it was "completely justified in taking the law into its own hands," according to a diplomatic source close to the government.

The official attitude was said to be that Britain had acted "like a policeman in entering a house without a warrant when he knows a crime is being committed."

According to other informed sources, the government's viewpoint was that neither stress of weather nor shortage of provisions—two conditions under which a belligerent may enter and leave a neutral harbor with prisoners—had been claimed by Norway or Germany as an excuse for the Altmark taking refuge in the fjord.

Britain's decision to act, it was said, also was justified by the refusal of the commanding officer of the Norwegian warship Kjell to coöperate by returning the Altmark to Bergen under British-Norwegian escort "so that the matter might be settled in accordance with international law."

The Kjell was accompanying the Altmark thru Norwegian waters.

Germany Seethes with Anger; Vows to Avenge Altmark Raid

BERLIN, Feb. 18 (AP).—Burning with indignation, German officials today promised to settle scores with England over the Altmark incident. They declared Britain's assault on the prison ship in Norwegian waters had united Germany as no other occurrence of the war.

The world war slogan "Gott strafe England," was repeated by German spokesmen who applied such epithets as "criminals" and "law breakers" to the British government for ordering the destroyer Cossack to seize more than 300 British prisoners from the Altmark in neutral waters.

One authorized spokesman declared "only an insolently dumb Englishman could have invented" the theory, advanced by Britain, that a ship with war prisoners must be interned if it ventures in the waters of a neutral nation.

"Very Opposite Principle."

"England herself in practice has again and again shown she applies the very opposite principle," he said, contrasting Britain's behavior with Germany's in the City of Flint case in which he said the reich "pursued diplomatic and legal means."

Repeating assertions that the Altmark was unarmed, he said "the Altmark case further shows what may be expected by neutrals within reach of British naval forces."

[The British contended the Altmark had two pom-poms (antiaircraft guns) and four machine guns.]

"Britain surely will create other incidents," the spokesmen said, "All neutrals should be alive to the fact England has no respect whatever for the law of nations or for the comity of peoples when her interests are affected. The very foundations on which the peaceful living together of nations and peoples rests are shaken."

Anti-British Campaign Grows.

The campaign to arouse German public opinion against the British grew in intensity. An appeal was made by radio to German merchant seamen in which it was declared that "unarmed, defenseless Germans were shot down by the English in a bestial manner.

"This newest heroic act of the British navy stamps the English sailors as pirates and places them outside the pale of all decent seamen. The world one day will thank Germany that she has freed it from English piracy."

As for the German controversy with Norway over the happening, authorized sources said this was a matter for the most careful study, fact-finding, and negotiation.

No official Norwegian reply has been made to the German protest charging Norway with inadequate protection of the Altmark and demanding reparation. The Oslo government, however, sent an official communication virtually repeating the official version of the incident as released to the Norwegian press yesterday.

German authorities pointed especially to Norway's "significant observation" to the effect that she had to bow to Britain's superior force.

ITALIANS OF FRANCE ENROLL 10,000 MEN TO FIGHT FOR FINNS

PARIS, Feb. 18 (AP).—Ten thousand Italian residents of France belonging to the Garibaldian society were reported today to be preparing to leave for active duty with Finnish forces fighting against invading soviet Russian troops.

They will be commanded by Camillo Marabini, president of the Garibaldian survivors who fought in the Argonne during the world war. Marabini said his group had offered its services to France, but now had decided to go to the aid of Finland.

He added that a world-wide appeal for recruits among Italians was being made to prevent "a free and proud but weak people from being destroyed by an adversary 40 times stronger."

Americans in Buenos Aires Collect Money for Finns

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 18 (AP).—The American community of Buenos Aires began collecting funds today to aid Finland. The money raised by the American club and other organizations will be used to purchase food and other supplies here. The purchases will be sent to the American relief committee headed by Former President Hoover.

FORMER DETROIT WOMAN TELLS OF RAIDS ON VIIPURI

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 18 (AP).—A former Detroit woman who came to Finland to study music but married a Finnish officer and found herself in the midst of a war, arrived here today from Viipuri—one of residents finally forced to leave the shelled and bombed seaport because of nearness of the fighting. She is Mrs. Harri Virjo, formerly Miss Helen Kyro.

She reported that during recent Russian air raids on Viipuri, bombs on three occasions hit the building in the cellar of which she was taking shelter.

"Three Russian planes were shot down right over the center of the city on Friday," she said. "A propeller and motor of one bomber fell into the yard of the house I lived in."

But bad as the bombings have been, she asserted they worried Viipuri's residents less than the long range shelling carried on intermittently for several weeks.

"We never had alarms to warn us when these 10 inch shells were coming," she explained.

CREW OF PRISON SHIP KEPT MUM ON BATTLE STORY

Crowds at Fjord See Marks of Clash.

JOSING FJORD, Norway, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Nazi swastika flew at half mast today on the prison ship Altmark as hundreds of sightseers lined the shore, so close to the grounded vessel that they could see the blood of dead and wounded German sailors staining the ice of this peaceful fjord.

The bodies of five of the Germans killed in the hand-to-hand fighting Friday night were aboard the Altmark and five wounded were in the ship's hospital.

[Oslo reports said two of the wounded had died, raising the death toll to seven.]

There were big scars along the starboard side of the Altmark—caused by the British destroyer Cossack when she came alongside and the British boarded the German ship. Three small Norwegian naval ships were guarding the narrow entrance to the fjord, which is five miles long.

British Warship Patrol.

Offshore, just beyond the territorial waters, four British warships cruised thruout the day.

It was difficult for observers to get an exact account of what really happened because those aboard the Norwegian boats and on the Altmark were pledged to silence and the local population was forced to seek shelter when bullets swept the shore.

It seemed certain, however, that the Cossack, by brilliant maneuvering, forced the Altmark into a difficult position in which the German ship had to break her way thru ice between three and four inches thick.

Some witnesses said the Cossack opened fire against the Altmark when she came alongside and that hand grenades and rifles were used by the British when they boarded the German ship. Others said the Germans began the firing.

Only 20 Yards from Shore.

The boarding took place only 20 yards from shore. During the fighting, the residents said, violent shouting from the battling men could be heard. Later, there were hurrahs from the British prisoners when they went aboard the Cossack.

There were many bullet marks on houses along the shore, and the ice also showed marks of the battle. One shore observer said he saw nine men trying to get into a lifeboat and that all fell into the sea and were drowned. Searching parties dragged the fjord without result, however.

Some of the Germans who fled ashore escaped into the interior. One group early this morning came to a farmhouse about eight miles from the shore, exhausted after wandering all night thru the snow. They were sent back to the Altmark.

FJORDS: NATURE'S GIFT TO HUNTED OCEAN VESSELS

Rocky Havens Along Norway's Coast.

Since Great Britain tightened up its naval blockade of Germany, German ships seeking to return to the reich have been steaming along the Norwegian coast prepared to dart like crabs into the nearest holes. There are countless numbers of these holes, or refugee harbors, along Norway's extended coast. They are known as fjords—long tongues of seawater running inland between high, abrupt coast lines.

The fjord bordered coast of Norway.

The greatest of these is the Sogne fjord, on the western coast opposite the Shetland Islands. It runs inland for 100 miles, its precipitous walls in many places less than two miles apart, and with water depths ranging to 4,000 feet. One of the smaller fjords is the Josing fjord [Giessing-fjord], south of Stavanger, on Norway's rounded southern coast, where a British destroyer trapped the German prison ship Altmark last Friday.

A fjord, by its nature, is a dead end. Thus the entrapment of a vessel by an enemy ship is a simple matter.

Appear Near Poles.

Fjords appear almost entirely in the coasts of countries near the poles. There are fjords on the west coast of Alaska and Greenland in the northern hemisphere, and in Patagonia, New Zealand, and Antarctic lands in the southern hemisphere.

There are several theories for the existance of fjords. The simplest of these is that glaciers—huge masses of ice—carved the deep valleys, or fjords, below the level of the sea as they moved over the edge of the land.

Then, according to this theory, the floor of the valley filled with seawater as the glacier melted.

The Water Erosion Theory.

Other geologists think the valleys were formed when water eroded the rock layers along the lines of faults, or cracks thru the rock strata, resulting from earlier upheavals of the earth's crust.

In subsequent disturbances, these geologists believe, the valleys were lowered until their mouths lay below the surface of the ocean. Thus they have been likened to valleys that had drowned in the sea.

Geologic formations similar to the Norwegian fjords have been found in the Alps and in the Rocky mountains, and in Scotland several lochs bear the same characteristics, except that, being above sea level, they are filled with fresh water instead of salt.

PITTMAN DECLARES U. S. RIGHTS CAN BE UPHELD WITHOUT WAR

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19 (AP).—Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, declared tonight that the United States could freely retaliate against any other nation infringing upon American rights without danger of precipitating war. He participated in a radio forum on foreign relations in which Senator Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.] criticized Sumner Wells' visit to Europe, Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach [D., Wash.] urged a strict embargo on trade with Japan and Senator Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.] appealed for public confidence in the state department.

Referring to British interference with American shipping and Japanese actions in China, Pittman said that "it may become necessary for our government to do more than protest."

"If our grounds of protest are sound," he continued, "then retaliation to enforce our rights would be both legal and sound. No sane government today would declare war on the United States. Any declaration of war would simply submit such government to economic destruction and seal its fate as a belligerent. We may have to retaliate, but we know there is no necessity of sending a single American soldier to Europe or Asia."

C. D. OF A. BANS POLITICS.

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Politics and political speakers were barred today from all future meetings of the 2,000 courts comprising the Catholic Daughters of America. The national officers, in semi-annual session here, made the decision and incorporated it in a resolution.

NORWAY STUDIES ALTMARK'S FATE; 2 MORE NAZIS DIE

Was Ship Armed? That's Key to Decision.

OSLO, Norway, Feb. 18 (AP).—The fate of the German prison ship Altmark, her more than 300 prisoners lost to a British boarding party from the destroyer Cossack, tonight appeared to depend on whether she was an armed vessel.

Norway was expected to decide by that criterion whether to intern the Altmark as an armed vessel in war service or allow her to go free as an unarmed commercial ship.

The British charge she was armed with two pom-poms [multibarreled antiaircraft guns] and four machine guns. Germany declared the Altmark was unarmed.

Two More Seamen Die.

So far, Norway has made no independent confirmation of either of these claims. The ship's status was further clouded by unconfirmed reports she flew the German service flag when she called at Bergen last week, thus being exempt from customs examination.

Two more of the Altmark's crew died of wounds inflicted by the British boarding party, raising to seven the number killed. Two others were reported in grave condition.

Possible to Maintain Secrecy.

It was said that if the Altmark claimed customs exemption at Bergen it would have been possible to keep the existence of prisoners secret from Norwegian inspectors boarding her only briefly.

The only official statement to indicate Norway's attitude toward the ship's status was in a speech last night by Foreign Undersecretary Jens Bull, who said foreign commercial vessels, and even warships, have the right to "innocent passage in neutral territorial waters when they submit to certain rules."

"There are no reports that the Altmark acted against these rules," he said.

The fact that Norway in protesting to Britain asked return of the British prisoners was regarded as possible indication Norwegian authorities, in their preliminary judgment at least, regarded the Altmark as a commercial vessel.

Germany's strong protest to Norway, accusing her of failure to provide the Altmark with adequate protection and asking reparation, was being treated with concern.

OUTPOST SAVED FROM THIRD NAZI ATTACK IN 2 DAYS

French Repulse Enemy Near Moselle.

PARIS, Feb. 18 (AP).—German troops today again attempted to pinch off a French outpost in the Moselle river sector near Luxemburg, but the French high command reported the effort failed entirely.

Yesterday two unsuccessful assaults were made on the same post. The Germans prepared for the attacks with strong artillery action, the French said, but fire from the French guns broke up their troop concentrations before the attacks could be carried out.

Shells Halt New Fortifications.

French artillery today shelled German laborers constructing fortifications west of the Vosges mountains and stopped their work.

Tonight's communique of the British-French high command said:

"After a very heavy preparation with trench mortars, the enemy attacked one of our outposts east of the Moselle. He failed entirely. On other parts of the front, patrol activity on either side."

Premier Eduard Daladier conferred with Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, commander in chief of the French and British armies.

Germans Take More Prisoners.

BERLIN, Feb. 18 (AP).—The German high command today, for the second day in succession, reported the capture of numerous prisoners on the western front. It also stated that a British plane had been downed over the North sea.

The communique follows:

"In a shock troop engagement west of Merzig [east of the French-German-Luxemburg border], numerous prisoners were brought in.

"As already specially announced, 32 French, neutral and British ships totaling 128,174 tons were sunk by German sea forces between Feb. 11 and Feb. 17.

"Again yesterday a Messerschmitt [German plane] and a Bristol Blenheim [British plane] fought over the North sea. The British plane was brought down."

Britain Admits Loss of Plane.

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—A royal air force plane failed to return from a scouting flight, the air ministry admitted today. It added that it was assumed the plane was one that a German communique reported had been downed in a North sea engagement.

800 LITHS IN CITY MARK 22D YEAR OF INDEPENDENCE

More than 800 Chicagoans of Lithuanian birth or descent observed the 22d anniversary of Lithuania's independence with a banquet and concert last night in the Morrison hotel.

Povilas Zadeikis, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary from Lithuania, who came to Chicago from Washington, D. C., for the event, was principal speaker. The occasion was the first anniversary celebration to be held since the return of Vilna, Lithuania's historic capitol, from Russia last fall. Symphonic music and dances in Lithuanian costume also were on the program. Another concert was presented in the afternoon in the Chicago Real Estate building, 32 West Randolph street.

Lithuania's independence day was Friday. Her independence was declared in Vilna by the Lithuanian national council on Feb. 16, 1918.

Shot by Bandits

Arthur Gunzenhauser in Alexian Brothers hospital yesterday after he was wounded seriously in holdup of his grocery. Dr. Gaetano Corrao is shown with him.

Arthur Gunzenhauser, 45 years old, was shot twice and seriously wounded yesterday when he resisted two young bandits who escaped with $20 from his grocery at 1050 Dickens avenue. Instead of complying with a demand to surrender his money, Gunzenhauser grappled with the robber who carried the gun. During the scuffle he was shot in one finger and in the neck. The second bullet was deflected by a bone and punctured a lung. Gunzenhauser was taken to Alexian Brothers hospital.

PARAGUAY GETS A DICTATOR—ITS PRESIDENT

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 18 (AP).—President Gen. José Felix Estigarribia made himself virtual dictator of Paraguay today with a formal decree that he was assuming "all political powers" for such time as deemed necessary to secure order, peace, and prosperity for the nation.

He told the country in a broadcast that he was acting with the full approval and coöperation of the army and navy in order to save the republic "from anarchy."

Gen. José Estigarribia.

Members of both chambers of the Paraguayan parliament already had resigned and the president today also approved a new cabinet.

Gen. Estigarribia, 51 year old hero of the Chaco war against Bolivia, later an exile from his country, and then Paraguay's minister to Washington, D. C., was inaugurated president last Aug. 15 for a four year term.

Brewster Company Leases New Fighting Plane Plant

Newark, N. J., Feb. 18 [Special].—The Brewster Aeronautical corporation of New York, which maintains a factory employing 2,000 men in Long Island City, has agreed with Newark to lease the recently constructed municipal hangar at Newark airport for the manufacture of aircraft, it was announced here today by Mayor Meyer C. Ellenstein. The announcement was confirmed by James Work, president of the company. He said the company now had a $22,500,000 backlog of business comprising large orders for single seat fighters for the American navy and Belgian and Finnish air corps and wings and floats for the navy's long range patrol boats.

SEA WAR CLAIMS 4 MORE VESSELS, 3 ARE NEUTRALS'

British Capture Two Nazi Merchantmen.

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—Four ships, two of them Swedish, one British, and one Dutch, were counted today as new war casualties.

But to offset the British loss, it was announced that two German ships, the Morea, 3,000 tons, and the Rostock, 2,542 tons, were captured by British warships and brought to port today.

The vessels were trying to dash home from Spain. Seven officers and 21 men were landed as prisoners.

The Swedish steamers Liana, 1,646 tons, and Osmed, 1,526 tons, and the Netherlands freighter Ameland, 4,537 tons, sank in the North sea today.

Two Die in Lifeboat.

The 3,656 ton British steamer Baron Ailsa went down in the North sea yesterday after an explosion. Her captain, G. R. Logan, and an Arab fireman died in an open boat after being pulled from the water, but 34 other crew members were rescued by a naval trawler which brought them to an east coast port.

The Amelahd struck a mine. Her crew, several of them slightly injured, was picked up by another Netherlands merchantman. The Ameland sank near the position where the Norwegian freighter Kvernaas went down Friday night after an explosion.

Freighter Aground.

Another Netherlands marine casualty was reported in the Cape Verde Islands. The freighter Alkmaar, 6,982 tons, was aground there on the Isle of Fogo, but her crew was said to be in no danger.

The Netherlands steamer Struyvesant was expected to reach the Alkmaar Tuesday to render assistance.

The Norwegian tanker Gallia, en route from Port Arthur, Tex., arrived at Ijmuiden today under her own power. She struck a mine several days ago off the English coast, but no one was injured. She will drydock in Amsterdam.

BERLIN BOYS PELT ICE STATUES OF BRITISH LEADERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Berlin schoolboys amused themselves today by snowballing the life size ice statues of Neville Chamberlain and Winston Churchill until policemen chased them away.

The statues are in Gendarmerie platz in front of the massive state theater where many people gather daily to photograph them. They are on a base shaped like the map of England and are surrounded by the sterns of sinking ships flying the British ensign.

In one of Chamberlain's hands is a black candy box with a white cross painted on it to resemble the Bible. His other hand holds an umbrella. Churchill is depicted in an admiralty uniform [he is Britain's first lord of the admiralty]. A large cigar is in his mouth.

COUPLE DIE IN CAR.

Iron River, Mich., Feb. 18 (AP).—Amorette Van Ostrand, 21 years old, daughter of D. C. Van Ostrand, northern Michigan timberman, and John Holmberg Jr., both missing since last night, were found dead from motor exhaust fumes today in a parked automobile west of here.

BRITISH CENSOR CHOPS STORY BY EX-WAR MINISTER

Parliament Members Assail Gag.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The British government's action in censoring an article by Leslie Hore Belisha, who was dismissed from his office as minister of war by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain on Jan. 5, will be made an issue on the floor of parliament, it was revealed tonight. Two members of parliament announced they will ask why the ex-war chief's article was blue penciled.

The article appeared today in News of the World, under the heading, "Shall We Fight for Finland Now?" The censor cut out 44 lines.

Two Points Omitted.

At two points in the article, just where Hore Belisha appeared to be giving precision to the demand for immediate and substantial armed support for Finland, were inserted the words, "here 24 lines omitted," and "here 20 lines omitted."

This is the first time that a British newspaper indicated specific deletions by the censor. An editorial note prefacing Hore Belisha's piece stated that certain points were cut out "at the request of the government as being contrary to public policy."

Wants to Know Reason.

Hore Belisha refused to comment on the censoring. Lieut. Col. R. Fletcher, Labor member of parliament, however, announced he would raise the question in commons as soon as possible. Fletcher wants to know whether Hore Belisha was gagged because he revealed facts valuable to the enemy or because the opinions expressed conflicted with government policy.

"If Belisha was censored because his views were inconvenient, then we are up against the first principles of totalitarianism," Fletcher said. He will be joined by Geoffrey le M. Mander, a Liberal.

SUGGESTS BRITISH PUT DUKE OF KENT IN CANADIAN POST

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—Speculating on the choice of a successor to the late Lord Tweedsmuir as governor general of Canada, Reynolds News, a London Sunday newspaper, suggested that the duke of Kent is "the first favorite" for the post.

"The governor is a kind of unofficial ambassador to Washington, D. C.," the newspaper said, "and official circles at home believe the appointment of the duke would be welcomed not only at the White House but also among those of the American aristocracy whose views still carry weight in American politics."

[The duke of Kent, youngest brother of King George VI. of Great Britain, was named governor of Australia in October, 1938, and it was expected he would assume the post in 1939. Last September, however, a few days after Britain declared war on Germany, it was announced that the duke had entered the navy and that he would not go to Australia as planned.]

British Ships Collide; One Sinks; Captain, 15 Lost

DURBAN, South Africa, Feb. 18 (AP).—The 4,218 ton British steamer Cheldale sank today shortly after a collision with another British vessel, the 5,583 ton Greystoke Castle. The captain and 15 members of the crew of the Cheldale were missing.

ROCKET SIGNALS CREATE MYSTERY ON DUTCH BORDER

Sent Up from Place Near Ex-Kaiser's Home.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 18 (AP).—A series of mysterious red, green, and yellow rocket signals, sent up in the closely guarded defense areas of the central and eastern Netherlands, are being investigated by the army, the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche said today.

The newspaper declared some of the signals, in most cases relayed "far into a neighboring country," have been observed in the vicinity of Doorn, residence of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany.

Military authorities offered a reward for information leading to the arrest of responsible persons.

Seek Mysterious Car.

After the signals had been seen several nights ago near Doorn, the newspaper said, the military guarding Netherlands' neutrality received a tip to be on the alert for an automobile carrying three men and a woman.

Subsequently, a patrol on routine duty in the neighborhood had to fire a shot to halt a speeding car. Three men in uniforms of the Netherlands army stepped out and praised the patrol members for their vigilance. They were allowed to proceed with their woman companion.

Ignores Warning Shot.

The supposition is that the three were uniformed illegally, according to the newspaper for, later the same night, the same car sped past a patrol near Utrecht, ignoring a shot fired at it.

A comparison of license numbers identified the automobile as being the same one in both cases, the newspaper said, but the numbers were no clew because they proved to be false.

Form Unit to Raise Funds for Finland in This Country

New York, Feb. 18 [Special].—Formation of a Scandinavian-American division of Fighting Funds for Finland, Inc., was announced today by national headquarters of the organization. It said the division includes nationally recognized leaders of 6 million persons of Scandinavian descent in this country.

Bicycles Instead of Skis; Finns' Tactics for Summer

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 18 (AP).—Looking toward summer warfare a few months hence, the Finnish army is mobilizing bicycles to replace skis. The civil guard today appealed to civilians to contribute every bicycle that can be spared. Finland's topography, with few main roads but many paths thru fields and forests, is well suited to bicycling. Finnish bicyclers, familiar with the many byways, hope they will have the same advantage over the Russians that they have had on skis.

ASSERTS SECRET ALLIANCE PERILS AMERICA'S PEACE

Tinkham Hits Joint Use of Phoenix Islands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The United States has made a secret alliance with Great Britain in the Pacific which threatens to involve this nation in the Asiatic war, representative George Holden Tinkham [R., Mass.], veteran member of the house foreign affairs committee, charged today.

The agreement relates to the Canton and Enderbury islands of the Phoenix group, located 1,900 miles southwest of Hawaii and 1,300 miles southeast of the Japanese mandated islands in the far Pacific, Tinkham said.

Exercise Joint Control.

The British government took formal and legal possession of these islands in March, 1937. A year later, after secret correspondence between the state department and Great Britain, the United States took over the islands, asserting ownership. In April, 1939, an agreement was announced which declared that the two governments had taken over joint control of the islands for civil aviation.

"The American people," Tinkham declared, "will be astonished and shocked to learn that this agreement, secretly negotiated, has implications amounting to a political alliance of far reaching and dangerous consequences.

"The agreement, which has the force and effect of a treaty and by its terms is to endure for 50 years, rests upon diplomatic interchanges between the two governments which have never been made public and which the state department now refuses to disclose to members of congress.

Collusion Is Charged.

"The facts evidence that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull have been guilty of collusive action in entering into this alliance with Great Britain and that secret diplomacy has dominated the situation from start to finish."

The main vice of the agreement between the two countries is a provision whereby they may secretly agree to use the islands for any other purpose than civil aviation, Tinkham said.

"If an enemy of Great Britain should attack these islands, the United States, having 'joint control' over them, would have to join Great Britain in their defense, thereby becoming involved in war," he declared. "Such an arrangement constitutes not only a political alliance but, what is more, a military alliance, inasmuch as even the armament of the islands could be agreed upon secretly by the two governments.

"The United States has no such arrangement with any other nation.

"The United States is being deliberately entangled in Asia for British political purposes. British economic interests in Asia are 10 times greater than those of the United States.

Called Policy of Dictators.

"This alliance was closely followed by our notice to Japan of termination of treaty relations, a move manifestly in accord with British policy in the far east. Now we have threats of embargoes by the United States of trade with Japan and threats by Japan of retaliation, all of which are the seeds of war.

"The making of secret commitments which cannot be disclosed to the people or to officials of the government is the policy of dictators. President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull make a fateful mistake if they believe that when loyal Americans, not hyphenated Americans who put British interests ahead of American interests, obtain control of this government there will not be an investigation of this political alliance, and of other political commitments made in the interest of Great Britain."

Tinkham made public a letter he had written to the state department asking that he be permitted to examine the exchange of communications with Great Britain. He was informed in reply that the notes could not be made available for inspection "without the consent of the British government."

Elopers Found

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Jean Owen Butler and husband, Gerald Butler, in Miami, Fla., apartment yesterday.

Jean Owen, attractive young college girl, who disappeared from her Winnetka home a month and a half ago, was found last night in Miami, Fla. There wasn't anything mysterious about her disappearance, she said. She had eloped. Her husband, Gerald Valentine Butler, grinningly nodded confirmation. Each is 19 years old.

The two were last seen New Year's eve, after a round of parties, at the home of her father, Ira J. Owen, a consulting engineer, at 349 Hawthorne lane, Winnetka. Jean, student at Rockford college, and Gerald, a Denver salesman, but former Winnetka resident, were childhood friends. Following their flight, Mr. Owen said he believed that they had eloped.

The young bride said they were married in Crown Point, Ind., and that they hitch-hiked to Florida. She is now earning $5 a week in a tailor shop, and he's earning $22.50 a week as a truck driver. Mr. Owen is now on his way to Miami.

FILM ON BOGUS MONEY SEEN BY 40,000 STUDENTS

The motion picture film, "Know Your Money," which is being used by the United States secret service in an effort to obtain public aid against counterfeiting, was shown to 40,000 high school students last week, Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, Chicago secret service chief, announced last night.

It is planned to exhibit the picture before 176,000 public high school students and 53,000 in parochial high schools. It already has been shown before 6,168 policemen. Before the local campaign is finished the film will have been shown before hundreds of civic groups, clubs, merchants' associations, and banking organizations.

Four copies of the picture are being used in Chicago, each with a government lecturer, thus making it possible to reach between 3,000 and 7,000 persons a day. The picture reveals how counterfeiters work, points out flaws in bogus bills, and describes ways to detect them.

BOGUS MONEY PRESS IS SEIZED IN RAID ON FLAT

Secret service agents raided a flat at 5446 Michigan avenue yesterday and seized a press and ink used in counterfeiting $10 bills.

The flat was that of Jack Macon, alias Jackson, 45 years old, colored. He was seized Saturday night in St. Louis, Mo., with two other Negroes, James Williams, 4530 South Park way, and Charles Foster, 5023 Forrestville avenue. Williams was shot and wounded by secret service agents.

Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, head of the secret service in Chicago, said the three had 74 bogus bills in their possession. Police and federal agents will drag the lake off Oakwood avenue today for plates used in the counterfeiting. Callaghan said Macon threw the plates into the lake.

JAPS INVADE NEW AREA IN CHINA; LAND NEAR AMOY

HONGKONG, Feb. 18 (AP).—Japanese forces which landed near Amoy were reported today to be sweeping into the southeast province of Fukien, hitherto immune from invasion. Japanese dispatches said the troops landed Saturday and that they encountered little resistance. Meanwhile, Chinese reports from Chungking said Japanese warplanes bombed the French operated Hanoi-Kunming railroad yesterday, but said damage was slight.

22 Feared Lost in Sinking of Spanish Ship; 7 Saved

LA CORUNA, Spain, Feb. 18 (AP).—Seven crewmen were rescued and 22 others were believed lost when the 2,140 ton Spanish steamer Banderas sank off shore here early today. The seven were picked up by a fishing boat.

INQUEST PLANNED TODAY IN DEATH.

An inquest will be held today to determine whether injuries caused the cerebral hemorrhage which resulted in the death of Michael Kross, 50 years old, 1340 Thomas street, in county hospital yesterday.

Marshall Field & Company
presents here each day observations intended to be of value to those it seeks to serve.

CHARLIE'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

By CALEB

JUST fifty years ago today, Charlie Pritzlaff took his station at what was then Field's only doorway in the old five-story Singer Building. Neighbor on the firm's right was Wanamaker & Brown, men's furnishings; to the right of that, Burley & Company's china and crockery establishment; and on their right, at State and Randolph, the famous towered Central Music Hall, where Dr. Swing used to preach, and where H. Gordon Selfridge was married.

"Charlie," who for five years previously had been a private coachman to prominent Chicagoans, was then 25. For two years in succession, he and his fleet grays had won blue-ribbon honors at the annual Horse Show in Exhibition Hall (where the Art Institute now stands); and happening to meet Mr. Selfridge there, "Charlie" asked him for a job driving one of Field's delivery wagons. He was sent to the barns superintendent, who said, "Yes, at our first opportunity;" but when finally summoned, it had been decided to capitalize "Charlie's" acquaintance with Chicago social circles, and he was made a Field doorman. . . .

Of Marshall Field and his wife, of the Field children, and of numerous executives and numberless patrons familiar to him over five decades, he reminisces with affectionate pride. His business day began at 7; and his first duties were sweeping the sidewalk and lowering the awnings; not forgetting to sand the slippery cobblestones of the street, lest the horses of approaching patrons slip and stumble. The store opened at 8, and from then on all "Charlie's" hours were busy ones. Assisting shoppers to alight at the stepping-block; directing customers thither and yon; blowing his whistle for handsomely liveried coachmen to pull in; directing traffic that often stretched in double rows to Michigan Avenue—every minute was spent adding to goodwill contacts and gracious courtesies.

Since "Charlie" assumed his post in those Victorian 90's, a whole world has changed before men's eyes. But through generation after generation, he has greeted comers of every rank—emerging, first, from stately equipages; then from ponderous early limousines; and finally, from businesslike motors, briskly chauffeured, always in a hurry.

Everywhere, alteration—save in people themselves, and in the Field standards of service! To these, 1940 finds "Charlie," on duty at our Washington Street entrance near Wabash, as devoted as he was in 1890; and it is a privilege, in saluting him here, to commemorate a service record as commendable for fine performance as it is memorable for long duration.

ALL BERLIN DIGS, BUT SNOWDRIFTS ARE ONLY DENTED

Impossible to See Across the Main Street.

BERLIN, Feb. 18 (AP).—Germany's capital engaged in one great community effort today to shovel and chop itself free of snow and ice. Thousands of men, women, and children labored shoulder to shoulder with regular crews of street cleaners in clearing away the snow piles heaped up by the most severe winter in a century.

Every apartment house in Berlin has a tenant council, consisting of the head of each family, and these councils in thousands of cases decreed that it was high time for a general drive against the cluttered streets. In a festive mood the work started.

Can't See Across Street.

An idea of what week after week of heavy snow has done to the city could be gained on fashionable Unter den Linden's promenades. It is impossible to stand on one side of the thorofare and see cars parked on the other, so high is the snow piled at the curbs.

The results of the holiday efforts were said to have been creditable when work tapered off in the afternoon, but only dents rather than holes were made in the masses of snow.

Storms Kill Seven in Spain.

MADRID, Feb. 18 (AP).—Seven persons lost their lives today in accidents caused by storms and heavy rains sweeping Spain. A landslide due to rain derailed a train between Castro Urdiales and Translavina, killing one child and injuring five other passengers.

Six miles off Guetaria, near San Sebastian, six fishermen drowned as their small boat capsized in a storm. In Guipuzcoa province highways were flooded and other communications interrupted by rains. A number of families were forced to flee their homes when the storm-swollen streams flooded the Oyarzun and Renteria valleys.

SLEET AND SNOW SWEEP CHICAGO; ROADS SLIPPERY

A sleet and snow storm swept into Chicago yesterday afternoon on a brisk northeast wind which occasionally reached a velocity of 30 miles an hour. The weather bureau reported that rain or snow was general thruout most of the state and the midwest. Motorists were warned of hazardous highway conditions.

Forecaster Gordon E. Dunn predicted occasional snow today, with not much change in temperature. Dunn said the precipitation resulted from a low pressure area moving northeast from the mouth of the Mississippi river. The movement has caused rain thruout the Ohio valley, but particularly in Florida and Georgia, where three or four inches of rain had fallen.

Death Is Mystery

GEORGE ZEISS.

George Zeiss, 17 years old, a prelaw student at Herzl Junior college, was found dead under mysterious circumstances yesterday in the Consumers' company stone quarry on Joliet road in McCook. He was unclothed, and his bare feet were cut as if he had been wandering over the rocks.

Dr. Jerry Kearns and Investigator Ollie Karwoski of the coroner's office believe he wandered into the quarry and undressed while deranged as a result of a recent illness. Unable to find his way out, they suspect, he died of exposure and exhaustion. An autopsy showed no indication of violence.

The boy went shopping Saturday with his sister, Miss Evelyn Zeiss, 22 years old, and their mother, Mrs. Howard H. Williams. He left them in the loop, saying he would return to their home at 7649 Emerald avenue. Worried because he had been ill, his mother reported him missing after he failed to return.

UNEARTHS TOMB OF LITTLE KNOWN EGYPTIAN RULER

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 18.—A major archæological discovery was made yesterday at San el Hagar, in the Nile Delta, near the ancient city of Tanis, by Prof. Pierre Montet of Strasbourg university. He unearthed iritact the royal tomb of King Psousennes of the 21st dynasty, least known of all dynasties of ancient Egypt.

Entrance to the chamber had been sealed by a huge granite block. On its removal a large granite sarcophagus was revealed. Before the sacrophagus lay many beautiful funeral objects, most striking of which were the golden Canopic vases. An outstanding one is about a foot high engraved with lotus flowers.

Opening of the sarcophagus entails much careful labor, which Prof. Montet plans to complete in about 10 days. Great interest attaches to the discovery because so far no royal tomb of that dynasty has been found. The first king of the dynasty was King Sve-En-Des.

THEATER MANAGER ROBBED.

Gus Stathis, manager of the Schimdler theater, 1005 Huron street, was robbed of $350 in cash and checks last night by a bandit who in his nervousness fired several wild shots thru Stathis' car.

1 KILLED, 2 HURT IN CRASH WITH HIT-RUN DRIVER

Tragedy Ends Tour of 3 from Wisconsin.

A skidding hit and run car crashed into another automobile last night in Skokie highway, at Happ road, west of Wilmette, and killed one person and seriously injured two others.

Mrs. Pearl Russell, 55 years old, of Shawano, Wis., widow of an insurance company executive, was killed. Those injured were Orrie Williams, 48, a manufacturer, and his wife, Dora, 45, also of Shawano. They were taken to St. Francis hospital, Evanston. With Mrs. Russell they were returning from a trip to Mexico. The driver of the car which hit their automobile speeded away after the accident.

Policeman Killed by Car.

State Policeman Eugene Roberts, 40 years old, attached to Elgin station, died yesterday in St. Joseph's Mercy hospital in Aurora of a skull fracture incurred Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile in U. S. highway 34, two miles east of state highway 47. The accident occurred about 10 miles southwest of Aurora.

Roberts was standing in the road by a pit scale where his partner, Policeman Joseph K. Baker, was writing out an arrest slip for the driver of an overloaded truck. A car driven by Alexander J. Certik, who lives in the Y. M. C. A. in Galesburg, bore down on Roberts. Certik told police later that he sounded his horn and attempted to swerve but was unable to avoid striking Roberts.

A coroner's jury in Aurora exonerated Certik. Roberts lived at 504 East Kenilworth avenue, Villa Park, with his wife and three children.

Dies After Collision.

Albert J. Sterling, 63 years old, 824 West 62d street, a retired yardmaster for the Indiana Harbor Belt railway, died of a heart attack last night at 7117 Union avenue, shortly after his car figured in an accident. His machine and another collided in Whiting, but he did not appear at the time to have been injured.

In Hammond two elderly pedestrians were killed by automobiles. Miss Katherine Herndobler, 65, of 1427 Lake avenue, Hammond, was struck at Indianapolis boulevard and 116th street by a car driven by Hagin P. Harper of La Porte. Jacob Nowak, 60, a machinist, 4639 Johnson avenue, Hammond, was struck in Sheffield avenue, on the outskirts of town, by a car driven by Edward Pries, 51 Douglas street, Hammond.

Six persons were injured, three seriously, last night, in a head on collision of two automobiles in Skokie highway, south of County Line road, just west of Glencoe. They were Thomas G. Hull, 53 years old, and his wife, Edna, 53, 454 Iowa street, Oak Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Robinson, 54 and 52, respectively, of Long Meadow, Mass., who were in one car, and Ewart G. Walls Jr., 24, 1512 North Dearborn street, an insurance man, and Miss Theodora Reimer, also 24, of 1330 North State street, who were in the other car. Hull and the Robinsons were seriously injured. All six are in the Highland Park hospital.

Auto Hits Street Car.

Carl Hennes, 26 years old, of Lemont, and John Gannon, 19, of 6825 Elizabeth street, were seriously injured last night when their car, driven by Hennes, sidewiped a street car in 63d street at Washtenaw avenue, glanced off another automobile, and crashed into a trolley pole. Both suffered skull fractures, and were taken to the Holy Cross hospital.

Michael Savik, 55 years old, 1654 North Claremont avenue, suffered a possible skull fracture early today when his car skidded into a safety island in Western avenue at Monroe street. He was taken to the county hospital.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 130 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 98 were killed in Chicago, where 2,847 were injured in the same period.

N. Y. MAN SHOWS POLISH WAR FILM WITHOUT PERMIT

A motion picture depicting the siege of Warsaw was shown last night before 1,000 members and friends of the League of Young Polish Women in a hall at 1443 Division street. The lecturer and photographer was Julien Bryan of New York.

Police were called to the hall on advices that Bryan did not have a police permit to show the film. He explained that he had arrived in the city late Saturday night, and did not have a chance to obtain a permit. On his promise to get one today he was permitted to go ahead with the picture.

Friends of Boles Patzkoski, who attended the show, complained that the police action was discriminatory. They pointed out that Patzkoski, president of the Polish American Citizens' league, was arrested Monday night for showing a Polish war film without a police permit. His case is scheduled for Jury court on Feb. 26.

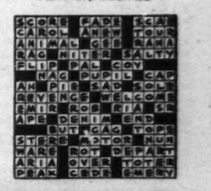
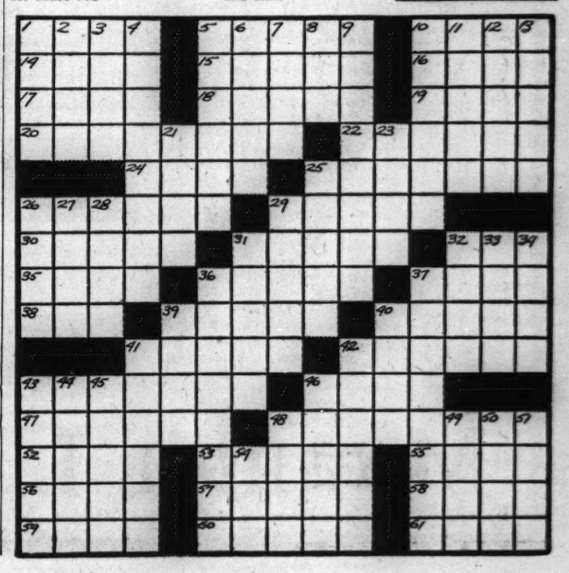
PUZZLE OF SATURDAY, FEB. 17, SOLVED





WOMAN HIKER, 24, KILLS AUTOIST AS HE BEGS FOR LIFE

Leads Way to Nude Body, Hidden in Field.

Lake Charles, La., Feb. 18 [Special].—A woman hitch-hiker's confession that she forced a salesman to undress and then shot him to death as he knelt and begged for his life was told to a coroner's jury today.

Sheriff Henry A. Reed related the story as told to him by the woman, Mrs. Claude D. Henry, 24 years old, of Beaumont, Tex. In her confession Mrs. Henry told authorities that a male companion was with her when the salesman, J. C. Calloway of Houston, Tex., was killed.

She said she got rid of her companion after the killing, however, before they carried out a planned robbery of an Arkansas bank.

Shields "Yellow Rat."

"He turned yellow and we had trouble," she said of her escort. "I struck him with my pistol and left him unconscious in the car between Camden and Eldorado, Ark. That's the last I've seen of him. He may be a little yellow rat, but I'll never tell you his name."

The woman was arrested on suspicion in connection with a Beaumont hardware store robbery in which 16 guns were taken. A chance remark she made gave the first indication of the murder, and after further questioning she led authorities to Calloway's nude body in a rice field, where it was concealed with straw.

She said Calloway picked up her and her companion, both heavily armed, near Vinton, La., on the Texas-Louisiana state line, and drove them thru Lake Charles.

Locked in Rumble Seat.

Just outside the city they forced the salesman at pistol point to get into the rumble seat, and then slammed the door. Then they drove Calloway's car to a spot seven miles south of this city, where they took the salesman into the rice field.

"I made him take off all his clothes and then I shot him," Mrs. Henry said in her statement. "We got back into the car and drove to Shreveport, La. We were afraid of his clothes, so we burned them."

The car, a watch, and $15 were the loot from the killing, the woman related.

Louisiana state police identified her as the wife of Claude [Cowboy] Henry, sentenced Feb. 8 at San Antonio, Tex., to 50 years in Huntsville prison for the slaying of a policeman. Coroner E. L. Clement held her to the grand jury on a slaying charge.

SEVEN WINNETKA BRIDGE JOBS WIN PWA APPROVAL

Contracts for construction of seven permanent highway bridges in Winnetka and a pedestrian bridge in Glencoe over the rights of way of the North Western railroad and the North Shore electric line were approved yesterday by the Public Works administration.

The bridge contract totals $253,471. A contract for paving approaches to the bridges calls for an expenditure of $101,944.

The bridges are part of a $3,500,000 grade separation project in north shore communities to do away with death crossings. The work is being financed in part thru a $1,552,909 PWA grant and an $898,000 PWA loan. The program is about 50 per cent completed.

HUNTS IN VAIN FOR FACES OF JEWEL ROBBERS

Mrs. Louise Railton, 29 years old, who was kidnaped on the near north side Saturday, was unable to pick out the two men who robbed her of three rings valued at $3,900 when she inspected photographs of bandits yesterday in the police bureau of identification. She was accompanied by her husband, John Railton, 2760 Marcy avenue, Evanston, president of the Otto Schmidt Wine company, importers. She was seized by the robbers as she was walking in front of 190 East Chestnut street and forced from their automobile a few blocks away after they had taken her jewelry.

CITY'S GAMBLERS GET A HOT TIP ON SOCIAL SECURITY

Scurry to Pay Up Back Federal Taxes.

Chicago's faro dealers and dice and roulette stick men may now look serenely forward to a stream of Uncle Sam's social security checks to comfort them in their old age. And the boys thrown out of jobs by the government's recent campaign against bookies may even hope to become eligible for unemployment compensation.

It was whispered along Randolph street yesterday that gambling house keepers and bookmakers are hotfooting it to the United States courthouse to pay up their long neglected social security taxes voluntarily. If they pay the state unemployment tax, too, the jobless can collect for being that way.

Owners Quit Winking.

It is explained that owners and proprietors of gambling houses and bookie shops have winked at the social security law. They felt certain that their employés wouldn't complain.

Then came the recent income tax investigation of gamblers by William J. Campbell, United States attorney. William R. Skidmore and William Johnson are two of the alleged gambling bosses whose incomes have been under investigation. Skidmore has been indicted for being short on his taxes over a five year period.

Federal investigators are reported to have told the grand jury that a number of gambling places with big revenue belonged to certain gentlemen. But when the managers of these places appeared before the grand jury, they swore that they themselves were the owners.

It Helps Some, Hits Others.

That helped the big income boys who were under fire, but it also made it obvious that the lesser gentry were hiring people and making money on their own account, and that perhaps they ought to be paying taxes as employers.

Then word got around, it is said, that the government was checking up on the social security payments made by the gambling houses and the bookmakers. When they grasped the idea that failure to pay social security taxes carries severe penalties, gentlemen who had avowed ownership of the gambling houses began to hurry to the courthouse with back taxes.

And that explains why a lot of new names have been tardily entered on the social security rolls.

Conversation sparkles at this "different" place to dine. And there's a reason: Food here more than satisfies . . . it inspires!

RICKETTS at the Watertower 103 East CHICAGO

ARRAIGN HIKER TODAY IN 1 CENT DESERT KILLING

Confession Is Reported by Former Chicagoan.

Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 18 [Special].—George H. Emanuel, member of an Evansville, Ind., family, and formerly a resident of Chicago, will have a preliminary hearing in justice court here tomorrow morning in the hitchhike slaying of Floyd M. Brumbaugh, 48 years old, of Goshen, Ind.

Emanuel, 25 years old, is charged with shooting Brumbaugh to death near Jean, 40 miles south of Las Vegas, after Brumbaugh had picked up Emanuel in his car. The younger man was hitchhiking from California to his home in Evansville.

The slaying took place on Feb. 5, but Emanuel's identity was not learned immediately, because he told officers he was from California. His mother, Mrs. Irene Emanuel, who is executive secretary of the Evansville Family Welfare association, has arrived in Las Vegas for tomorrow's hearing.

Surrenders to Police.

Police first learned of Brumbaugh's death when Emanuel walked into a Las Vegas police station, handed a pistol to Sergt. Al Kahre, and said: "Lock me up. I've just killed a man."

Emanuel led police to the body of Brumbaugh, who had been an itinerant carpenter. It lay in a ditch off a lonely desert road near Jean. Emanuel said that when he shot the carpenter the latter was driving at 55 miles an hour, but that he managed to gain control of the car when Brumbaugh slumped over. He dumped the body out beside the road.

Later Emanuel signed a confession before the Las Vegas district attorney, saying that robbery was his motive in shooting Brumbaugh, but that he got only one cent.

In Evansville Four Years.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 18 [Special].—George H. Emanuel, who is held in Las Vegas, Nev., for the hitchhike killing of a Goshen, Ind., carpenter, has lived in Evansville during most of the last four years. His family moved here from Chicago four years ago when his mother obtained employment here as executive secretary of the Evansville Family Welfare association.

His sister, Mary, is a student in Evansville High school, and his brother, John, is a student at Stanford university.

George held several jobs in Evansville, including one in a book store and another in the cost accounting department of a manufacturing company.

Emanuel was married for a short time to Miss Marjorie McKinnon, daughter of a circulation manager for Conde-Nast Publications. During that marriage the couple lived in Indianapolis. They were divorced.

George hitchhiked to California in November, planning to visit his brother and an aunt who lives in that state. His father was the late George Hawley Emanuel, former Chicago newspaper man and publicity agent, who died about eight years ago.

Norma Steinman's plans for a grand opening of his new women's dress shop at 5348 North Clark street were temporarily called off yesterday. The cause was burglars who during the morning broke into the shop and stole most of Steinman's stock, including 353 dresses, numerous suits and sweaters, 74 pairs of hosiery, and many boxes of lingerie, all valued at $2,300.

PONDER REWARD TO SPUR SEARCH FOR HVID KILLERS

54 Days Pass Without Action in Goon Murder.

This is the 54th day since labor terrorists wielded baseball bats on Marinus Hvid in an attack that cost his life. The goons who murdered Hvid, owner of a picketed garage, are still at large.

But the All-Chicago council of the Association of Commerce will consider a step tomorrow that the council's chairman, Frank Hecht, hopes may lead to the capture of the killers. The council will discuss Hecht's proposal that a reward be offered for the killers' arrest. The conference will be held at noon in the Union League club.

William Crawford, assistant state's attorney who is coöperating with the police and business and civic leaders in the effort to bring the killers to justice, said last night that he believes the reward may produce results. He thinks the prospect of money may induce those who know the details of the crime to talk.

Demand End to Lawlessness.

After Hvid was slain public demand that labor lawlessness be ended brought a pledge of speedy action from both the police and the state's attorney's office. But the law enforcement officials had little progress to report last night.

Hvid was the 32d victim of Chicago's labor killings in the last nine years. Convictions have been obtained in only one case.

Hvid, the father of four children, owned a garage at 3514 North Halsted street. He was expelled last March from the Affiliated Garages of Chicago. Soon afterward a strike was called in his garage and picketing was begun by the Auto Livery Chauffeurs, Taxicab Drivers, and Garage Helpers' union.

Complains of Tieup.

Hvid complained that he believed the garage organization and the union were working together, asserting that there was no dispute between him and his employés.

On Dec. 27 the ball bat goons lay in wait for him and beat him into unconsciousness. Three days later he died.

Capt. Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall police took charge of the investigation. The state's attorney's office began investigating the possibility of a working agreement between the garage owners' organization and the union. Witnesses were questioned. But the killers remained uncaptured.

TRANSIT MERGER TERMED ONLY KEY TO 'L' LINE SNARL

Company Unable to Carry Out Improvement Program

This is the last of a series of articles discussing the obstacles confronting negotiators who are seeking to solve Chicago's complicated traction tangle.]

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Ten months ago the Illinois commerce commission ordered the Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated lines] to make improvements that will cost an estimated $42,000,000. The commission said this vast program must be completed by April, 1944, in order to promote the safety of the public.

The company was directed to buy 1,000 all-steel cars to replace present wooden ones, to install block signals to safeguard against accidents, and to repair and paint its structures. So far, because of lack of funds, the company has been unable to undertake the program.

According to Col. A. A. Sprague, trustee of the lines, the only hope of carrying out the program is for the elevated lines to merge with the surface lines and for the merged company to obtain a suitable franchise from the city. The record of earnings and the present financial position of the elevated lines indicate, however, that these lines would be a weak link in the proposed unified company.

Merger Includes All Lines.

Under the unification plan the new company would agree to modernize the elevated and surface lines. It also would buy and operate the properties of the Chicago Motor Coach [bus] company, and would operate the city owned subway now being built.

Securities holders' groups of the elevated and surface lines agreed a year ago on a merger plan for a united company. Since then, however, the lines' joint representatives have been unable to agree with the city on terms of a franchise under which the new company would operate.

What contributions and what obligations would the elevated lines bring to the new system? They would contribute a going rapid transit system that carries about 16 per cent of the city's 2,500,000 daily transit riders and receives approximately $13,000,000 a year in fares.

Lacks Funds for Bills.

At the same time, the lines would, on the basis of recent operations, have to spend all their revenues for expenses and taxes, leaving nothing for a return to investors and no cash for improvements. The company now has insufficient cash to meet its current bills and taxes. Its lines, except the north side branch, are unprofitable.

The only apparent hope for rejuvenating the elevated lines, as officials of both the "L" and the surface lines have said, is a merger with the surface lines. Both systems are undergoing reorganization in the federal court.

Officials say that by merging the lines cash already held by the surface lines and money borrowed on the basis of the surface lines' earning power could be used to rehabilitate the elevated lines. Such a move is opposed, however, by surface lines officials and investors unless provision is made for earning power to support also the surface lines' modernization.

20 Million Fund Available.

The only ready cash available for the new system is $20,000,000 held by the surface lines in a special fund for renewal of street car equipment. Another $10,000,000 of free cash is held by the surface lines, but the city has proposed that this be held in reserve a few years. It is proposed that the new company borrow $40,000,000 in the first three years to finance a $60,000,000 modernization program.

Transit officials contend, however, that the city's proposed franchise terms would not produce enough earnings for the new company to finance the program. The city has proposed that the unified company agree to keep present rates of fare for three years, set up a pension plan for employés costing $2,000,000 a year, and pay compensation to the city for the use of streets and the subway, amounting to a minimum of $1,000,000 a year.

Interest charges on the mortgage bonds of the new company would further amount to $4,000,000 a year, in addition to interest on any new money to be borrowed.

Obligations 7 Millions a Year.

Officials point to these obligations, totaling at least $7,000,000 a year. They say that, based on the city's own estimates of $5,000,000 in earnings for the first year, the new company would have a loss of $2,000,000. Based on the companies' earnings estimates, the loss would be $5,000,000. A company that is running in the red, officials contend, cannot borrow new money.

The transit representatives say that, altho the elevated lines are the unprofitable unit in the proposed system, it would be impractical to raise their fares above the 10 cent fare now charged.

They say the merger and modernizing program can be financed only if the new unified company is given the right to petition to the rate making commission for an 8 cent street car fare within one year after the merger. They also propose that compensation to the city be paid only if actually earned by the company.

Proposal Called Unreasonable.

Surface lines representatives say that neither the elevated nor the surface lines will benefit from a merger if the franchise terms for the new company are so harsh that the new company is driven back into receivership in a year or two for failure to meet its obligations. They contend the city's proposal to freeze the present rates of fare for three years is unreasonable and would force an early receivership.

On a seven cent fare the surface lines, carrying 78 per cent of the city's transit riders, now are earning about $3,500,000 a year, or barely enough to pay their first mortgage bond interest.

The merger plan would require the use of some surface lines' cash to buy equipment for the "L." This drain on their cash will make it necessary to borrow money to buy new street cars and buses, thus increasing interest charges. Officials estimate an eight cent fare would raise surface lines' earnings to more than $8,500,000 a year, enough to pay the merged company's interest, pensions, and city compensation and induce lenders to finance the purchase of new equipment.

Behind on First Mortgage Bonds.

The elevated lines have been unable to earn interest on their first mortgage bonds since 1931. They have much to gain and little to lose by merging with the surface lines, but their officials agree with the surface lines heads that the new company must have earning power to carry out its franchise obligations.

In contrast to the elevated lines, the bus company would, on the basis of its record, be a profitable unit in the new system. Although it has no cash available, it has a demonstrated earning power. Net earnings before return to investors amount to about $850,000 a year. The company carries about 6.5 per cent of the city's transit riders.

Under the proposed plan to buy the bus lines outright, the owners of the bus company will bargain for the best deal possible. They have agreed to sell, but no terms have been decided. It is expected payment will be made partly in cash and partly in bonds. Control of the bus company is held by the Omnibus corporation of New York City.

Fans of the W-G-N and Mutual Broadcasting system's Fifth Row Center program jammed the studio yesterday afternoon to see and hear Mary Brian and Irene Hervey of the movies in a comedy playlet, "Maidens' Millions." Miss Brian is currently appearing in the musical comedy, "Three After Three," at the Erlanger theater. Miss Hervey was a last minute substitute for Mitzi Green, also of the "Three After Three" cast, who was taken ill. The radio script was written by Noel B. Gerson. The musical background was supplied by Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra, and the production was directed by Blair Walliser.

Hal Wallis and his wife, Louise Fazenda, at Polk street station yesterday on their way east.

Hal Wallis, once a Chicago west side boy and now a leading Hollywood producer, made a brief passage thru Chicago yesterday with his wife, Louise Fazenda.

Wallis went to Hollywood in 1922 as a publicity man and now heads the Warner Brothers studio in Burbank, Cal. Last year he received the Thalberg academy award as the producer of the greatest number of outstanding films. He is a 1940 contender, he revealed yesterday, but "Who knows?" he said merrily.

With his wife he is on his way to New York for final negotiations, he said, in the purchase of James Thurber's play, "Male Animal." A luncheon had been planned for them here, but the Santa Fe Chief, on which they arrived, was four hours late.

ELDERLY COUPLE ON RELIEF DIE IN GAS FILLED HOME

Carl Emil Lundmark, 66 years old, and his wife, Mary, 65, who were on relief, were found asphyxiated by gas yesterday in their third floor rooms at 637 8th street, Waukegan. A niece, Dorothy Isaacson, 15, of 159 Liberty street, stopped by on her way home from church and found Lundmark lying on a couch and his wife seated in a chair in the gas filled home. Lake county coroner's officials were unable to determine whether a coffee pot on the gas range had boiled over and extinguished the flame or whether some one in passing had accidentally brushed the handle of the jet and opened it.

TAKES POISON AND DIES.

Mrs. Irene Wolowics, 32 years old, died yesterday in County hospital of the effects of poison she took Saturday in her home at 4216 South Talman avenue.

BIBLE TAKES ON NEW LURE WHEN CUPID TEACHES

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 18 (AP).—Pop Galloway's Bible class had only 13 members. Then it opened a "date" bureau. In one month the membership jumped to 265. At class entertainments sometimes more than half the couples present have made dates thru the bureau.

Members with lonely hearts file their pictures, age, height, weight, and telephone number with the bureau and await developments.

Other people with lonely hearts look at the pictures, choose a companion, and notify George Ed Thomas, a member of the class who has charge of the bureau. The chosen one is notified and given the telephone number of the other person. From then on it's up to the lonely hearts.

Thomas started the date bureau a month ago. A newspaper published a story about it and since then Thomas has been besieged by prospective members. They call him day and night. In fact the calls are coming so fast, Thomas said, that "my landlady is threatening to have me thrown out for being a nuisance."

8 YEAR RELIEF COSTS IN STATE TOP 1½ BILLION

Annual Spending Placed at 200 Million.

BY HERMAN KOGAN.

One billion six hundred million dollars!

This sum, representing average annual expenditures of $200,000,000, was poured out in Illinois for all forms of relief and public assistance from 1932 thru 1939.

In what form was this vast sum distributed? Have direct relief rolls diminished or increased during the period? Figures now available provide an answer.

The greatest portion—40 per cent of the total relief expenditure—has gone for wages and materials for thousands of projects under the Work Projects administration. Figures compiled yesterday by Paul Kerschbaum, state WPA statistician, show that expenditures have totaled $645,507,941 since the start of the WPA program four years ago.

Bulk in Federal Advances.

About 82 per cent of this, or $525,133,071, has come from federal funds appropriated by congress. The remaining $120,374,870 represents the local sponsors' share. Of the $645,507,941 total, $493,473,572 went for wages [the average monthly wage for WPA workers is now $57] and $152,034,369 for materials and other nonlabor expenses.

During the life of the WPA, 81 per cent of such expenditures, amounting to $532,576,471, was in the division of operations, which includes construction or repair of highways, roads and streets, and recreational facilities, airport, airways, and public buildings projects. Nineteen per cent were service projects—in which category most of the boondoggling projects fall.

Close on the heels of the WPA in amount of funds expended have been those distributed in direct relief—outright monthly grants either in the form of disbursing orders or, as in Chicago, checks now averaging $30 a month per case. ["Case" is a term used to denote a group, family, or individual receiving relief as a unit.]

Third for WPA Aid.

The eight year total for this form of public assistance is $583,099,809, according to E. E. Ferrebee, statistician for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. This is about 37 per cent of the grand total for all state aid and excludes $50,000,000 handled by the state in connection with the Civil Work authority of 1933-'34, a forerunner of the WPA.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission has been the medium thru which these funds passed from their state and federal sources to reliefers since 1932. In its history is reflected the trend of general public assistance thruout the state in this eight year period.

Prior to 1932 the chief responsibility for financing and administering relief, following the precedent of the colonial poor law system, rested on the local governmental units—counties, cities, and towns.

Increase in Costs Shown.

Relief programs, not only in Illinois but in the entire country, had been designed chiefly to take care of a comparatively small portion of population, chiefly chronic unemployables such as the aged or those mentally or physically unfit to work. Even this group, however, did not remain static in regard to expenditures. For in 16 major cities in the United States public expenditures increased from $1,500,000 in 1911 to $20,000,000 in 1928.

In February, 1932, the state legislature passed a bill which set up the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, since known more familiarly as the IERC.

The commission's membership is composed of ten persons, seven of them selected by the governor, and with the incumbent state director of finance, state treasurer, and state auditor as ex officio members. Leo M. Lyons has been executive secretary of the IERC for the last four years, in addition to his job as Chicago relief administrator.

Federal Relief Begins.

In July, 1932, congress passed the emergency relief and construction act authorizing the Reconstruction Finance corporation to lend $300,000,000 to the states for emergency relief. This soon ran out. In May, 1933, congress passed another act, setting up the Federal Emergency Relief administration. This agency made available $500,000,000 for distribution to the states.

Under the arrangement involving FERA funds, relief was administered by local bodies [such as the IERC] but financed on a national scale to the extent of 70 per cent by federal funds, 14 per cent by the state, and 16 per cent by local units of government.

Thus, for the first four years of IERC expenditures in the state the greatest share came from federal moneys. The following table shows the trend in this period:

	Federal.	State.	Local.
1932	$24,305,712	$18,364,385	.....
1933	50,966,731	14,193,890	*$3,341,655
1934	60,116,321	31,677,199	1,146,647
1935	96,111,664	15,850,853	2,642,803

*Nine months.

Shift Burden to States.

The FERA program, however, began to be liquidated in 1935, foreshadowing the advent of WPA. The last FERA grant to the state was made in December, 1935. The burden of supplying funds for direct relief now was shifted to the states and local units.

By July 1, 1936—which marks the second phase of the IERC—the relief picture had begun to change. It was then that by act of the legislature the IERC was relieved of the load of administering relief. Henceforth, the duty of the IERC, which is now still in effect, was to act as an agency to make monthly allocations and certify eligibility of reliefers to receive federal surplus commodities and take part in other programs related to relief, principally the WPA.

This meant that the IERC now had charge of making allocations from appropriated funds to 1,454 local governmental units—1,436 townships in counties under township organization, 17 counties not under township organization, and in Chicago as a separate unit.

Summary of Activities.

A summary of IERC activities during the first 53 months of its existence shows that $370,000,000 was expended in direct relief and administrative costs. The latter was about 10 per cent of the total cost. These funds were distributed to an average of 900,000 persons per month at a mean monthly grant of $7 per person. The peak was reached in March, 1935, when 1,183,239 persons—15.5 per cent of the state's population—received direct aid.

With the new IERC setup, each local unit has been obliged to determine the eligibility of relief applicants and the amount needed. To be eligible to receive a share of the funds appropriated by the legislature, these various units had to levy a new tax—30 cents on every $100 of taxable property. The state share is made up principally of taxes on public utilities and the sales taxes. The latter had been started in 1933 as a 2 per cent levy, replacing the property tax, and in 1935 was raised to 3 per cent.

Other Aids Started.

Money from the federal funnels continued to keep the annual expenditures for public assistance high. By 1936 the WPA program was under way. In the same year, such varied forms of public aid as National Youth administration, Civilian Conservation corps, use of federal surplus commodities, and old age assistance were inaugurated principally with federal funds. The latter program, which gives monthly grants to needy persons 65 years or over, has cost approximately $106,696,679 in the three and one-half years of existence. All other public aid programs account for the rest of the $1,600,000,000 total.

WPA employment reached an all-time high in the four months preceding 1938 elections. An average of 825,000 persons in Illinois were on WPA rolls during this period. Since November, 1938, WPA rolls have decreased steadily with only slight variations. In December, 1939, there were 508,622 persons [154,128 workers] dependent on this form of relief.

Relief Rolls Declining.

Records show that not only has WPA employment gone down but that relief rolls also have diminished in recent months. The trend in the latter half of 1939 was as follows:

	Relief cases.	WPA workers.
July	188,118	166,951
August	182,938	154,404
September	180,854	125,190
October	177,498	142,114
November	170,660	146,486
December	169,126	154,128

The slight rise in WPA rolls in the last two months was because of an increase in the state quota.

Considering the average per capita cost of all public assistance in the state since 1932, the following may be deduced: If every man, woman, and child in Illinois were assessed equally to divide the total cost, each would have had to pay a little more than $200 in taxes for this period.

DIES OF FALL INJURIES.

Injuries suffered in a fall in her home on Feb. 2 resulted in the death yesterday of Mrs. Anna Turnovski, 74 years old, 1342 South Euclid avenue, Berwyn, in St. Luke's hospital.

Eight Years of Public Assistance in Illinois

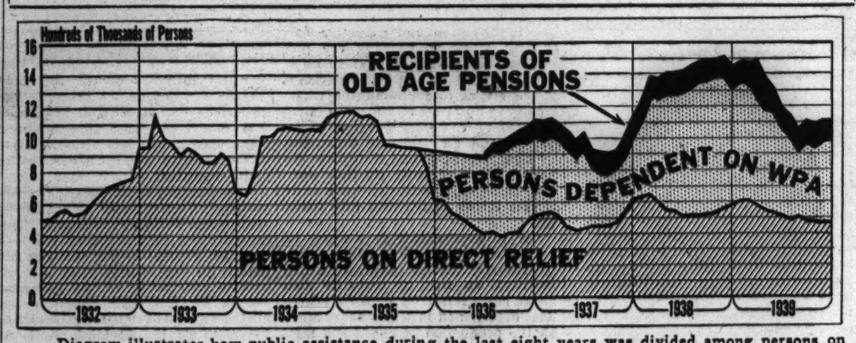

Diagram illustrates how public assistance during the last eight years was divided among persons on public relief, persons dependent on WPA, and persons receiving old age pensions.

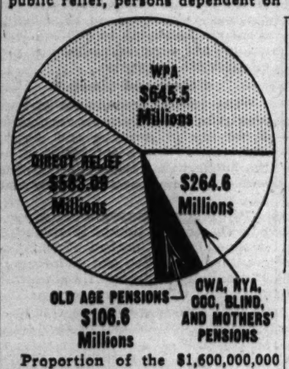

WPA $645.5 Millions
DIRECT RELIEF $583.09 Millions
$264.6 Millions
OLD AGE PENSIONS $106.6 Millions

WILD LOUISIANA POLITICAL WAR IS NEAR ITS CLIMAX

Candidates Are Feverishly Busy; Vote Tomorrow.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 18 (AP).—Louisiana embarked on its final two days of tumult and shouting today before deciding whether to sweep out or keep in power the remnants of the political oligarchy established 12 years ago by Huey P. Long.

Politicians ignored the Sabbath as they continued a feverish stumping of the state in behalf of the gubernatorial candidates of Gov. Earl K. Long, brother of Huey, and Sam H. Jones, the governor's opponent in Tuesday's second Democratic primary.

The general election—a mere formality in Democratic Louisiana—will be held in April, and the victor will be inaugurated May 14.

Vote Frauds Feared.

Jones asserted that "Uncle Sam is on the job" in warning against election irregularities, while his ally, State Senator James A. Noe, eliminated in the first primary, pressed 16,000 ex-service men and others into a "Jackson brigade" to watch polls thruout the state.

Gov. Long called Jones a "faker," and United States Senator Allen J. Ellender, speaking with Long, stressed the racial question.

"If Sam Jones should succeed in getting elected governor," said Ellender, "after the federal government had stepped in, it would establish a precedent and would pave the way for political equality for colored people."

Long, lieutenant governor under Gov. Richard W. Leche when the Louisiana scandals broke nearly eight years ago, appealed to supporters of Huey to stand by him and denounced Jones as a "corporation candidate."

Results of Primary.

Jones, a Lake Charles attorney, polled 154,779 votes in the first primary Jan. 16 to 225,739 for Long, who failed to gain a majority over his four opponents. Jones has scathingly attacked the old Long machine for "sharing the wealth" while some of its members looted the state. He is running on a "complete reform" platform.

During the campaign more than 200 indictments have been returned, many against persons once high in state administration councils. Several already are in federal prison. Government attorneys have said the inquiry is far from finished.

Voters will ballot on candidates for lieutenant governor, attorney general, and state superintendent of public education, in addition to those for governor, as well as on candidates for the legislature and other offices.

Green Mountain Boys Take Fort Ticonderoga on Skis

Ticonderoga, N. Y., Feb. 18 [Special].—Officers and men of Company K, 172d infantry, Vermont national guard, arrived under the bastions of Fort Ticonderoga today to "capture" the historic fort as their ancestors, under Ethan Allen, did 165 years ago. But where Allen and his Green Mountain boys crossed Lake Champlain in boats to seize Ticonderoga from the British, the Guardsmen crossed its frozen, snow covered surface on skis.

REPUBLICANS DRAW UP A SWEEPING PROGRAM FOR AMERICAN PROSPERITY

BRAND NEW DEAL A FAILURE THRU ALL ITS 7 YEARS

Document Will Provide Platform Material.

tributes the failure to eradicate unemployment and otherwise achieve recovery to the defeatist theory that the system of private enterprise is slowing down and that "the public enterprise of the state must be expanded to take up the slack in the private enterprise of the people."

Proceeding on such an assumption the New Deal has directed its energies not to reviving private enterprise, but to "dividing up the fruits of existing enterprise."

The Republican committee advocates a sharp turn to the right to save the country from disaster. It would free private enterprise from the fetters fastened upon it by the New Deal. It would encourage business for profit, believing that the expansion of industry under government encouragement would give work to the unemployed and furnish such profitable markets for farmers that farm relief would become unnecessary.

Cite Blows at Business.

Private initiative and the willingness to risk investment in private enterprise have been stifled by harassments and uncertainties and the general antagonism of the New Deal to business, the committee finds.

"The long term confidence that produces the willingness to risk will not return," says the program committee, "until there is a decisive change in the temper and attitude of government towards the leadership, the process, and the possibilities of American enterprise, until Americans willing to risk their savings in enterprise, in the hope of sufficient profit to justify their taking the risk of loss, are considered by the government as benefactors instead of malefactors."

The committee asserts that neutrality should be the cardinal principal of foreign policy.

Excerpts from the report follow:

CONCERNING THE WAR

Holds We're in No Position to Enter It

Under the heading, "European War and American Policy," the report stated:

"We are still economically crippled from our venture as belligerent and creditor in the world war and from the depleting years of depression that have followed.

"Our domestic affairs are far from a state of health. Our economic system has been under the oxygen tent of government spending and made work for seven years. The people are burdened with a back breaking load of taxes.

"The national debt is at an all-time high. The federal credit is in no condition to have added to its already unprecedented obligations the colossal costs of participation in a European war.

"Under these circumstances, it is highly questionable whether either our economic system of free enterprise or our political system of representative self-government would survive participation in a European war. The postwar economic chaos that would follow our participation in this war would make the case for iron fisted control from the center highly plausible to a war weary people.

Present Centralization Cited.

"And if we participated in this war under a leadership which, in peacetime, seeks to centralize virtually all power over the enterprise of the nation in the federal government and its executive, it is reasonable to assume that, at the end of the war, such leadership would be reluctant to surrender the powers war had lodged in its hands.

"It is important to the rest of the world, as well as to ourselves, that the United States stand, at the end of this war, as an economically stable, self-governing democracy that has provided its people with a widely distributed well being and visibly demonstrated how a continent-wide civilization can survive without resort to organized intolerance, class conflict, the liquidation of oppositions, slavery to the state, or war—a peaceful nation prepared for peace and equipped to coöperate effectively in the reconstruction of the postwar economy.

"If we are to do this, it is important not only that we keep out of war but that we proceed promptly to put our own domestic house in order."

A BALANCE SHEET

New Deal's Vast Spending Held a Failure

Under the heading, "After Seven Years of New Deal Control," the report stated:

"Here are typical items in the balance sheet of actual results as they stood in the late summer of 1939, when conditions reflected the effect of New Deal policies instead of the war-induced upswing.

"1. More than 10,000,000 Americans unemployed.

"2. A lower standard of living than a decade ago.

"3. The creation of new enterprises virtually at a standstill, the modernization and expansion of existing enterprises deferred.

"4. Labor involved in extensive and costly disputes, with its organized ranks torn by civil war, and its annual income lower despite higher hourly wage rates.

"5. Farm prices neither stable nor satisfactory, and the basic problems of agriculture no nearer solution than before the administration's exercise of sweeping controls over farms and farmers.

"6. The doors of economic opportunity barricaded to youth by the sluggish condition of American enterprise.

"7. Government expenditures, excluding postal receipts and debt retirement, of $9,210,091,000 in 1939 against $3,863,544,000 in 1933.

"8. The heaviest tax burden in the nation's history.

"9. A national debt doubled by the end of 1939—increased from less than 21 billions at the beginning of the New Deal administration to approximately 42 billion dollars, not including nearly 6 billion dollars of obligations guaranteed by the federal government.

A COMPARISON

The Six Years Before and the Six After

"The six years preceding the New Deal and the first six years of the New Deal afford a suggestive comparison. Of the six years before the New Deal three were years of prosperity and three were years of depression, and of the first six years of the New Deal there have been four of "rise" and two of "recession." The record is revealing.

"1. The average annual pay roll in all industries for the six years preceding the New Deal was $38,760,000,000; for the first six years of the New Deal, $30,446,000,000. [National Industrial Conference board.]

"2. The average number of strikes annually for the six years preceding the New Deal was 733, the average number of workers involved was 296,954, and man days idle, 10,819,019; for the first six years of the New Deal the average number of strikes annually was 2,541, the average number of workers involved 1,181,637, and man days idle, 17,232,583. [Bureau of Labor statistics.]

"3. The average index of farm prices of all agricultural products for the six years preceding the New Deal was 118.7; for the first six years of the New Deal, 99.7. [Bureau of Agricultural Economics.]

"4. The average index of department store sales for the six years preceding the New Deal was 98.16; for the first six years of the New Deal, 81. [Federal Reserve—division of research and statistics.]

"5. The average annual value of construction for the six years preceding the New Deal was $4,608,000,000; for the first six years of the New Deal, $2,239,200,000. [F. W. Dodge corporation reports.]

"6. The average annual volume of new domestic corporate issues for the six years preceding the New Deal was $4,060,000,000; for the first six years of the New Deal, $672,000,000. [The Commercial and Financial Chronicle.]

"Doubt, Confusion, Uncertainty."

"The New Deal leadership confidently promised to 'produce' recovery by planned political action. It went into power with a nation-wide support which stayed by it certainly into 1937. Its expenditures have been lavish. It has had sweeping authority for swift and large scale action.

"And yet, after seven years of this leadership, we have doubt, confusion, and uncertainty, instead of confident, clear, and assured understanding of where we are headed."

ECONOMICS IN REVERSE

The New Deal Misunderstands Them, Says Report

Under the heading, "The New Deal Misunderstands Economic America," the report stated:

"The economic program of the New Deal, despite sporadic reversals of policy, has rested essentially on the control of production, the creation of scarcity, and the boosting of prices. At the turn of the century this was the precise program of the least enlightened leadership of big business.

"Liberalism fought this program then. But, by some strange twist of thinking, these policies, which were attacked as reactionary and as a threat to the well being of the people when followed by big business then, are defined by the New Deal leadership as liberal and as essential instruments of social progress when followed by big government now. We are, as a result, again faced with the problem of unduly centralized political power.

"These policies, whether they are labeled liberal or reactionary, have not resulted in a full employment of our man power, our technical skill, and our economic resources, as the record of the last seven years indicates.

Reason for Failure.

"And the reason these policies have not worked, and will not work, is that they violate the nature of the productive system we have built up in the United States. This productive system is built for large quantity production. It cannot be run in low gear. It is a system that must be operated for large volume production, wide distribution, and mass consumption.

"When either industrial management or government imposes upon it a scarcity policy of fewer goods at higher prices, the pressure upon the producer to cut production costs is lightened, high production costs are protected, monopolistic or near monopolistic administration of prices is encouraged, consumption slumps, and the whole machine stalls. Despite its protests to the contrary, the New Deal leadership has tried to operate this productive system, designed to produce plenty, with the scarcity philosophy of fewer goods at higher prices.

A FALSE ASSUMPTION

How New Deal Started Off on Wrong Foot

"When it took over the government in 1933, the New Deal leadership assumed that we were suffering from more than the effect of a cyclical depression from which we would in due time recover.

"It held that the underlying factors of growth, which had resulted in a sustained expansion of American enterprise from the colonial period down to 1929 had, by that time, ceased to operate with their old force; that, by 1929, the possibility of sustained expansion of the private enterprise of the United States had come to an end.

"It based this assumption on four grounds: [1] That the frontier, with its free lands, was gone; [2] that the rate of our population growth was slowing down; [3] that the economic plant of the nation was built if not overbuilt, and [4] that there were no new industries in sight of enough potential size to provide the basis for a new phase of prosperity.

Hope and Liberalism.

"The New Deal leadership has persistently defined its program as one of hope and liberalism. And its propagandizing of its program as hopeful and liberal was sweepingly effective until the actual results of its control of the nation began to be so plainly visible.

"Now, however, the record shows that, whatever may be said of its ventures in social fields, in the economic field it has been defeatist in its philosophy and reactionary in its policies.

"Under such philosophy and such policies, each economic group—business, labor, agriculture, and so on—must, in self-defense, go after a larger and larger share of less and less. This cannot but mean, in the end, a progressive stagnation of the nation's enterprise and diminished well-being for all these groups of producing Americans."

THE REPUBLICAN POSITION

It Holds Frontiers Are More Fruitful than Ever

Under the heading, "The Republican Position," the report stated:

"It is true that, as a country matures, the nature of its problem changes. Its development naturally becomes less extensive in character in that its main job is no longer the opening up of new lands, virgin forests, and undeveloped mines. Its development becomes more intensive in that its main job becomes the invention, perfection, large scale production, and wide distribution of the facilities and tools for more effective working and more satisfactory living.

"But this shift from extensive to intensive development does not, as the New Deal leadership seems to assume, mean an inevitable shrinkage in the scale of the nation's enterprise and employment. On the contrary, it can mean a marked expansion in investment opportunities, employment, pay rolls, and the productive output of goods and services by which alone the living standards of the people as a whole can be lifted.

Defeatism Lacks Foundation.

"None of the reasons back of the New Deal contention that our private economy has matured past the possibility of a sustained and adequate expansion stands up under critical examination.

"The fact that the frontier, in the literal sense, was gone did not prevent the amazing progress in prosperity and general well being up to 1929. And there are still millions of acres in the United States that could support from twice to 10 times the number of people now settled upon them if and when the need for their more intensive use arises.

"We still have this frontier. The passing of the frontier is a much overworked factor in a much oversimplified political thinking.

"Our present slower growth of population means that the character of our productive output will doubtless change, but there is no reason, inherent in the population trend, why the scale of our productive enterprise should shrink until the human wants of our population are fully served.

THE STAGNATION THEORY

It Has No Justification, Report Contends

"To assume that a slow growing population heads the national economy towards stagnation has no justification in fact. It is significant that the most impressive housing developments of recent years have taken place in nations with slow growing or almost static populations—notably Great Britain and Holland.

"This is significant for us because housing can mean to American economic life, in the next 25 years, what the automobile industry means in the last 25 years. And better housing is but one of a long array of unsatisfied wants that we can take steps to meet if we can only unfreeze the fountains of investment and enterprise.

"It is not true that the nation's industrial plant is today or has been overbuilt if considered in relation to the conservatively calculated needs of our population.

Much Held Obsolete.

"A large part of our industrial plant is today obsolete as a result of the rapid technological advance since 1929. We have not made the normal replacements to offset ordinary wear and tear. We have more than 9,000,000 more people for whom goods and services must be produced than we had in 1929. There is already stored up and waiting to be applied a mass of technological improvements which call for the wholesale construction of new buildings and manufacture of new machines.

"The fact is that our industrial plant is actually underbuilt for the expansion of productive activity which alone can bring us full employment of our man-power, our technical skill, and our economic resources.

"If, furthermore, we consider not merely our plant for working but our plant for living, we have in the building and equipping of more than 4,000,000 modern homes in the next five years a field of new enterprise fully equivalent in its possibilities to any which has ever been offered as a challenge to the energy of the American people.

"There is a large banked-up fund of scientific and technological results lying unexploited in the research files of the nation.

"These scientific and technological results, now awaiting translation into production and distribution, are found in the fields of foods, clothing, plastics, motion pictures, agriculture, chemicals, rubber, transportation, communication, automobiles, airplanes, fuels, housing, lighting, metals, and so on.

Investment Opportunities.

"The committee finds no support in fact to the contention that our private economy will never again offer enough investment opportunities to absorb the savings the country tends to pile up.

"Since 1929 the number of would-be gainfully employed workers in the United States has increased by some 5,000,000. In the ten years since 1929 we have done little to provide these 5,000,000 new workers with tools, that is to say, with the plants and facilities for productive work. We have not been making the investment that would make work possible for them.

"The starting point of sound economic policy for the nation at this particular juncture is, therefore, a fact based realization that the private economy of America has not come to a dead end, has not been stricken with creeping paralysis, but is crowded with possibilities of fruitful growth and profitable expansion.

"The persistent emphasis of this committee on the necessity for a free, creative, and expanding life rests upon the conviction that it is the only kind of economic system under which a people has a decent chance to realize a sustained high standard of living."

FOREIGN RELATIONS

Scrupulous Neutrality Demanded

Under the heading, "Towards a Foreign Relations Program," the report stated:

"In the forefront of our foreign policy must be the avoidance of all commitments and courses of action that might involve us in other peoples' wars. When such wars are on, we must observe a scrupulous governmental neutrality.

"It is increasingly clear that our defensive forces must be powerful enough to act effectively in protecting the western hemisphere from aggression. In coöperation with all the Americas, and with adequate defensive forces and mutually productive treaty relations, we must not only reaffirm but also implement the Monroe Doctrine as a permanently central feature of our defense policy.

"In short, we should undertake to make our defense policy, as here defined, a working part of a common protective policy of all the Americas.

"We must fully protect our own national living standards, the wages of our workers, and the income of our farmers. However fully we may recognize the long-run fallacy of the present world epidemic of trade restrictions, we must not indulge in any trade policies at this time that will make the United States the dumping ground for the subsidized and politically managed exports of other countries.

Urges More Foreign Trade.

"We must try to increase our foreign trade by every measure available consist with the protection of our living standards, the wages of our workers, and the income of our farmers.

"This will require a constructive administration of our tariff relationships. The measures that may be taken will be varied. Some tariffs may have to be raised, some lowered, some left alone.

"The function of our tariff policy, in view of the abnormal world situation, must be to protect our own best interests and to promote, as far as the restrictive policies of the rest of the world will permit, a revival of world trade."

A LABOR PROGRAM

Amendment to NLRA Is Held Necessary

Under the heading, "Toward a Labor Program," the report stated:

"The security and welfare of the industrial workers of the United States depends upon the sustained prosperity of the national economy as a whole. Without the expansion of the nation's enterprise, full employment, higher real wages, and progressively better working conditions cannot be realized.

"Labor policy must, therefore, be considered in relation to the forward or backward movement of the nation's productive enterprise and the policies governing the distribution of its fruits.

"The right of American workers to organize under leaderships of their own choosing and to bargain collectively with management is essential to protect the interests of the workers. It is proper that a right so basic be guaranteed by law.

"The National Labor Relations act requires responsible amendment alike in the interest of American workers and in the interest of a productive functioning of American enterprise.

Amendment's Objective.

"The objective of such amendment must be to maintain without wavering a firm guaranty of the right of free organization and collective bargaining, while so revising the provisions and procedures and so altering the spirit of the administration of the act as to surround the whole employé-employer relationship with a sense of complete fairness to all parties and all interests concerned.

"Government should stamp out dishonest labor rackets, whether operated alone or in collusion with undesirable forces in business and industry.

"What government does about its fiscal policies, about taxation, about the interrelation of government and business, as well as what it does about labor relations, with all that it does determined in terms of its effect on the production of goods and services, will enter into its success or failure in actually improving the living standards of the workers."

Reports for G. O. P.

Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of Republican committee which reported yesterday to the national committee.

A FARM PROGRAM

Administration's Policies Are Assailed as Unsound

Under the heading, "Toward a Farm Program," the report stated:

"In the judgment of this committee, which has carefully canvassed all these considerations, gross disparity of income between groups equally important to the nation's life, such as agriculture and industry, requires that government pursue policies that will help soundly to correct such disparity.

"In attempting to solve the stubborn problem of farm prosperity, we have tried many policies in the hope that they would correct this disparity—price fixing, loans above market prices, the plowing under of crops, the slaughter of animals, subsidized exports, imposed production controls, and market quotas, all supported by direct or indirect government subsidies.

Only Temporary Benefits.

"This extensive experimenting with all these policies has brought temporary benefits to some farmers in the form of cash benefits, but it has produced long-run dangers that have the seeds of disaster in them.

"As in the case of cotton, it has resulted in a loss of the farmers' world markets, which has been only partially made up to him by subsidies and by the sale to foreign countries of products at prices lower than our own citizens could buy them. The carrying out of these policies has expanded and entrenched a burdensome army of burocratic regulators.

"Policy of permanently scaling down the output of American farms is as unsound as a permanent scaling down of the output of American factories would be.

A Different Answer.

"If industry and agriculture are to make possible a better fed, better clothed, and better housed people, the answer is not to have agriculture and industry follow a policy of fewer goods at higher prices; the answer is to have both industry and agriculture organize for the production of more goods at prices that will so increase consumption that satisfactory total profit is realized by both manufacturer and farmer from the sale of a larger volume. By no stretch of the imagination can scarcity as a permanent policy, either in industry or in agriculture, be made socially helpful to the American people as a whole or bring the maximum possible financial return to manufacturer or farmer.

"Crop control by political decree, as a permanent policy, grows by what it feeds on and cannot really control, short of complete political domination of the farms of the nation.

"The major attack on the farm problem must be a broadly conceived drive to expand the farmer's market—domestic and foreign.

"Save for an abnormal demand the European war might create, the outlook for any marked expansion of farm exports in the near future is none too bright. Every possibility of increasing the foreign market for American farm products must be vigorously explored, but the readiest possibilities of expanding the American farmer's market will be found at home."

A BUSINESS PROGRAM

Government Relations Reform Demanded

Under the heading "Towards a Business Program," the report stated:

"The relationship between government and business has too often been oversimplified by both political leadership and business leadership.

"Political leadership has oversimplified this relationship when it has assumed, as at times the New Deal leadership has seemed to assume, that business is essentially an anti-social process, that the more successful it is the more sinister it must be, and that the primary relation of government to business is that of a policeman shadowing a suspicious character.

"Business leadership has oversimplified this relationship when it has assumed, as at times its less enlightened representatives have seemed to assume, that business is a private hunting preserve.

"The Positive Problem."

"Both these points of view are sterile. Both leave untouched the positive problem of a productive interrelation of government and business.

"Modern business is not an alien power standing outside the modern social order and threatening it. Modern business is an organic part of the modern social order and equipped to serve it, if a sound and productive relationship can only be established between it and government.

"Determining what that relationship should be is at the heart of the problem of a business program for government.

"The choice today is between a system of free enterprise and a politically planned and politically dominated economy. This choice has been clearly made by some European peoples.

"For the last seven years, many Americans have been wandering in a valley of indecision, on the assumption that we can, somehow, have both. We cannot. Until our choice is clear, American enterprise will struggle under the handicap of a paralyzing doubt and uncertainty respecting the future of both our political and our economic systems.

"It is clear to this committee that the best interests of the American people require that we preserve and modernize our traditional system of free enterprise with the minimum governmental regulation necessary to prevent abuse and promote justice in its operation.

"The present administration has experimented extensively with business reform and business regulation. This committee is convinced that the New Deal leadership—by its defeatist disbelief in the possibilities of the private enterprises of the American people, its insistence that the federal government must be looked to hereafter as the deciding factor in popular well being, and its persistent effort, thru its business reforms and business regulations, to subordinate economic leadership to political leadership—has demoralized the energies of American enterprise.

"Clear and Simple."

"The rôle of government in business reform and business regulation, if we are to preserve and perfect our system of free enterprise, is, in the judgment of this committee, clear and, in principle, can be simply stated.

"Government intervention in business should be a limited intervention, confined under normal circumstances, to the creation and maintenance of a socially protective framework of regulation within which our economy of free private enterprise can most effectively operate and be most surely preserved.

"In short, the purpose of government intervention in business should be to make the American economy of free private enterprise work, not to replace it with something else.

Competition Is Essential.

"The business reforms of an administration that really believes in the free enterprises of a free people and is determined to clear the road of obstacles to its effective operation will seek to rid the free enterprise system of the artificial rigidities that both business and political leadership have imposed upon it, will seek to enforce upon enterprise generally a thoroughly adequate responsibility to stockholders, workers, and the public, and will seek to provide cushioning against the shock of readjustments inevitable in a dynamic economy, but, above all, will seek to enforce effective competition.

"That certain regulations of business are needed, if we are to avoid earlier errors in our experience, is not arguable. Consumers must be protected against unfairly administered prices, as in the case of regulated natural monopolies. Small and new business must be protected against unfairly administered prices, as in the case of regulated natural monopolies. Small and new business must be protected against misleading promotion of either the products or the securities of business enterprise. Business itself must be protected by rational rules governing markets in securities, real estate, and commodities.

UNCERTAINTY BIG EVIL

Promote Rather Than Depress Business, Is Plea

"A cardinal principle of a regulatory system that is to promote rather than depress enterprise is that its regulations should be definite and easily ascertainable. The greatest deterrent to enterprise in regulation is uncertainty. There is nothing more discouraging to the enterpriser than inability to discover whether and how he may act, and whether, if he acts successfully, he will be permitted to succeed.

"To remove such uncertainty, two things are essential: [1] the boundaries and patterns of government regulation should be clearly defined, for certainty is impossible to the degree that regulation is left to the arbitrary exercise of delegated power, and [2] the regulatory agencies should be so reorganized that the jurisdiction and power of every agency is readily ascertainable by the average citizen.

Some Accepted Facts.

"We have long accepted the fact that, within our system of free enterprise, natural monopolies must be regulated as to prices or rates by government.

"We also accept the fact that various public services such as electric, gas, and water utilities may be owned and operated by municipal governments, and it is established that the federal government may, in connection with flood control and the exercise of other federal authority, produce and sell electric power. But we do not accept as being in the public interest vast outlays of public funds to produce power in competition with and in disregard of existing useful private facilities.

"We do not accept government competition with private enterprise in the many fields in which it has been undertaken by the New Deal.

"If we are to realize the full benefits of a freely functioning economy under intelligent regulation, government should not compete with its citizens in business enterprise.

"A vital part of the business program of government is, of course, its taxation policies as well as its reform or regulatory activities. It is imperative that government shall not place burdens on enterprise faster than enterprise can increase its capacity to carry them.

"The New Deal leadership protests that it believes in the private enterprise system and is only trying to make it work. But, whatever its intentions, the net result of its attitude and policies respecting business and industry has been a clear movement away from a risk taking, flexible, and competitive system of free enterprise toward a politically dictated and politically dominated system of enterprise.

"The result of all this has been an atmosphere of doubt, confusion, and uncertainty which has converted American enterprise into what has been, pretty consistently thru the New Deal years, virtually a day-to-day economy. Americans with savings to invest have been acting largely on the basis of short term confidence.

Willingness Is Gone.

"This willingness to risk does not exist today, because, under the New Deal leadership, Americans with savings do not know what limitations may, at any time, be placed upon private enterprise by the enlargement of government control of investment and management.

"The long-term confidence that produces the willingness to risk will not return until there is a decisive change in the temper and attitude of government toward the leadership, the processes, and the possibilities of American enterprise, until Americans willing to risk their savings in enterprise, in the hope of sufficient profit to justify their taking the risk of loss, are considered by the government as benefactors instead of malefactors.

"After seven years in which the New Deal leadership has persistently 'fired into the crowd' in what it insists has been only its pursuit of a chiseling minority, it is important that a new political leadership shall so restate the case for American free enterprise that a popular passion for its preservation will be aroused and its honest leaders given a sense that they are serving a significant national purpose when they mobilize investment, expand production, and provide jobs for eager millions, not only in great industries but in myriad small enterprises thruout the nation."

NEED FISCAL PROGRAM

National Debt Mounts Under Record Spending

Under the heading, "Towards a Fiscal Program," the report stated:

"Under the New Deal, contrary to the fiscal program announced by the Democratic party and its candidate in 1932, the country has experienced: [1] A progressive increase in expenditures—under a program of spending for recovery, [2] a succession of budget deficits which has resulted in doubling the national debt, [3] increased taxes, and [4] gold purchases, silver purchases, devaluation of the dollar, and the threat of further monetary experiments.

"The policies that are responsible for, or have permitted, this fiscal record have failed to accomplish full or sustained recovery and reëmployment.

"By heavy taxation and extensive borrowing the New Deal has diverted funds from private saving and investment in the belief that it was taking them from sterile inactivity and creating purchasing power. It has believed that each dollar spent by the government would be respent many times by workers, store keepers, manufacturers, and producers.

"The dollars spent performed in part the necessary function of providing relief and did bolster up the demand for consumer goods, but failed to stimulate appreciably the durable goods industries, which produce our equipment for working and living. Thus, the 'purchasing power' created was short lived and so failed to make any substantial contribution to recovery.

"Present emergency expenditures for public works beyond normal government requirements and activity should be progressively reduced as rapidly as improvement in industrial activity and employment indicate is prudent.

Balancing the Budget.

"In the present situation, a balanced budget must be sought largely thru such reduction of expenditures as can be accomplished without impairing essential services or depriving the unemployed of adequate relief, and thru policies in every field of government activity which stimulates a healthy expansion of private enterprise.

"The present administration, in seven years, has admittedly increased expenditures by more than 138 per cent. It should not be too difficult to accomplish a 20 per cent reduction from the present level, and it is reasonable to expect that with such a reduction and a substantial increase in the national income, federal expenditures and revenues can be brought into balance during 1942.

"A general plan of tax revision and coördination should be prepared on the basis of a systematic review of the entire field of taxation—local, state, and federal—for such purposes as: [1] to determine the most desirable fields of taxation for the various units of government, [2] to devise effective safeguards against duplication of taxation, [3] to provide definite information respecting the productive and equitable limits of taxation, and [4] to provide data respecting the most economical methods for their collection.

A Simpler Structure.

"In the interest of recovery, the simplification of our tax structure, and additional revenue, prompt consideration should be given to [1] elimination of all tax exemptions of future issues of federal, state, and municipal securities, [2] some reduction in the higher individual surtax rates, [3] the repeal of the capital stock and excess profits taxes, and [4] the abolition of the normal tax on dividends.

"Excess bank reserves now amounting to nearly five billion dollars make possible a sudden expansion of bank credit which would enable the volume of demand deposits to be doubled overnight. The further devaluation of the gold dollar, the release of the gold now in the stabilization fund, the maximum legal valuation of silver, the issuance of 'greenbacks' up to $3,000,000,000, could be used to add $10,000,000,000 or $12,000,000,000 more to those excess reserves and perhaps six times that amount to the total circulating medium.

"That so little price inflation has yet resulted is due to the relative inactivity of business, which has greatly reduced the velocity with which bank deposits are used. A revival of business could touch the match to the magazine of inflation prepared by New Deal policies.

Three Point Program.

"In this situation, the purpose of the United States to resist all inflationary tendencies and preserve the stability of the dollar should be further forcibly demonstrated by: [1] a substantial reduction of government expenditures, [2] repeal of the emergency monetary powers of the President, and [3] return to a fixed gold standard, the time and detailed conditions of such return to be fixed by congress upon the recommendations of a competent monetary and banking commission.

"Our usual commercial bank source of short term credit has been supplemented by an extraordinary variety of governmental agencies. Government operations in this field should be limited to seed, crop, and animal loans, and the agencies providing such credit should be simplified and consolidated."

WORSE THAN FORGOTTEN

Charges New Deal Leading Up a Blind Alley

Under the heading, "Toward a Social Program," the report stated:

"The New Deal leadership has talked much of the forgotten man. But, unless government pays attention to what for seven years, under the New Deal, has been the forgotten factor in the national problem, the factor of full recovery, the forgotten man will be worse than forgotten—he will be betrayed by a government that has led him to expect all sorts of social benefits which government will, in time, find that it simply cannot provide, because it has neglected to make economic America a going concern producing enough wealth annually to foot the bills.

"This is the blind alley into which the New Deal has led and is still leading America. And this is the basic blunder which the Republican party must, in the interest of the social welfare of the American people, set itself boldly to correct. This is the first step toward a sound and permanently feasible social program.

"Full Temporary Protection."

"This committee believes, without reservation, as it has said, that modern society must fully protect against privation any of its citizens unemployed thru no fault of their own until recovery from abnormal depression conditions makes their reëmployment possible. It regards relief, however, as a temporary protection against the destructive effects of unemployment, not as a permanent substitute for employment.

"It believes, therefore, that a realistic relief policy will be rooted in three considerations: [1] Relief to the suffering, the needy, and the unemployed as long as necessary, [2] self-respecting jobs at fair wages as soon as possible, and [3] the active rehabilitation of the unemployed so they will be equipped to step promptly back into productive employment as soon as full recovery is realized.

"The administration of all relief should be intrusted to state and local governments. The total relief problem should be unified, at least in the states. Local forces should determine whether their situation can best be met by work relief or direct relief.

A National Commission.

"A national commission, bipartisan in personnel and removed from all direct relation to party politics, might well be created to devise and enforce such conditions prerequisite to grants-in-aid from the federal government as would insure nonpartisan and efficient administration of relief funds.

"Fourth, the conditions attending grants-in-aid from the federal government, while leaving to state and local governments full freedom of choice as to methods of relief and their application to individual cases, should require that the state and local governments administer the relief funds, to which federal and state and local contributions have been made, thru bi-partisan agencies. Only so can relief be lifted above the suspicion of partisan manipulation.

MORE EFFECTIVE RELIEF

Calls for Better Efficiency at Lower Cost

"So administered, more effective relief can, in the judgment of this committee, be provided at a greatly reduced cost to taxpayers.

"The old age assistance provisions of the Social Security act were amended by the first session of the 76th congress to increase the maximum benefit, of which the United States will pay half, from $30 to $40 a month. There seems to be a consensus that at the present level the system of old age assistance should be retained.

"Altho old age assistance provisions apply to them, the present contributory old age insurance system does not embrace farm laborers, domestic servants, and some other smaller groups of workers. There is no logical ground for refusing to extend it to those classes.

Unemployment Compensation.

"General opinion, and experience in a number of states, indicates retention of the unemployment compensation system.

"The pay roll tax on employers, however, is a business depressant and should not be increased during the depression period.

"It is apparent that the combined resources of government in all its levels are not sufficient to build, or subsidize the building of, enough houses to make even a material dent on the housing problem. The $800,000,000 put out by the Federal Housing administration thru local housing authorities, supplemented by some $28,000,000 of annual subsidy, will take care of only about 2 per cent of those who at the moment are conspicuously badly housed.

"In other words, public housing, as contrasted with housing by private enterprise, cannot begin to fill the bill unless we are to go over to some wholly different economic system.

"Government in its housing efforts should therefore be limited to the rôle of example setter and stimulator. We should depend mainly on private enterprise for the construction of new dwellings and the reconditioning of old ones.

"The federal health program should not weaken by competition or directly supplant worthy existing health agencies, but should work towards implementing and developing the agencies already in existence.

"The plain fact is that the federal government is not now in position to add to its already staggering expenditures substantial new outlays on the important social services of government. Expenditures in these fields must come out of reductions in existing expenditures which the present administration has been making on matters of less importance to the welfare of the people and out of the increased national income that will follow a full restoration of American enterprise."

BATTLE OPENED ON ROOSEVELT'S ILLINOIS ENTRY

Stelle Faction Expected to Back Fight.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Vice President Garner's fight to keep the name of President Roosevelt off the Illinois Democratic primary ballot has been begun. Attorney John T. Conlon of Chicago went to Springfield last night to determine the form the battle will take.

Conlon, an election law expert, is a member of the firm of Smietanka, Conlon & Knaus. The senior member of the firm, Julius F. Smietanka, former internal revenue collector under President Wilson, is the Garner representative in Illinois, and the Washington instructions to prepare for action were sent to him.

Attorney Smietanka filed the petition putting the Vice President's name into the Illinois primary and included as a part of it Garner's statement of his candidacy.

Several Legal Routes Open.

There was no such statement filed with the Roosevelt petition and this omission will be one of the grounds on which the Garner attack will be based. Attorney Conlon said several legal routes are open for the attack.

Whether court proceedings eventually are begun or not, the Garner-Roosevelt question immediately became involved in the family row of the Illinois Democrats which started on Saturday with the announcement of Lieut. Gov. John Stelle that he will oppose the state machine candidate, Harry B. Hershey, for the governorship nomination.

It is believed that counsel for Garner will file objections to the Roosevelt petition with the state certifying board, to which Secretary of State E. J. Hughes, the state filing official, has said he will refer the question of the necessity of a certificate of candidacy on presidential preference petitions.

Board Disagreement Seen.

Under the primary law that board consists of Gov. Horner, Secretary Hughes, and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, who is running for renomination against the organization slate candidate, John C. Martin, and is an ally of Stelle's. If Gov. Horner's health does not permit him to attend the certifying board meeting the remaining members, Hughes and Barrett, now on opposite sides, might disagree.

But it is rumored that Lieut. Gov. Stelle might step in at this point and seek to act as the third member. He would do so on the contention that the governor's illness is within the constitutional classification of "disability" which authorizes the lieutenant governor to act in his stead.

Stelle declined yesterday to discuss this subject but it is said to be of such importance that it may play a major part in the antimachine battle that appears to be approaching extreme bitterness.

Anti-Regular Candidates.

The indications of that approach were signs that there may be an almost complete ticket of candidates against the regular organization slate. State Senator George M. Maypole has announced for lieutenant-governor. State Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski may announce himself for United States senator today. Three candidates for state treasurer already have appeared. They are Joseph B. Ford, township committeeman for Oak Park; John E. Egan, former alderman of Chicago's 13th ward, and State Senator Louis Menges of East St. Louis.

The regular organization leaders, apparently after telephone conversations between Chicago, Springfield, and Miami, Fla., where both Mayor Kelly of Chicago and National Committeeman P. A. Nash are vacationing, acted quickly to patch up their slate. State Treasurer Louie E. Lewis, who had been slated for congressman at large, was shifted to the lieutenant-governorship position vacated by Stelle. William Donald Forsyth of Champaign, an employé of Secretary Hughes, was slated tentatively for Lewis' former place for congressman at large.

Ald. John S. Boyle of the 16th ward, Chicago, whose petition for governor was completed yesterday, said it will be filed today.

Queen of North

Miss Marie Markert wearing crown as Queen of the North.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 18 [Special].—Marie Markert's friendly smile and personality, and her ability as a figure skater has won for her the crown as Queen of the North. She will wear it at the $181,000 ice palace in conjunction with the third annual Upper Peninsula Winter carnival being held here this week. Marie, 17 years old, a senior in Stambaugh High school, entered the contest as a dark horse candidate and won over queen contestants from ten other upper peninsula cities represented at the carnival. She appeared Saturday night in a specialty act during an ice revue being held in connection with the carnival.

LAVIN ATTACKS TRIP OF WELLES AS A GRAVE RISK

George S. Lavin, Republican candidate for congressman at large, yesterday described the departure of Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, for Europe as "the gravest risk this nation has taken since Col. House went abroad for Woodrow Wilson in 1916."

"It makes no difference whether the President has authorized him to make any commitments or not," Lavin said. "The saving fact is that the President has no legal power to give such an authorization. That authority was wisely vested by the founding fathers in congress."

Lavin urged that every candidate for the United States senate and the house of representatives be compelled to say whether he will pledge himself to vote against war unless this country is threatened with attack.

DU QUOIN WOMAN DIES AT 89.

Du Quoin, Ill., Feb. 18 [Special].—Mrs. Emma Miller, 89 years old, a member of one of Perry county's early families, died at her home here last night after a long illness. She was the mother of the late Harry C. Miller, for many years president of the First National Bank of Du Quoin.

EXPECT DEWEY'S NAME ON BALLOT IN NEBRASKA VOTE

G. O. P. Candidate Spends Most of Day in City.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Prospects are that the name of Thomas E. Dewey is likely to be entered in the Nebraska presidential primaries of April 9. The New York prosecuting attorney, a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, spent most of yesterday in Chicago after a tour that took him 7,500 miles thru the Pacific northwest and a segment of the midwest. On the Nebraska situation he declined to commit himself to a position beyond repeating that whether he files will be determined by his campaign managers at New York headquarters.

Dewey enthusiasts, however, have been urging that the New York racket breaker allow his name to be filed. Petitions for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, another candidate for the Republican nomination, have been signed up in Nebraska.

Charles S. Reed of Omaha, Vandenberg's state manager, has stated they will not be filed unless some one else gets into the running. Dewey petitions were sent out from Lincoln a few days ago by J. Lee Rankin, a Lincoln attorney. Petitions for Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio so far have not appeared.

Dewey was met at the train yesterday morning by Leonard C. Reid, a relative. There was a press conference in the Palmer House, after which the New York candidate spent most of the day at the Reid home. The Dewey party left at 3:30 p. m. over the Pennsylvania for New York. Russel Sprague of New York, Dewey's co-manager, joined the party here.

Dewey says he expects to make three more major speeches. One of these will be at the Founders' day celebration in Lincoln, Neb., March 6.

The schedule has not been completed, but it is possible Dewey may speak in Illinois and may go into Indiana and Missouri. He may make another trip to the west and south.

TAFT URGES G. O. P. PLANKS TO ENCOURAGE INDUSTRY AND FARMER

Swarthmore, Pa., Feb. 18 [Special].—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, carrying his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination into the Philadelphia district, tonight urged the Republican party to adopt a working program of coöperation with industry and agriculture for its 1940 platform.

The senator spoke before an audience that jammed Clothier Memorial auditorium on the campus of Swarthmore college. His address was the third of a series of four Cooper Foundation lectures on the presidential campaign arranged by the division of social sciences.

Senator Taft cited statistics on national unemployment, national income and farm prices, and declared that the figures themselves tell the story of the New Deal's failure to restore prosperity. He urged that the national budget be balanced within two years and that measures be taken to encourage the development of private enterprise thru repeal or revision of the regulatory measures which have prevented its growth.

JURY THAT SAT 95 DAYS IS LOCKED UP FOR 3D NIGHT

The Municipal court jury deliberating a verdict in the $196,000 suit of William J. Cleary vs. the Chicago Title and Trust company—the longest case in the court's history—was locked up last night for its third night in the Bismarck hotel after having weighed the evidence for 22½ hours. Judge Edward S. Scheffler called a halt in the all-day deliberations at 6:10 p. m. and ordered resumption today.

The jury of nine women and three men received the case Friday afternoon, after a hearing which began on Oct. 2 and took 95 court days. The jury also has set a record for deliberation. The previous longest Municipal court jury deliberation in a civil case was five hours; in a criminal case, two days.

Cleary's suit is for money he claims as a result of an escrow agreement in 1927. During the trial 1,500,000 words of testimony were taken and 1,400 exhibits received.

GERMAN REFUGEE ROBBED OF $1.50.

Alexander Isakower, 20 years old, a refugee from Germany, was robbed of $1.50 early yesterday when three men jumped from an automobile at 63d street and Greenwood avenue as he was walking to his home at 6029 St. Lawrence avenue.

G. O. P. ASPIRANTS MAKE DOWNSTATE TOURS THIS WEEK

Three major candidates for Republican state nominations will be touring downstate this week. Wayland Brooks and Richard J. Lyons, candidates for United States senator and governor, respectively, who have joined forces will start out this morning. Dwight H. Green, a candidate for senator, will open his week's activities with a meeting at Normal Wednesday night.

Brooks and Lyons have night meetings at Champaign tonight and at Salem tomorrow night. They both return for Chicago meetings on Friday.

Congressman Ralph E. Church, who filed his senatorship petition at Springfield on Saturday, returned to Washington yesterday. He said he would return to Chicago at the end of this week.

Gutknecht Flies Home; Train Reception Canceled

A big reception planned at the Polk street station for today for Judge John Gutknecht, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state's attorney, was canceled last night when the judge returned to Chicago from California ahead of schedule. His candidacy was announced on Friday by Attorney Raymond F. Hayes. At the time it was said a rousing welcome would be given him on his return on the Chief today. Judge Gutknecht, however, hurried home by plane because of the political situation. He said he would issue a statement on his candidacy today.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

AGAIN TO THE LEFT.

Mr. Robert Jackson, the new attorney general, has announced his decision to drop the prosecution of 16 persons who had been charged with recruiting volunteers in Detroit for the Republican army in the Spanish civil war. Mr. Jackson explained that the offenses alleged had occurred in 1937 and 1938; that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had completed its inquiry in March, 1939; that it was not until nine months later, last December, that Mr. Justice Murphy, then attorney general, ordered the district attorney in Detroit to seek indictments, and that it was not until Feb. 6 of this year that indictments were returned.

Mr. Jackson expressed the belief that if the law against recruiting for a foreign nation is to be enforced it should be enforced at the time the offenses are being committed, and he added that if recruiting for the Republican side in the Spanish war is to be punished, then his department will be morally bound to institute similar proceedings against the agents who, he intimated, had been active on the Franco side and against others who had sought volunteers for one side or the other in a number of other recent wars. "Unless," he said, "we are to proceed with all the cases arising during that period it would be manifestly unjust to single out these Detroit indictments." It sounds like a rebuke to Mr. Justice Murphy for promoting a manifest injustice as attorney general.

Mr. Jackson's principle appears to be that no one should be punished for breaking a law unless every one who broke that law is to be punished also. This is a counsel of perfection which few prosecuting officers hitherto have regarded as a practical guide to conduct. It would lead to some very curious results if it were applied, for example, to the crime of breaking and entering or to income tax frauds.

It is difficult to avoid the suspicion that Mr. Jackson is engaging in a tactical maneuver which the New Deal has frequently adopted. Following its defeats in the 1938 elections, the Washington administration was forced to the conclusion that its alliance with communists and men of violence was not pleasing the country. Accordingly a shift to the right was instituted. Thru the prosecution of Earl Browder and other communists, the New Dealers sought to convey the impression that communism and the New Deal were no longer partners in a glorious adventure. No doubt the unpopularity of the Russian invasion of Finland pushed the administration further along in this campaign of rehabilitation.

Now Mr. Jackson appears to be serving notice that the New Dealers didn't really mean it. Once more the course is being set toward the left. That has happened frequently in the last seven years. From time to time Mr. Roosevelt has found it expedient to denounce extremists, declare breathing spells, consult business men, make his peace with the moderates in the labor movement—only to resume his original trend as soon as popular distrust of him died down.

The attorney general's statement will serve another purpose. By declining to prosecute under the law against recruiting, Mr. Jackson has given encouragement to those who may be disposed to engage in such activities now or a few weeks or months from now. The nullification of this law may serve, like the repeal of the arms embargo, to obtain American participation in Europe's war against the wishes of the vast majority of Americans.

AS MR. WELLES FOLLOWS COL. HOUSE.

Second thoughts in Great Britain on Sumner Welles' approaching tour of the belligerent countries to round them up for a peace conference are expressed in the statement, unofficial, that if the United States will not take part in the war it need not expect to have any part in the peace. Many Americans, who have no desire to send another President to another Versailles, will find these second thoughts admirable. They observe, however, that there is an ominous parallelism carrying the events of 1940 along the line of events in 1916.

By May, 1916, Col. House, Mr. Wilson's foreign policy man and special envoy, was noting the transition from gratitude for early favors to reproaches. Capt. Guy Gaunt, British naval attaché in Washington, was a level headed man whom House liked. He informed the colonel: "Australia has always looked upon the United States as her ideal, but she now bitterly resents her not entering the war. He had a letter from a friend that in future Australia would purchase from Germany instead of the United States. He told of the deep undercurrent of feeling France holds against us for the same reason. He believes all the allies are resolved that we shall have no part in the peace conference."

Lord Grey, former governor general of Canada and a cousin of Sir Edward Grey, wrote to the New York Sun in June: "In this supreme crisis in which the best hopes of humanity are involved it appears to me you have failed. . . . Belgium has lost everything but her soul. What shall be said of America?"

"When Noel Buxton was here," Col. House wrote, June 29, 1916, "I told him how impossible it was to satisfy the allies. It is always something more. I thought if we went into the war the allies, after welcoming us warmly and praising us beyond our deserts, would later, when they found we were not furnishing as many men—or any men for that matter, for we have none—would begin to chide us, just as the French did the English, and say we were not spilling our blood; that we were shirkers, etc., etc. Nothing which it would be possible to do within a year after we entered the war would please them. It was tiresome, I told Buxton, to say the English were fighting for Belgium and that they entered the war for that purpose."

It may soon be tiresome again to find events and comments starting around the circle of 1916, 1917, and 1918. America wants neither the war nor the peace.

FREEDOM FOR THE RADIO.

The amendments to the radio law, introduced by Representative J. W. Ditter of Pennsylvania, are intended to reëstablish freedom of speech on the air. If the amendments are to be subjected to criticism it will be on the ground that they do not go far enough in freeing the stations from censorship and the threat of censorship.

Under the present law the federal communications commission, composed of political appointees, grants broadcasting licenses for only a year, tho it might grant them for three years. Until recently the permits expired in six months. Mr. Ditter would extend the term to a maximum of three years and a maximum of five. This amendment would give the owner of a station a greater sense of security, and to that extent he would be less susceptible to suggestion—to use a polite word—from the burocrats regarding the material furnished his listeners. The owner of a station is obliged to make a heavy investment in equipment and an even heavier one in programs if he is to succeed; he knows at present that he faces the loss of his money and his effort within a few months if he displeases the commission or the political party in power. In such circumstances, freedom of speech is not likely to flourish; or, to put it the other way 'round, criticism of the government, which the first amendment is supposed to protect, is likely to be milder than the welfare of the country frequently requires.

Another amendment would remove the ambiguity of the law which has encouraged the commission to claim the right to take action against a station without affording the owner a hearing. Mr. Ditter's bill provides that all hearings be held before, not after, licenses are revoked. These provisions do no more than extend to the radio the same protections of law which are accorded to every other business or occupation and in doing so afford the owner of a station some protection against loss when he is the victim of arbitrary or malicious persecution.

In the Mae West and some other cases the commission has given evidence of its determination to impose a censorship upon broadcasters. The Mae West case was made to order for the commission's purposes because it seemed to provide a moral sanction for censorship. A proposed change in the law would prevent the commission from taking punitive action against a station merely because its ideas of what constitute "public interest, convenience, and necessity" do not accord with those of the commission.

The excessive powers of the President over radio would also be restricted. The power granted under existing law to destroy a station by assigning its wave length to a government station is qualified by a requirement that another equally good frequency be given in return. The right of the President to take over stations in time of emergency would be confined, as it should be, to periods of actual war or actual insurrection.

These are moderate amendments, intended to correct existing or clearly threatened abuses and to reënforce the mandate of the constitution against censorship. If any congressman votes against these amendments it will be because he favors terrorizing the owners of radio stations and favors censorship.

THE GUILD SYSTEM.

[Los Angeles Times.]

Every so often somebody toys with the idea of restoring the medieval guild system of industrial relations, contending that such a system tends to greater stability and more widespread distribution of wealth. A candid examination of the facts hardly tends to support such a view. The guild system had its advantages and fitted well into the political system which accompanied and matched it—feudalism. The emphasis in those days was on duties rather than rights; of the latter men had few.

The system proved relatively inefficient as a producer and distributor of goods, and it was not until its restrictions were broken down and a régime of free enterprise was substituted that production really began to catch up with human demand.

A plan of guild restoration is currently being tried in Italy, with results so far which do not make the rest of the world very enviour. Improvements are no doubt possible in our régime, and numbers of them have already been effected; criticism of it is proper and may be useful. But its considerable merits must not be overlooked. It has not, as yet, brought about plenty of everything for everybody; but the middle ages did not produce plenty of anything for anybody. In these days the average wage worker is able to have comforts and luxuries in his home that palaces did not afford even a century ago.

Complete recasting of the results of the industrial revolution in an old mold might readily produce deformation rather than reformation.

AFTER THE CRACK OF DOOM.

What happened to the American stage after President Lincoln had been assassinated in a theater by John Wilkes Booth, gifted youngest son of a famous acting family? The answer is: Plenty. The grief and hysteria that swept the country were expressed, among other ways, in a bitterness toward the entire theatrical profession. There were minor incidents of mob violence.

We will quote from "The Theater Hand Book," a new encyclopedia of stage lore:

"The immediate effect of Lincoln's assassination was a vengeful attack on the American theater, so violent that it almost resulted in its suppression. Hundreds of people rushed into the lobby of the Burnet House in Cincinnati, hunting for Junius Brutus Booth Jr. [the assassin's brother], who had to remain hidden in a friend's room for days until he could be smuggled out of town. In Boston, Columbus, and Cleveland mobs hissed and injured actors, and held massmeetings for the purpose of closing the theaters."

Edwin Booth was then acting in Boston. The theater was promptly closed by its manager. He remained in Boston, and except for anonymous threats and a search of his effects by United States marshals, was not molested. He was ordered to Washington for the trial of the conspirators, but was not called as a witness. For the tragedy's effect upon his emotional life, see "Darling of Misfortune," a biography by Richard Lockridge.

Junius Brutus Booth Jr. was arrested in Philadelphia, with John Sleeper Clarke, also an actor, and taken to Washington for questioning. Some time before the tragedy he had written to John Wilkes Booth, advising him to abandon "the oil business." This sounded like code for "conspiracy" to the secret service. Clarke had in his possession a communication from the murderer, addressed "To Whom It May Concern," which hinted at a sinister intention. Clarke proved that he had not broken the seal until after the assassination.

Ford, the owner of the theater, and Laura Keene, star of the play, were also arrested.

DUST ON A HEART.

If you were flint I should remember fire
And proudly think upon the flaming birth
Of countless stars; but you are mainly earth,
A sullen acre whence no dreams aspire.
If you were even wind I could admire
The wanton way in which a wind is free,
But you are only dust that blinded me
A moment ere it settled in the mire.

Yet, even so, I cannot quite forget
What loveliness in common earth has root,
And still wait breathlessly to find a rose
One day unfolding from your breast; as yet
I have to learn no flower and no fruit
In arid reaches of the desert grows!

St. Michael Leads the Steeple Chase.

The steeple of St. Michael's church [Cleveland avenue and Eugenie street], perhaps the highest ecclesiastical structure in Chicago, measures 312 feet to the top of its cross. This church was completed in 1869 and destroyed in the Chicago fire. The new church used the original walls and pillars. Completion of the tower and steeple was delayed until 1888. The tower contains a set of five bells, a set of five chimes, and a clock. Its ground plan dimensions are 200 by 80 feet.

Minding the "Q's" but Not the "P's."

A linotype machine in the composing room of the Elgin Courier-News lost its "P" key recently, but the inspired compositor set a political article half a column long as if nothing had happened. Here is an example of the result:

"At several recent Reublican rallies there has been definite indication that the arty believes it can carry Illinois in the 1940 camaign. One romiment seaker . . . said 'our arty has lost its defeatism.'"

STARVED ROCK IN SNOW.

The massive rock raises its snow-crowned head
In the moonlight. Majestic, silent; holding court
For historic phantoms: Dauntless La Salle who led
His men to the highest ledge and built the Fort
Saint Louis. Brave Tonti, his magic silver hand
The Indians feared a-gleam in the ghostly light,
And, silhouetted 'gainst the sky, the band
Of Illinois at bay upon this wooded height.

Those misty strands that swing on the sheer dark slope?
The water-baskets' severed cords that sigh
Above the river. Then the besieged's last hope
Waned and the weakened tribe prepared to die.
Its deepest beauty the tragic Rock will show
Not when the earth is green, but muted in the snow.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Cutter will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE THREAT OF MEASLES.

MEASLES continues to be one of our most highly contagious diseases. With youngsters — particularly those under 5 years of age—it may be a serious ailment, one that is disseminated chiefly by spray from coughing or sneezing. Because of its highly infective nature, no person who has not had the malady should be allowed to care for those who are afflicted.

From the time of exposure until illness appears from eight to twelve days usually elapse. This is called the period of incubation, or hatching, and the interval is required for the virus to develop sufficiently to be responsible for symptoms. Then comes the so-called catarrhal stage which lasts for three or four days with the characteristic inflammation of the eyes, nose, bronchial tract, and the typical eruption. There are cases so mild that the child is really not uncomfortable. On the other hand, some will be about as miserable as can be. Chilling, vomiting, and diarrhea may be present and the fever may rise to 104 degrees Fahrenheit or higher. Only rarely will convulsions occur and then—as a rule—in those who are older.

About the fourth day, out comes the eruption. This is preceded by a drop in temperature and—frequently—by the subsidence of all the manifestations, including the cough. The "measly" patches will be noted first behind the ears, on the neck, and on the forehead. The blemishes then spread quickly over the body and—by the third day—the epidermis is fairly well covered. The grouping of the reddish lesions make them look like blotches rather than separate raised areas. In fact, in some regions it may be impossible to distinguish a solitary macule, so extensive is the reaction. The fever again jumps to 103 degrees Fahrenheit or more and the pulse and respiration increase accordingly. When the "breaking out" reaches its maximum the mercury reading will fall and—one or two days thereafter—the skin will begin to return to normal and all symptoms abate. A brownish stain on the epidermis may persist for a week or more and fine scaling may ensue.

The difficulty is far more important, however, from the standpoint of complications and it is essential that the best nursing care be provided in order that bacterial invaders shall not attack the weakened patient. With the child well on the road to recovery an earache may be complained of and the drum be observed to bulge outward. Incision may be necessary to release the pus gathered within this space.

With younger children, bronchopneumonia is all too common. Here again—because the little sufferer is debilitated by the original disorder—microbes by the thousands may attack the bronchial mucous membrane as well as the air sacs. One of the best procedures to help ward off lung involvement is to keep the air of the room moist with a boiling croup kettle. Compound tincture of benzoin may be added to the water.

Since the disease is so widespread, the chances are that every one will encounter it at some time or other. Nevertheless, it is desirable to take every precaution. "possible we must arrange for a reprieve until the tot is older—past his fifth birthday, at least—when he will be able to repel the onslaught with greater certainty.

The plan of inoculating suspects with convalescent serum is far more beneficial than most of us realize. Only about a teaspoonful of this material need be employed. The fluid is injected into the muscles not later than the fourth day after contact. Thru the adoption of this method many an epidemic among school children has been brought to an abrupt close. Even tho the little ones "catch" the disease, its duration will be shorter and the after-coming disorders less severe.

What about fumigation? There is little value in the use of sulfur gas or even that of formaldehyde. The room should be stripped of all hangings and carpets and all such articles—as well as bedding—should be sunned and aired thoroly. Apparently the virus will not survive long outside the body.

Fluid foods should be given until improvement is well established. The use of camphorated oil over the chest and back is one of those old fashioned but valuable remedies that will be of assistance in relieving the catarrh of the bronchial passages.

COUSINS.

W. writes: I have just found out that my great-grandmother and my husband's grandfather were sister and brother. If we have any children, would there be any danger of their not being quite right because of this relationship?

REPLY.

You are second cousins once removed. This distant relationship cannot be considered as significant. No defects should appear.

SHOCKING.

R. E. writes: What is meant by "having electricity in one's body"? What causes it?

REPLY.

You probably refer to static electricity—generated from the friction of your body with the air, rugs, furniture, etc. of the room. You can "spark" to your heart's content.

EXPOSURE TO T. B.

T. S. B. writes: My two children, aged 12 and 18, were exposed to a patient with tuberculosis. Should they be tested?

REPLY.

Yes. Both your children should have a tuberculin test. The physician will then decide whether X-ray chest films need be taken.

SECRETARIES AND THEIR SECRETARIES.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—The Congressional Record of today records the fact that Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, has asked for an appropriation to create in his department "the second assistant secretary of agriculture."

Henry is long on secretaries. It would seem from the swarm of pay roll patriots in his department he ought to be able to do something for the farmers.

On page 340 of the Congressional Directory, published in April, 1939, the secretaries in Henry's outer office are as follows:

Undersecretary.
Assistant secretary.
Assistants to the secretary—three of them.
Assistant to the secretary in charge of Civilian Conservation corps' activities.
Economic adviser.
Special adviser.
Private secretary to the secretary.
Assistant to the under secretary.
Secretary to the under secretary.
Assistant to the undersecretary.
Secretary to the undersecretary.
Special assistant to the secretary.
Director of extension work.
Director of research.
Director of personnel.
Director of finance and budget officer.
Director of information.
Director of Marketing and regulatory work.
Solicitor.

In addition to the foregoing, Henry now wants another secretary to be called "the second assistant secretary of agriculture." We wonder if Henry himself does any work. He certainly needs a lot of assistance. If he'd resign and his entire staff were fired, agriculture might make some progress.

Then on the following pages, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, and 351 of the Congressional Directory, are listed hundreds of other underlings in his department, all with secretaries and secretaries to the secretaries, until you can't rest. We wonder if the office boys have assistants and if the stenographers and the like have secretaries and assistant secretaries and undersecretaries.

No wonder they cannot balance the budget; no wonder the national debt has almost reached its limit of 45 billions; no wonder the nation is taxed to death and all this under the guise of helping the independent farmer; no wonder Roosevelt and Hank Wallace and these thousands of tax eaters want a third term for Roosevelt and four more years of easy pickings for themselves.

Now it's proposed to blanket them all under civil service so that when the Republicans take over the nation in 1940 these 340,000 jobs will be frozen and it's hoped by the New Dealers that it will then be impossible to dislodge them. Right now they are advocating civil service, but not so in 1932 or 1936. Now with the New Deal on the skids and the certainty that the next President will be a Republican, they have cooked up this scheme now pending in congress to first place all these jobholders under civil service before the Republicans get a chance to fire them and abolish hundreds of these useless bureaus.

UTOPIA.

De Kalb, Mo., Feb. 13.—In 10 years from now for each baby born in the United States the federal government will provide a fund of not less than $10,000 to be used for the care, the development, and education of that child until it has reached the age of 18 years, which will then be the age of maturity and citizenship. From that time on employment at a wage of not less than $3,000 will be guaranteed and a checkoff will be assigned to the government to liquidate the advanced loan of $10,000. If private enterprise offers employment the young person may accept it or may choose federal employment. When the world war ended the old political régimes dissolved; in 1929 the old commercial and industrial systems collapsed. But don't let that cause you to believe that God—a progressive God—is going to let the people down.

I would like to know just why we have to pay more for oil each year. Is it harder to get? Has not more modern equipment made it less costly to produce?

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Every day, on all sides, we hear this: "The mistakes of 1914-'17 must not be repeated!" But aren't we repeating them? We have now the selfsame appeal to our humane sentimentalism that we had in 1914-'17. We have the same national head of a relief fund—Herbert Hoover. In 1914-'17 it was for Belgian relief. Now it is for Finnish relief. We can sympathize, yes, but the moment we give loans to or take up collections for a belligerent nation we are headed for trouble. We have millions of undernourished and poorly sheltered people in our own country whom we should help first.

We were drawn into the last war mainly by vicious propaganda dished out to our absorbent minds by British and French imperialists, and last, but not least, by our rich who stood to make added fortunes from the sacrifice of human blood on the battlefield. How useless that sacrifice was we all now know. We cannot remain neutral in this country if we take sides. The youth of this country must never again lay down their lives on a foreign battlefield.

P. MILLER.

THE BAND WAGON.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—As usual, after the parade has formed, F. D. R. rushes to its head, to "lead" it—I refer to his anti-communist speech to the Youth congress. He reminds me of a man, who in every conference to which he had been invited, when asked for an opinion, invariably said "I don't think it will work, but it won't hurt to try it"—so, no matter how it turned out, he was right. So it is with F. D. R. After he sees the majority of Americans take a stand he is for it, no matter how much of an about-face it requires of him. Who said "Leader"?

THEODORE KARGON.

DISCOVERY.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—If F. D. R. can now persuade his wife about his great discovery of the dictatorship in Russia, that will make it unanimous.

J. M. VALERIO.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

"SPENDTHRIFT TRUST."

Chicago, Feb. 14 [Legal Friend of the People].—I have a son who is very careless about money matters, so I would like to leave him my money [about $4,000] so he will only be able to draw $25 a month of it as long as it lasts.

1. Can you suggest any way that I can arrange this, please?

2. Also tell me how much $1,000 in government bonds will be worth 10 years from now.

3. Are baby bonds just the same as above?

4. Are there any government bonds paying monthly or yearly interest, and how much?

A. B.

1. It seems probable that what is called a "spendthrift trust" would be appropriate. We advise you to employ an attorney.
2. Take this up with your banker.
3. Baby bonds are small denomination bonds.
4. See 2.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JOINT OWNERSHIP.

Chicago, Feb. 15 [Legal Friend of the People].—My sister owns real estate in Iowa. She owes two and one-half years' taxes on same. I have agreed with her to pay half the taxes and half of any other expenses. In return she is to give me half partnership of estate.

1. What sort of papers do we sign to make this legal?

2. Can you get partnership blanks? If so, where?

3. Would a written agreement signed before a notary public be legal?

W. P. O.

1. Depends in part on whether you wish to provide for survivorship. We advise you to have a personal interview with an attorney who can consider the surrounding circumstances and advise as to the wisdom of a joint tenancy. We attach a statement of the Illinois rules as to joint tenancy.
2. A partnership would hardly seem appropriate.
3. Depends on the wording of the agreement.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

37. RHODE ISLAND.

There are two theories as to the origin of this name. One is that it derives from the Dutch words "roodt eylandt," meaning "red island," and was so named because of red clay found along the shore. The other theory is that it was named because of the resemblance of the island on which Newport is now located to the Isle of Rhodes in the Mediterranean. Rhode Island was one of the original states.

Rhode Island state seal. An anchor and the state motto: Hope. Date in outer edge [1636] is that of first settlement.

Rhode Island is called Little Rhody and the Plantation state. The first name refers to the fact that it is the smallest state. The second was given because Rhode Island was formerly known as the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations. The Rhode Island motto is "Hope." The state flower is the violet, and the state tree the maple.

EDUCATOR RAPS GRADING SYSTEM IN HIGH SCHOOL

Says Pupils Learn More Under New Plan.

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—High school students learn more if freed from the worry of striving for high marks thruout their scholastic careers, the 34th annual report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching asserted today.

W. S. Learned.

Three Pennsylvania high schools coöperated with W. S. Learned in an experiment in what was called responsible learning. This experiment looked toward the abolition of the course unit, the credit and the teacher's mark as the chief controls over the pupils. It replaced these with what was termed a controling interest in the meaning of ideas and in a pupil's ability to use them intelligently.

Learned, a member of the Carnegie staff, reported that results show pupils learn more and better on their own responsibility than when bound by conventional grading systems.

140 Students Take Part.

Students participating in the three year experiment numbered 140 and represented Altoona High school, Cheltenham Township High school at Elkins Park, and Radnor Township High school at Wayne.

In the experiment pupils were chosen at the end of the ninth year. Instead of working on a time schedule during the three year test, the students worked according to outlined programs which dispensed with credits, tests, and marks.

"This was done," Learned said, "because a true thought sequence, an alternative solution for a problem, or the fresh expression of an idea no sooner gets under way in a pupil's mind under the old system than it is interrupted and must give place to a similar start with another teacher in some other subject in order to convince the school administration that the pupil is progressing evenly on all fronts."

Teacher Follows Thru.

The fundamental innovation, the report said, was in making a selected teacher in a given field responsible for directing all the group's studies in that particular subject thruout the three year period.

Each pupil worked uninterruptedly in every field thruout those years, his study being adjusted to fit his comparative ability.

WAGNER URGES FEDERAL BOARD FOR MEDIATION

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 [Special].—Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], proposed today the creation of a three member federal board for voluntary mediation of employé-employer disputes over wages, hours, working conditions and other factions not within the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations board. The three mediators would be paid $10,000 a year each.

Looked upon in some quarters as an administration effort to meet part of the criticism directed at New Deal handling of labor problems, the proposed bill appeared assured of at least a measure of bipartisan support.

Wagner explained in a statement that his bill "does not amend or modify the National Labor Relations act, nor do the functins of the two measures merge or conflict in any way." He said he would introduce the legislation tomorrow.

Under the terms of the bill, as Wagner explained it, it would be the general duty of the mediation board to bring about agreements on rates of pay, rules, and working conditions, including wherever possible, provision for the final adjustment of grievances or over interpretation of such agreements.

The bill would carry no penalties or coercive measures, Wagner said.

SANTA FE TRAINS DELAYED; BLAME ENGINE TROUBLE

Engine trouble was blamed by Santa Fe railroad officials last night for long delays in the arrival of two trains from California, the Super Chief and the Chief. The Super Chief, due at 1:45 p. m., arrived at 4:55 p. m. The Chief, due at 1:25 p. m., arrived at 5:15.

Railroad officials said the Chief, preceding the Super Chief, fell behind schedule. The Super Chief was sent on ahead. But it developed trouble with its Diesel engine at Ancona, six miles south of Streator. It blocked the tracks against the Chief and both trains were delayed until repairs could be made.

APOLOGY STARTS FINGER NIPPING, POLICE ARE TOLD

Niles Center police offered an official version yesterday of the circumstances under which Mrs. Velma Jones, 30 years old, of 1008 Oakwood avenue, Wilmette, had the tip of her right first finger bitten off early Saturday in a tavern at Simpson and Niles Center roads.

The police said that Mrs. Jones' husband, Harry, a pharmacist, brushed Miss Della Stanwood of 564 Green Bay road, Winnetka, as he danced past her. His apology, as the police have it, was "Pardon me, grandma." Miss Stanwood is 48 years old.

Miss Stanwood was released in $2,400 bond on a charge of mayhem after swearing out complaints before Justice of the Peace Fred Kloman in Niles Center charging Mrs. Jones with assault and battery and Jones with disorderly conduct and assault and battery.

5 TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION LOCALS OUSTED IN CITY

Five Chicago locals of the International Typographical union were suspended yesterday by the Chicago Federation of Labor on orders of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. The Typographical union was suspended recently by the federation's executive board, meeting in Miami, Fla., for its refusal to levy a one cent assessment on members. The union leadership said the assessment was against its rules and that the funds to be raised were intended to promote strife within labor's ranks by serving as a war chest against the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The locals suspended were No. 16, representing the majority of Chicago printers; No. 2, comprising mailers in newspaper and publishing plants; No. 903, with a membership drawn from printers on Hebrew language papers; No. 330, whose members are Czecho-Slovakian language printers, and No. 9, printers on German language publications.

Similar action has been taken in other large cities with I. T. U. locals. The Chicago federations' action deprives the I. T. U. of its 24 delegates in the federation's deliberations.

FIVE CHICAGOANS LAND SAFELY ON FOOTBALL FIELD

Five Chicagoans, riding in a chartered plane, landed safely on the snow-covered football field of the La Salle Military academy at Oakdale, N. Y., on Long Island not far from New York City, Saturday night when academy officials heard the plane overhead and switched on the field's floodlights.

The pilot, Anthony Mackiewicz, 39 years old, had circled over the academy grounds when his fuel supply ran low, according to dispatches yesterday. He first started to land before he noticed the water, near a green dock light. Then the football field was lighted and be came down safely. The plane was damaged when it struck a goalpost, but the passengers climbed out uninjured.

The passengers were Theodore Stacey, 30, an accountant, who had chartered the plane for a trip to Providence, R. I.; James Allegretti, 37, a restaurant owner; Mitzi Lamarr, 22, a dancer, who lives in the Devonshire hotel, and Gilbert Grimm, 38, a pilot, of 4739 West 65th street.

Mackiewicz, who lives at 6635 South Sacramento street, had flown blind from Bellefonte, Pa., when the plane's radio failed. At the time of the forced landing he was searching for New York's La Guardia airport.

PARISH PUT UNDER INTERDICT IN ROW OVER NEW PRIEST

Crowd Blocks Path; Taunt Archbishop's Agent.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 18 (AP).—Archbishop Joseph Schrembs placed angry parishioners of Holy Redeemer Catholic church under an interdict today after they turned back 60 policemen seeking to escort a church official and a new pastor to the rectory. Seven men were arrested and charged with disturbing the peace.

[AP Wirephoto.] Archbishop Schrembs.

Under the archbishop's order, the parish members cannot receive the sacraments of the church until they have done penance. The interdict is the first in the history of the Cleveland diocese.

Today's incident marked the third refusal to permit installation of the new pastor, named by Archbishop Schrembs in preference to one favored by the church members.

Church and School Closed.

A similar outbreak by the parishioners occurred a week ago. They oppose the appointment of the Rev. Vincent Caruso, O. D. M., to succeed the late Rev. Martin Compagno, O. D. M. They seek to have named the Rev. Louis Loi Zedda, O. D. M., Father Compagno's assistant for seven years.

Father Caruso sought early in January to assume his new duties at the church, on Cleveland's east side in an Italian district, but was denied entrance.

Last Sunday Msgr. Floyd L. Begin, an official of the diocese, appeared with Father Caruso for the installation, but again they were met by what the diocesan newspaper called "a noisy, angry crowd." The church was closed and locked, as well as a parochial school attended by 200 children.

Crowds Block Way.

Today's disturbance followed an attempt to reopen the church, uniformed escorts of the Knights of St. John and fourth degree Knights of Columbus members assisting the churchmen as well as police.

As the crowd, assembled in the semisleet and rain since early morning, booed and shouted "Go home," Msgr. Begin walked toward the rectory, police attempting to clear a path. Small boys in the crowd snowballed the pluned escort.

At the entrance a knot of parishioners refused to budge, taunting the policemen. The churchman retired to his automobile. Later he stepped to the running board and addressed the crowd, imposing the interdict.

Conditions of the penance, it is believed, will be prescribed by the archbishop at a later date.

All Church Rites Banned.

While the interdict is in force, Msgr. Begin explained, none of the 1,000 members of the parish may be married validly in the eyes of the church, nor can they receive the sacraments of confirmation, baptism, and penance.

"The interdict will not be lifted," Msgr. Begin asserted, "until the parish receives without qualification the priest whom the archbishop sends there as pastor. That priest is Father Caruso."

Archbishop Schrembs tonight said he was "exceedingly sorry anything like this should happen."

"I have been exceedingly kind to all these people of the nationality groups, particularly the Italians," the churchman asserted. "I hope that they will come to their senses and stop giving public scandal. It is a real public scandal and it makes a holy show of these people themselves."

AIR AUTHORITY WILL TRY ITS OWN OFFICIAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 [Special].—The Civil Aeronautics authority ruled today that one of its own officials must stand trial for violation of the civil air regulations just as would any other pilot. It designated Oswald Ryan, one of its five members, to sit as a trial examiner to determine whether or not Chris M. Lample, assistant chief of its own airways engineering division, should have his commercial pilot's certificate suspended or revoked for alleged flying at too low an altitude over Baltimore.

Lample crashed in one of the authority's planes Sept. 5 last near Baltimore. The air safety board found that "loss of power from maneuvering the airplane at extremely low altitude" was the probable cause of the accident and that a contributing factor had been the "action of the pilot in maneuvering the aircraft over a populated area at low altitude."

STATE TO CLOSE EVIDENCE TODAY IN BOWEN TRIAL

State's Attorney Samuel Shapiro of Kankakee county said yesterday the case against A. L. Bowen, state welfare director, would be completed today. Bowen is on trial in the Circuit court in Kankakee on a charge of malfeasance growing out of the recent typhoid epidemic in the Manteno State hospital which took 60 lives.

Shapiro said he would finish questioning Dr. C. Milton Eberhart, epidemiologist for the state health department, who made a study of the epidemic. He said he then plans to recall to the stand Clarence W. Klassen, chief sanitary engineer for the department, and Dr. A. C. Baxter, health department head. He also will read health department water reports to the jury and question local witnesses in an effort to prove that construction workers had no contact with patients or attendants at Manteno, but nevertheless became ill after drinking the water.

The defense has attempted to show that human carriers and not polluted wells caused the epidemic.

He was dead, with a revolver beside him. At Liska's home, 2458 Hutchinson avenue, his widow, Anna, and two other daughters, Bernice and Elizabeth, said Liska had never shown any outward grief or seemed morbidly depressed.

He was famous almost from the time he appeared as first clarinet at the age of 11 in Denver with an orchestra that included his father and three brothers. He later turned from the clarinet to the then unpopular and seldom used saxophone and became its virtuoso.

Hawaii Draws Chicagoans for Winter Visits

BY JUDITH CASS.

THANKS to the movies and to cross word puzzles certain aspects of Hawaii are familiar to all. Every one is acquainted with the grass skirt, the hula dancer, and a three letter word for an Hawaiian dish, which can be only "poi." But, as many Honolulu bound Chicagoans soon will find, Hawaii has more than the obvious to offer, for in these islands there exists a happy balance between practicality and romance.

Mrs. James G. Alexander, the Frank E. Wilhelms, the Huntington B. Henrys, the Edwin E. Sheridans, and Frank McNair and his daughters, Mrs. Glendon T. Gerlach and Mrs. Frank S. Sims, all will have spent several weeks in the Hawaiian Islands this winter. Mrs. Alexander has a handsome home in Palm Beach, Fla., which she leased to the Theodore Buhls of Grosse Pointe, Mich., when she decided to spend the winter in a different place. She sailed last Thursday for Honolulu.

The Wilhelms, the Henrys, Mr. McNair, Mrs. Sims, and Mrs. Gerlach will be on board the Matsonia when it sails from San Francisco next Friday. The Sheridans already are in Honolulu.

Land of Poetic Names and Strange Customs.

Hawaii has all of the conveniences of modern civilization—gas, electricity, and refrigeration—but where else could one live in The Flower Wreath from Heaven hotel? It also is a country of superstitions. There are the "marchers of the night," departed chiefs and warriors who tramp the roads at night to the roll of drums, looking for their descendants.

A sensitive tourist may hear what native ears do each night at dusk, a barking and whining of dogs that announce the daily arrival of Poki, a huge ghost dog, which appears on the horizon at that hour. A good cook, who receives from $10 to $15 a week, may cost that much in the brandy and red handkerchiefs she may offer to appease Pele, the goddess of volcanoes. The same offerings, upon occasion, can arouse the goddess. On the practical side, however, it costs only $4 a month to rent garage space for a car.

Honolulu long has been popular with honeymooners. The latest young couple to have that romantic spot for their wedding trip destination are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boyd Jones [Nancy Brown], who were married last Saturday. They, too, will be on board the Matsonia when it sails Friday. It will be a second visit to Honolulu for Mrs. Gerlach, who was there 10 years ago. She and her father and sister will stop in Phoenix, Ariz., on their way back to Chicago.

Badminton Tourney to Be Started March 8.

In this day and age when anything goes, as a rule, in the way of sports costumes, it is interesting to note that the men and women who will take part in the Midwest Badminton association championships will be expected to wear white costumes. White clothes, of course, have become the tradition on tennis courts during tournament play, altho it has been the various clubs, and not the tennis associations, that have insisted on the rules of dress.

The championships, which are the third annual ones, for badminton is comparatively new in its popularity, will be held March 8, 9, and 10, and have been sanctioned by the American Badminton association. The courts of the Fort Dearborn Badminton club at the Naval Reserve armory, Randolph street at the lake, will be the scene of play.

The North Shore Service league of the Chicago Maternity center will sell programs at the tournament. Mrs. D. Frank Webb of Glenview is chairman of the program committee. Mrs. Clarence Nichols is president of the league, which is one of six in the Chicago area that contributes to the support of the center, situated at Newberry and Maxwell streets. Mrs. Nichols and Mrs. Webb both are badminton enthusiasts.

William C. Lenhart is in charge of entries, which are expected to exceed 300. Seventy clubs in the central states will be represented. The annual meeting of the association will be held at a luncheon on the 10th. There will be a buffet supper for the players on the night of the 9th.

Alfred Duff Cooper to Lecture Next Monday.

Alfred Duff Cooper, formerly British first lord of the admiralty, will take the place of Pierre Van Paassen as speaker at the Woman's Athletic club at 11:30 o'clock next Monday. The subject of the lecture will be "The World We Live In." Mr. Van Paassen's talk was postponed because of his illness.

Dr. Clarence Manion, professor of constitutional law at the University of Notre Dame, will speak on "God and American Government" at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Woman's Athletic club. The lecture is sponsored by the Chapel guild of the Cenacle. Hostesses will be Mrs.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Bagdad-on-the-Pacific

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 18.—What the Martin Dies' investigation of Hollywood will uncover is that there is a very small group of movie communists, but he'll find that most of us out here are decent, lawabiding citizens. In fact, when it appeared that congress would choke off the Dies committee appropriation, Harry M. Warner offered his own dough to extend the work of ferreting out subversive groups. Two years ago there was a communistic drift; Russia's invasions of Poland and Finland acted as a cauterizing agent.

Dorothy Robinson, sister of Casey Robinson, able scripter, will wed Robert Blees, writer. . . . Los Angeles women's clubs were going to boycott the Moss Hart-Kaufman show because the latter took a blast at California women. It's been playing to capacity ever since. . . . Lucille Fairbanks is the best guarantee that Eddie Albert will return to Hollywood. . . . I like Arthur Murray's definition: "Hollywood is the place where people work themselves to death to earn a living."

Loretta Young and Tom Lewis a twosome. . . . Hard to see how David O. Selznick can miss the Irving Thalberg award in this year's Academy ratings. His production of "Gone With the Wind" had Thalberg taste, richness, and showmanship. . . . Mickey Rooney's first date on returning to the coast was with Jewel Hart, the cutie who scored in the road show of "Brother Rat." . . . The Eleanor Powell-Merrill [M.-G.-M.] Pye romance, which was a scoopee in this space, is building into a conflagration. . . . Jean Parker and Doug Dawson are in a dither. . . . Universal, Warner's, and 20th Century-Zanuck are bidding for an Abbott and Costello picture, with Universal having the inside track. . . . Representatives of the "Hellzapoppin'" comics are here to look over the layout. . . . Lew Ayres and Mary Beth Hughes at Sardi's, reading the newspaper story that Ginger Rogers will get a divorce.

Judging from the terrific publicity Warner's is sending out on Edward G. Robinson, they must be tiffing with Paul Muni. . . . When Alex Woollcott lost his voice in the Los Angeles stand of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," George S. Kaufman took Woollcott's place, much to the unhappiness of Collaborator Moss Hart, who'd rather be an actor than an author. On Saturday night, Kaufman coughed while reading a line. Norman Krasna swears that before the cough had died away, Moss was back in the dressing room with a full stage make-up on. . . . Carol Stone, Fred's daughter, and Henry Wilsson, the agent, are going to elope. . . . Is Lana Turner the third bride of Artie Shaw? . . . Judy Garland and Musician Lennie Soos confirming the line here. .

While Randy Scott is in the east, Reggie Gardiner is escorting Natalie Draper. . . . The next Dietrich picture goes to the cameras in May. . . . Billy Wilkerson denies that Joe Pasternak has any dough in Ciro's. "I'd never have a partner," says Will, "because I could never get along with one." . . . Alan Curtis' ex, Priscilla Lawson, at the Troc with Bill Hunt. . . . Conrad Nagel and Harold Haas vieing for the attentions of pretty Bonnie Edwards. She was the beloved of Jockey Sammy Renick. . . . Joe E. Lewis is being held over at Miami for an extra month, so the Trocadero deal is dead. . . . Patricia Ellis and Alan Baldwin cutting up rhumba touches at Ciro's. . . . Mike Curtiz ordering a steak in the Warner commissary: "Rare, not well-to-do." . . . Gloria Franklin, the kid who sang in "Lady of the Tropics," has a half-nelson on Wrestler Bob Gregory's heart. . . . Recommended: Lola Jensen, Lurline Uller, Margrit Wyler, and Archie Twitchell in "Hit and Run" at the Mayan theater, in Los Angeles, a pleasant night's entertainment. If Hollywood will support it, 75 people will eat regularly.

Gov. E. P. Carville of Nevada is sending out bids to the local pressmen for the "Virginia City" première outside of Reno on March 16-17. He's a pretty good shill, too. He writes: "Virginia City is a ghost city, yes, but the evidence of its lusty past is on every hand." Why guv!! . . . Ken Murray is making passes at Cletis Caldwell, Miss Oklahoma. I didn't know the "Okies" were so pretty. . . . Now that Jack Benny's "Rochester" has clicked, Paramount is doing it to death with colored valets in every comedy. . . . They even gave Fred MacMurray one in "Remember the Night." . . . Flu has retired Tyrone Power from circulation. . . . Lupe Velez with Billy Seymour, the Hope Diamond of the jitterbugs.

Rudy Vallee tells pals that he will wed "Pat" Dane in the spring. . . . The Betty Grable contract at 20th Century-Fox, signed by Jules Stein, has a clause in it which permits her to buy it back for 10 G's. . . . Paramount Starlet Kay Stewart and Bill Proctor an item. . . . Add curios: The bellhop in "Dr. Ehrlich" is Louis Adlon, whose family owned the famous Adlon hotel in Berlin. . . . Now it's Jackie Cooper and Ursula MacGowan. . . . Orson Welles confides that the most fascinating girl he's ever met is Paulette Goddard. . . . Charlie Einfeld will kid Metro by sloganizing the next John Garfield picture this way: "Garfield Laughs." . . . Since Lana Turner got hitched, Greg Bautzer is wooing Carol Gallagher. . . . Paul Draper's best audience is Arleen Whalen.

The Stage

Robert E. Sherwood, author of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," has completed a new play. Entitled "Revelation," it deals with the present war in Finland. Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will be in the cast. There is a strong probability that the new play will be presented here this spring before it is taken to New York, since Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne are now resting at Genesee Depot, Wis., and may prefer to have the preparatory rehearsals take place in Chicago.

Helen Jepson's Oomph Closes N. U. Concerts

BY CECIL SMITH.

Helen Jepson, lyric soprano of the Chicago City and Metropolitan Opera companies, brought the Northwestern university History and Enjoyment of Music concert series to a brilliant close at the Auditorium theater yesterday afternoon. Always aware that it is her mission to provide glamor along with art, Miss Jepson swathed her form in a close fitting gown of white which covered her utterly and yet allowed each curve of her figure to proclaim itself. Superimposed upon this definitive garment was a cape, also of white, clasped at the neck with a sparkling brooch, and trailing off toward the floor to end in countless tails of brown fur.

No; I have not exchanged places with the fashion editor. I am merely laying the ground elaborately for the observation that Miss Jepson would do well to transfer to her singing some of the excess oomph of her external décor.

Not that she did not sing a good program, or in the main sing it well. It was, in fact, as refreshing and well planned a collection of first-rate songs and arias as one could reasonably ask. Her voice, except for a growing bleakness on top, was in fine shape, and she approached her music conscientiously and honestly, with no cheapness about anything she did.

I have always admired Miss Jepson's accomplishments inordinately, and in spite of the tone of these remarks I still do. But nearly all her singing is still marked by an intangible quality of emotional standoffishness that bothers me—and some of her other auditors, as I know from many conversations—and leaves me with the feeling that she has not quite delivered all she might have.

In the half program I heard yesterday her singing was filled with really arresting emotional force only twice—once in the calm quietude of Koechlin's exquisite "Hiver," and once at the crashing, eloquent end of Rachmaninoff's "O Thou Billowy Harvest Field." The rest of the recital was good, all of it—very good according to the standard most sopranos would accept—but not good enough for an artist of Miss Jepson's potentialities. Even in Duparc's "L'Invitation au Voyage," one of the most moving songs ever composed to a French text, she did not seem adequately to put aside her detachment for the sake of sharing in the poignant dream evoked by text and music alike.

Robert Wallenborn's accompaniments, triumphant masterpieces from start to finish, and all played from memory, indicated again that he is as superb a collaborator as a singer could hope to have. He played a solo group, of which I heard only the difficult fugue from Reger's "Variations and Fugue on a Theme by Telemann," presented with excellent structural clarity and a sonorously massive tone.

In the Studebaker theater yesterday afternoon Esther Payne, pianist, and her husband, Hans Muenzer, violinist, gave a pleasing joint recital for the benefit of Phi Beta fraternity. Miss Payne plays the piano with admirable concern for lyric inflection and melodic charm. In the items I heard she did not develop much brilliance or drive. Mr. Muenzer is a capable, well grounded violinist, apparently more at home in a piece concerned with the basic attributes of the fiddle, such as Sibelius' "Danse Champêtre," than in solving the problem of style suggested by the preclassical, baroque Aria of Domenico Zipoli.

Lillian Gish, Percy Waram Arrive for Play Opening

Lillian Gish, Malcolm, and Percy Waram arrived in Chicago from Baltimore last night. Miss Gish and Mr. Waram open at the Blackstone theater tonight in "Life with Father," and Malcolm, in case you wonder, is Miss Gish's Scotty. He came well prepared for snowy weather with a tartan jacket. Miss Gish and Waram will appear over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system next Sunday as another in the series of screen and stage stars of Fifth Row Center.

Symphonietta Makes Way for Opera, Dancing

BY EDWARD BARRY.

At the Goodman theater last night the fourth and final concert of the Saidenberg symphonietta turned out to be no concert at all, but an evening devoted almost entirely to more spectacular diversions. The symphonietta, in fact, functioned as a pit orchestra, leaving the stage free for opera and dancing.

The opera was a dainty piece from the 18th century—Pergolesi's "La Serva Padrona." The opera's music—its appetizing, pitter-pattery little tunes and its occasional bursts of broad, lovely melody—was effectively presented by Virginia Haskins, soprano, Giacomo Rimini, baritone, and—of course—by the symphonietta down in the pit. Daniel Saidenberg conducted. Staging was by the Raisa-Rimini school of opera.

Miss Haskins—arch as ever and with the same old genius for stage tantrums—made a pretty and vixenish little Serpina. The rich dotard Uberto, whom she is determined to marry and who succumbs eventually to her wiles and changes her status in his house from serving maid to mistress, was the charge of the great Giacomo Rimini. Vespone was played last night by Giuseppe Silvera.

Miss Haskins' intelligence and artfulness were nowhere better displayed than in the scene where she is at once working on her master's susceptibilities and delivering cynical asides to the audience. A tear-stained, maiden-in-distress type of voice quality and delivery alternated deliciously with a pert musical style which was the exact vocal equivalent of barbed laughter.

Mr. Rimini's years of routining were apparent in his easy, masterful stage demeanor and in the complete intelligibility of his phrasing.

Following the intermission four Chicagoans—Eleanore Block, Ana Kurgans, Pearl Lack, and Leyah Lucatsky—were seen in dances which they themselves had composed. To Peter Warlock's "Capriol" suite they presented a series of attractive, nonrepresentative dances which preserved successfully the classical sunniness and good humor of the 16th century tunes on which the suite is based. Using the scherzo from Ravel's quartet, the dancers devised a composition which caught the blue and silver of French impressionism both in its costuming and in its delicate motion patterns.

Margaret Farr played MacDowell's first piano concerto with the Chicago Business Men's orchestra in Orchestra hall yesterday. George Dasch conducted. The performance had a splendid sonority and a sense of aliveness and direction. Miss Farr's delicacy and technical competence were very much in evidence in the last movement's tantalizing main theme.

The orchestra's principal offering was Beethoven's sixth symphony, played with the simplicity and cleanness which this type of music requires.

Dear Miss Provines:

The other day I went down to see the Picasso exhibition in the Art institute. As I was leaving I saw one of those robins that are always rushing the seasons. This is the way he looked to me:

The robin red
Stood on his head—
A teacup in his beak.
From his tail
There hung a nail
Imbedded in a leek.

On Man's Best Friend.

A neat little verse, signed by six well known Chicago women who are trying to help raise funds to keep open the North Side Animal Shelter at 5448 North Damen avenue answers the query often met with by animal lovers: How can you give money to animals instead of for children who need help? The verse:

We have helped Infant Welfare and Crèches and Cradles;
We've bought tickets for concerts galore,
We have come to your aid for all manner of causes
And probably more are in store.
So please give a thought to this plea we are voicing—
And don't make it only a thought—
But help us, pray, in a generous way
That our efforts may not come to naught.

Three times within three days last week we encountered lost dogs on the near north side—dogs so bewildered we were unable to get near enough to befriend them. The hopeless, anguished expression in the eyes of an old police dog wandering on Michigan avenue Saturday will long remain with us.

Please, if you have a dog keep your address or telephone number on his collar so he can be returned to you if he wanders away. Read the lost and found ads, and keep daily check with the incoming dogs at the city dog pound. Dogs are kept only 36 hours at the dog pound before they go to the gas chamber or to the vivisection laboratories. Check with the Anti-Cruelty society, the North Side Animal Shelter, the little south side dog refuge at 4800 South Michigan avenue operated by the Illinois Citizens Animal Welfare league, and Orphans of the Storm in Deerfield. And if you see a lost dog on the street, don't be heedless of his plight. He can't speak for himself.

The Long Coats Are a Welcome Sign of Spring

BY REA SEEGER.

Long, flattering wool coats teamed with distinctive silk dresses steal the fashion spotlight every spring. These costumes are getting an early start this season. Bright colored topcoats are worn over dark dresses printed with color.

Green coats as fresh and crisp in shade as the first foliage go out over a soft brown dress in plain crêpe or thin wool. Subtle shades of gray contrast a gray print dress or a dress of three shades of gray. Navy with sulphur yellow, black with pimento red or jade green, violet with pale fuschia and so on—the color schemes are legion.

One eye catching duet consists of a red coat fitted like a reefer with brass buttons and huge hip pockets and a navy blue dress dotted with oyster white.

Old gold wool coats and black dresses are slick contrasts for the smart black and brown prints or the striped clothes in black with brown. Brown coats are just as popular as a good foundation color as blacks or blues. All kinds of subtle color contrasts are possible with all shades of brown, the contrasts including pale gray, gold, pink, aqua blue, almond green, caramel.

Taffeta crêpe textures with a linen-like weave, smooth surfaces, and any number of fancy weaves assure plenty of selection—by the yard or in the complete ensemble tagged with one price.

All of the spring coats stress a neat, defined waistline, long semifitted sleeves, collar lines that curve upward to resemble a narrow collar, and soft dressmaker details such as loops, bows, tucks, appliqued bands and similar flattering trim.

The Girl in the Shadows

SYNOPSIS.

On the eve of her marriage to Michael, Cynthia is wrongly sentenced to prison, the stepchild of Rory Clarke. Michael knows nothing about it, as she has given the name of Clara Brown when arrested as Clarke's accomplice in a roadhouse robbery and murder. At the prison Cynthia's childhood friend, Bessie, is wardress and changes places with her so she can marry Michael without telling him of her disgrace. After the honeymoon Cynthia persuades her husband to return to his job in Malta without her and she returns to prison but soon discovers she is going to have a baby, so makes her escape. She goes to live with Michael's mother and sister, Marion, at Cloutleigh. Clarke blackmails her, and Scotland Yard in search of Clarke get suspicious of Cynthia. Escorted by Sir William, a family friend, she attempts to fly to Malta to join Michael but is arrested at the airport. Her marriage date, when she was supposed to be in prison, clears her and she continues to Malta. Bessie applies for a job with Marion, and detectives question her, causing Marion to become suspicious, when she discovers that Bessie has telegraphed Cynthia a warning. Bessie is forced to explain to Marion. Michael finds the message, but Cynthia begs him to trust her. Marion is questioned by detectives and admits knowing Clarke, in an effort to shift the danger from her brother. While she is staying in Cynthia's London flat Clarke attempts to blackmail Marion, who becomes fascinated by his daring. The police trail him to her flat, but he escapes, using Marion as a shield. Cynthia's baby is born and she and Michael return to London with their new son. Marion tells Cynthia that, if she does not divorce Michael, she will tell the detectives everything.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

MARION'S BLUFF CALLED.

Cynthia drew a breath of relief. Clarke, she was firmly convinced, would never dare to approach her again. By the time they returned to the hotel Marion's unfriendliness had lost some of its menace for her.

And so for another eight hours or so Cynthia was able to calm herself with comforting assurances that all would be well.

It was as they were rising from dinner that a page approached Cynthia and told her that she was wanted on the telephone.

She entered one of a line of telephone boxes. Even when Clarke's voice spoke to her she was so little prepared that she failed to recognize it.

"Mrs. Michael Alloway speaking."

"Hullo, my dear! It seems ages since we last met. How are you? I haven't congratulated you yet on the son and heir. Look here, we can't talk on the telephone. Tomorrow morning go to the bank and draw 200. That will do while you're making plans."

Cynthia felt her knees give; then fiercely she rallied.

"I shall do nothing of the kind, and if you come near me——"

"Yes, dear, you'll send for the police. I know. Meantime, draw the 200 and keep it handy and I'll ring you again and tell you where to meet me. I hope you——"

Cynthia banged down the receiver and pulled back the sliding door of the box. As she did so, from the adjoining box stepped Marion.

"Well?" asked Marion. But it was not really a question, for Cynthia could see that the other knew she had been speaking to Rory Clarke.

Something very close to despair attacked Cynthia. It was dreadful to have to start planning and intriguing all over again. The last year of happiness had softened her.

But now that this happiness was menaced she rallied. In all the string of adventures and misadventures that had come upon her since she first met Rory Clarke—one thing at least was clear. Every time she had wilted and lost her courage, misfortune had come upon her. Every time she had taken a line of bold defiance, she had been successful.

She turned and met her sister-in-law's gaze.

"That was Rory Clarke speaking to me," she said.

As she spoke her eyes flashed a signal across the lounge to Michael. She intended to force Marion's hand.

"You haven't forgotten our conversation this morning?" demanded Marion ironically.

"Not a word of it," snapped Cynthia. "You may not know it, but if you tell Michael before I do, he'll forgive me but he'll never forgive you. You will break up the family unity which you are professing to serve. Michael's coming now. I'm not going to beg you to do one thing or another. If you mean to tell him, no doubt you will!"

Michael was within earshot now and Marion was watching him.

"You two look like a couple of conspirators. Any trouble?" asked Michael.

Cynthia waited a full second for Marion to speak and in that second her own heart thudded. As Marion said nothing Cynthia knew that she had won—even if the victory lasted only an hour.

"My telephone call," said Cynthia deliberately, "was from Rory Clarke. He spoke to me familiarly, told me to draw £200 from the bank tomorrow and hold it until he told me what to do next."

As she spoke she glanced at Marion, whose face revealed blank astonishment.

As also did Michael.

"You can see what has happened," continued Cynthia, her confidence now fully restored. "He has evidently seen me here. He may have been in the hotel for all we know. He's made the same mistake as Scotland Yard—he thinks I'm his escaped convict."

"Right! Leave it to me," said Michael. "You two go and talk to mother—but, of course, don't tell her anything."

He went to the girl controling the telephone boxes.

"Get me Scotland Yard and ask for Detective Inspector Rason or his deputy," he ordered.

Rason was keeping late hours at the office. Now that the Alloways had returned to England he expected to have very little time to himself until Rory Clarke had been placed behind bars.

And perhaps Mrs. Michael Alloway, too, tho that in many ways would be a pity.

Dempster, one of his most promising juniors, hurried into the room without knocking, and slipped a typed sheet of paper in front of his chief.

"From the telephone department, sir. The wire was tapped, as per instructions, for all calls to Mrs. Michael Alloway. It looks like Clarke, sir, tho no name was mentioned."

Rason read an exact transcription of Cynthia's telephone conversation.

"The first thing that will happen will be that we shall hear nothing from the Alloways," he pontificated. "Tomorrow morning, before the banks open, I shall have to call on Mrs. Michael and——"

The telephone rang and Michael Alloway spoke.

"My wife has just told me that a few minutes ago she was called to the telephone by Rory Clarke," said Michael, and repeated what Cynthia had told him.

"Clarke must have been watching the hotel," he concluded, "and my wife's remarkable resemblance to——"

"Quite so, Mr. Alloway. If Mrs. Alloway is not too tired, do you think I could have a word with her? I could be with you about 9 o'clock."

"Good!" said Michael. "It seems that my wife is going to need your protection, Mr. Rason."

Rason replaced the receiver and looked at Dempster.

"Remember what I said about our not hearing anything from the Alloways?" he asked dryly.

"No, sir," asserted Dempster.

"Good boy!" grinned Rason. "And next time I'm right about anything in this case you can pinch me, because I'll probably be asleep. I'm going to the Gulverbury. You and two others follow me. Keep an eye open front and back of the hotel for Clarke. He's probably hanging around."

Nine o'clock is the slackest hour in most London hotels. In a quiet corner of the lounge there was no fear of being overheard. Rason was cordially welcomed by the Alloways and was pleased to note that Marion was one of the party—still more pleased to notice that she looked definitely ill at ease.

He had memorized every word in the telephone conversation between Clarke and Mrs. Alloway and intended to make special use of it—but in his own time.

"This is the first bit of luck we've had with this man," said Rason. I'm sorry for you, Mrs. Alloway, because it must be a nuisance. But the fact that he's made this mistake about you will give us a fine chance of catching him."

Hails Conclave on Children in a Democracy

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It may be, if you were interested, that a few weeks ago you read in the newspapers about the conference which was held in Washington—The White House Conference on Children in a Democracy.

We've heard off and on for years now about children in the various totalitarian states, what has happened to them and how their lives have been changed by the political changes within their various countries. But there, in Washington in January, was a great conference dealing with the lives and the well-being of children under our own democratic form of government.

Surely no conference could be more timely. Also no conference could possibly be of greater concern to the people of our country, for what could be of more moment than the health and happiness of our children? Not only because it is the birthright of all children to be well and happy and educated, but because they are our future citizens, and will, as men and women, hold in their hands the torch of democracy and will have it within their power to justify the American way of life.

For this reason, what happened at The White House Conference on Children in a Democracy is of importance to all Americans, but especially to people who would be interested in reading a column such as this one. Because the reports of the conference in the papers and radio have necessarily been brief, I shall try from day to day to give you some account of it. This is not an easy task, as the ground covered in the days I was in Washington was tremendous. Every aspect of child welfare had been the object of research for nine months and was the subject of detailed discussion at the conference. The conference concluded with concrete plans for a 10 year program of action, since results are what the men and women of this undertaking are looking for.

Democratic ideals are embodied in our "Litany for Mothers and Fathers." With your name and address SEND POSTAGE ONLY for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Girl Overdoes Romance and Puzzles Fiance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"She is 18. I am 24. We are to be married within the year. Altho she is a sensible girl in some respects, she has thoughts that make me doubt her.

"She claims men are her weakness. She is an ardent reader of all kinds of love stories. She practically swoons when she sees movie actors in a love scene. She listens to all love stories on the radio. The balcony scene in 'Romeo and Juliet' she thinks is the greatest thing that ever happened in the world. So, all in all, she is obsessed with these thoughts. She describes a love scene between her and me. And you'd think she were relating a fiction tale, when there's nothing out of the ordinary in our scene.

"When we go where there are other men, she always has the best looking one picked in her mind as the ideal. I know that all women entertain thoughts and dreams about love, but, gosh, the men they get can't subscribe to them, can they? It's darned uncomfortable for a fellow, and I'm not sure but it will end for us in the breaking down of an otherwise beautiful chapter in my life. What do you think about it?

J. DANIEL."

You have something there, J. D., that needs treatment. We think a good-natured kidding might set the young woman on a safer track for you. She's undoubtedly pressing heavily on the line because she knows it gets a rise out of you.

We think that an excellent treatment for the sentimental goofy one is, when she raves, you rave, too. Only you choose a girl to wax your sentimental blurbs upon. When you go a-dancing or a-partying you pick out the stunner and rave on and on, giving your mind small chance to get in a word about her dream gentleman. Just so there won't be a breaking, once in a while slip the girl the hint that you are only giving her a bit of her own medicine and suggest a truce in which each will abandon his or her folly.

Do you have a large bay window or a sun-room that needs blinds? We suggest you try some good looking ones made especially for this purpose and having narrow wooden slats that are set close together. These blinds operate like porch shades, rolling up and down. They are not like Venetian blinds; the slats do not tilt. They cost about the same as the least expensive of the Venetian types of blind.

More interesting to me than the beautiful and elaborate displays at the National Food, Cookery and Allied Trades exposition at the Coliseum last week were the four colorful gentlemen who served with me on the "jury."

All famous among professional culinary experts, they were Arnold Shircliffe, manager of the Wrigley Building restaurant; Ernest Ghyssaert, instructor in confectionery and cake decoration at the Washburne Trade school; Pierre Hirou of Pierre's grocery and market, and Carlo Camerano of Henrici's restaurant.

Mr. Shircliffe, only native American among them, is author of a book on salads. He has been in foods work for over 40 years, was in charge of railroad meal service in Europe for the American army during the world war. He has had some medical training and is the only masculine member of Chicago's and Illinois' dietetics associations. Books and menus are his hobbies.

Mr. Shircliffe possesses the finest collection of American hotel and restaurant menus in existence. He has a menu for every year since 1829, and owns several of the earliest American menus, dating as far back as 1760.

A rather slight, gray haired man, Mr. Shircliffe is modest and gentle mannered. In restaurant work he believes in catering to women. "If I can get women into a restaurant, I can get men," he said.

Mr. Ghyssaert, a Belgian, is an artist. He executes intricate and beautiful designs in media such as cake icings. His hobby is working in copper. A copper bird cage and copper flowers are among his pieces. A breathtakingly beautiful and elaborate beflowered and beribboned [all decorations edible] wedding cake was his contribution to the exhibit, altho it was, of course, out of competition. Many creations of his students at the trade school competed for prizes.

Mr. Ghyssaert was pastry chef for 20 years at Chicago's Drake and Blackstone hotels. He, too, is modest about his accomplishments.

M. Hirou, French, of course, has Paris' Ritz hotel, New York's Ritz-Carleton, Chicago's Blackstone and Chicago Towers club back of him in experience. He is a rather young man, the son of a sculptor, and he sculptures, too, in wax and in tallow. Now in business for himself at 3044 Broadway, he specializes in fancy groceries and meats.

The only professional culinary artist whom I have yet met to have a leaning toward athletic pursuits, Pierre goes in for fishing, golf, tennis, and horseback riding.

Mr. Camerano, an alert, dark eyed Italian, does fine work in sugar sculpture, and "blows" sugar fruits. At the exhibit his head of George Washington looked like a marble piece. There were even fine "cracks" across the Washington nose. A Scarlett O'Hara of sugar, complete with authentic Paris hat, standing among Georgia roses, was one of his exhibit pieces. Pinocchio and a display of fragile but real looking blown sugar fruits were part of his work, too. One could only murmur inadequately, "Wonderful!" at the perfection of detail. Mr. Camerano is married to a musician and composer, and has a daughter who is a scientist, graduated from the University of Chicago, and a son who is a journalist-in-embryo at Northwestern.

A "for shame" note is hereby addressed to the cat who wantonly dined upon "Lobster Parisienne" before the judges could get to it. "We had to have a cat," explained Gaston Ramat, director of the show, "or we would have had rats." And perhaps rats wouldn't have stopped with the lobster!

The material side of life comes in for some attention, but keep practical and impersonal.

If you started something several years ago, hoping to build it up into something substantial, you ought to realize your hope this year. That is, always providing you didn't stumble around too much during the past few years. If you are on the positive side of the ledger you are riding high, if not, well, it isn't very comfortable riding the bumps.

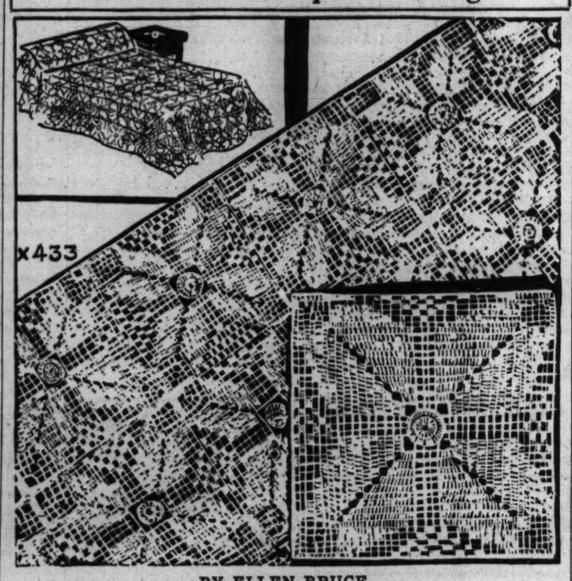
Arrowhead Bedspread Design



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted bedspreads always are a source of admiration, but this arrowhead design is one which is exceptionally handsome. The richness of the completed bedspread is not to be denied. It is made in squares and joined as work progresses, so that one may quickly see how attractive the finished product will be. White or ecru mercerized crochet cotton is suggested, but any good quality bed cotton may be substituted.

For instructions in crocheting the arrowhead bedspread, No. X-433, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

There is one method of laying a trap for a certain type of opponent that is very rarely used because of its uninsurable risk, but which may return enormous dividends if employed when all the conditions are exactly right.

To the best of my knowledge this particular stratagem first was used by one New York expert against another whose name is famous in bridge circles. The discomfiture of the victim was not soothed by the unmerciful kidding he had to take from every bridge acquaintance for weeks following his debacle. This was the hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

South passed, West passed, and North bid one spade. East passed, and now South did an amazing thing—he passed!

West, convinced that South had a bust, and that East must have at least a fair hand, now stepped into the swamp with both feet! He bid two hearts. North, naturally in the dark, passed, as did poor East, and now South came down with his bludgeon—"double!" Obviously, the carnage was terrible. West took exactly two tricks in hearts and his ace of diamonds for a five trick penalty!

South's explanation will give the reasoning back of this type of trap pass.

"I knew that East and West were the type of players who frequently indulge in trap bidding. I had been waiting for certain ideal conditions for several months. First, the vulnerability had to be right. If we weren't vulnerable West would not expect East to trap us and would therefore not 'protect.' Then they had to be vulnerable, too, since I knew I was running a serious risk of losing a rubber and certainly wanted a good reward if my trap worked. Next I had to have a certain kind of hand, not so big that there would be no honors left for West to hold, but big enough so that I could double. It wasn't vital that I should be the dealer and pass first; if my partner should open the bidding with all the other conditions right I could pass and very likely get the same result. The fact that I did pass first helped to build up the picture, of course. West was sure I was busted and that East, even if not trapping, must hold a fair hand. Well, he was wrong, that's all!"

In my opinion South executed a psychological coup of the very first water, and I admire both his strategy and his nerve. But, for my readers' protection, I must point out that, according to South's own statement, he had "waited months for the certain, ideal conditions" so vital to success.

Polish Actress Who Fled Bombs Arrives in City

Maryia Modzelewska, Polish actress who fled from Warsaw less than two hours before the Nazis bombarded it, arrived in Chicago yesterday. She will appear at the Civic Opera house next Sunday in the Polish play, "Krzyzacy" ["Knights of the Cross"], proceeds of which will go to the Polish relief fund. The play deals with the persecution of the Poles in the 14th century by the knights of the Black Cross.

Hawaii Draws Chicagoans for Winter Visits

Henry J. Murphy, president of the guild; Mrs. Byron V. Kanaley, and Mrs. Matthew J. Hickey.

A series of buffet luncheons and classes on handicraft instruction is being held at the Chicago Junior league rooms in the Drake hotel this winter. A luncheon will be held today. Mrs. Foster Farrell is in charge of the handicraft classes, which are intended primarily for sponsors working on the league's three year project of foster home care for convalescent children. The league's financial aid to the project, in which it has been coöperating with the Council of Social Agencies, comes to an end in May, but the league hopes that its members will continue to give active aid as individuals.

Miss Julia Drake, as head of the house committee, and her assistants, Mrs. Gilbert H. Robinson, Miss Caroline Castle, and Mrs. Graham Fairbank, are helping to make a success of the buffet luncheon parties.

Mrs. Richard Gambrill Jr., Mrs. Roland K. Smith, Mrs. William Peacock Jr., Mrs. Robert Hoffman, Mrs. Richard M. Lamport, and Miss Dorothy MacArthur are some of the Junior leaguers who are taking part in a weekly radio series, that dramatizes the work done by each agency in the Council of Social Agencies. A second series of broadcasts requires a cast of 25. It is given on Saturday afternoons.

Dartmouth President Guest of Alumni Tonight.

More than 300 members of the Dartmouth Alumni Association of Chicago will gather at the Blackstone hotel for a dinner for President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth. The dinner will climax President Hopkins' two day visit here. Mrs. Hopkins is joining him today, and the two will go to San Francisco and Los Angeles, where President Hopkins will speak.

Margaret Jane is the name Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Burrows [Peggy Palmer Burrows] have given to their infant daughter, born on Feb. 14 at the Burrows hospital. The baby is their fourth child.

After the opening at the Blackstone theater tonight of "Life with Father," a play based on the writings of the late Clarence Day Jr., Edwin Embrie will give a supper party at the Pump room of the Ambassador for Mrs. Day. Other especial guests at the supper will be Miss Lillian Gish and Percy Waram, who have leading parts in the play. Tomorrow's performance of "Life with Father" will be a benefit for the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum.

Chicago Bach Chorus Gives Concert Tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Nitze, who have taken a box for a concert by the Chicago Bach chorus tomorrow night at Orchestra hall, will take their guests to a Republican dinner at the Stevens hotel before going on to the concert. Since Mrs. Sewell Avery has left for Florida, she has given to some University of Chicago students the box she had reserved for the Bach concert. Mrs. Avery has taken a cottage at Boca Raton for three weeks.

Oscar G. Mayer, another boxholder, also will be absent. He has gone to Florida to join his daughter, Mrs. Edward Collins. Mr. Collins will use the box. William D. Darrow and Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Miller are giving dinner parties at home before the concert. Theodore Lams will direct the chorus. Dr. and Mrs. Miller have taken a block of tickets for music students.

Marion Eleanor Stiles Engaged to Wed Iowan

At a dinner party on St. Valentine's day Mr. and Mrs. James F. Stiles Jr. of Lake Bluff announced the engagement of their daughter, Marion Eleanor, to Lincoln McConnell Larkin of Des Moines, Ia. Miss Stiles is a graduate of Ferry Hall and of Northwestern university. Her fiancé, the son of Mrs. Jean M. Larkin of St. Petersburg, Fla., was graduated from the Georgia School of Technology.

Mrs. Frank Leslie Eldridge of 4228 North Paulina street and Lauderdale Lakes announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Jane, to Harry Robert Gallagher, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gallagher of 4719 Dover street. The wedding will take place in May in Bethany Evangelical church.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Warren Flinn of Highland Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Marian, to Edward Charles Schweitzer, son of Mrs. Edward C. Schweitzer and the late Mr. Schweitzer, also of Highland Park. Miss Flinn attended the University of Illinois, from which her fiancé was graduated.

The engagement of Miss Clara Elizabeth Thompson to Edward M. Johnston was announced at a small luncheon by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Thompson of Chicago. Miss Thompson attended Northwestern university and was graduated from the Lake View Hospital School of Nursing. Her fiancé, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Johnston of Chicago, attended Lake Forest academy. The wedding will take place in the spring.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

The elbow problem is never easy for those women with dry skin, but in cold weather, especially when they wear wool frocks, it's almost intolerable. The skin is sensitive, but what breaks the feminine heart is that it looks even worse than it feels.

Lately we've kept a jar of cream for hands and elbows in our desk drawer, inviting all comers to dip into it freely. We wanted to know how well it worked, whether it actually did help in keeping the hands and elbows smooth, satiny, and lily fair. The general opinion is that it's mother's little helper.

This is rather an unusual cream. It's thin, but solidly packed in its round, white container; it has a delightful fragrance, as well as a pretty pink tint, AND it differs from most preparations for hands and elbows in that it is spread on rather than rubbed in.

You might think this business of just spreading it would leave the skin sticky. Miraculously, this doesn't happen. The thin film, lightly spread over the skin surface, blends into the skin immediately, making it look and feel smoother the minute it's applied. What's more, it does serve as a soother and a protective.

It's grand for the hands, and perhaps even better for the horny, rough elbows. It can also be used profitably on the skin of legs, at that area just above the ankles where the combination of cold and friction from galoshes often causes chapping.

This can be used, because it is so quickly absorbed, at any time and as often as you like. When you're wearing evening dress, apply it to give a satiny finish to the skin on back, arms, and elbows.

Mature Figure Must Be Given Right Clothes

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We are going to appoint ourselves a nice little Pied Piper one of these fine days and bugle out all the plump girls and the big, big 'uns, and the broad-hipped and wide-waisted ones wearing abbreviated swing skirts. We're not going to take them out and drown them, understand! We're just going to parade them before a lineup of guilty dress manufacturers who create a style for a slim, young thing with a pinched in waistline, good legs and hipline, and expect that same style will do for all the rest of womankind.

"Try and get a straight-lined skirt," exclaims the owner of a small shop with a clientele crying for straight lines for figures no longer young and without waistlines, "and a decent length to the skirt."

Youth, as we have said many times, can dare and wear anything. It's all right. It's their privilege. Even if they're not too shapely there's always that inescapable verve of youth about it and them. But when a woman gets on in weight and years, youth isn't her game. As seen in so many of the knee-length skirted woman of years, she's a flop from her own and her observer's standpoint.

There's no uglier line we know of than that exposed back of the leg up near the crook of the knee. And we doubt if there is a less becoming style of dress than the belted in frock with short, swing skirt on a short woman whose best friends could never call her slim. Nor on the broad-waisted large woman. The proportions are all wrong.

Well, the answer might be for the plump woman to reduce and the large-waisted woman to plane down the superfluous inches with exercise. But that takes a bit of time when you need a dress in a hurry. Another solution might be to keep on looking until you find the lines that slenderize, for on sober second thought they must be somewhere since our best dressed women aren't caught in clothes that emphasize their worst points. On the contrary, they hew to the line they know is theirs, regardless of fashion mandates.

AMATEUR TIES FOUR PROS IN WESTERN OPEN

208 BEGIN TO FIGHT TOMORROW FOR CHICAGO TITLES

NEW PLAN GIVES GOLDEN GLOVES A SELECT FIELD

Only Experienced Boxers Compete.

The Battle Front

FOLLOWING is a list of the out of town Golden Gloves tournaments scheduled for tonight:

Kenosha News finals.
South Bend Tribune finals.
Milwaukee Journal finals.
Minneapolis Star finals.
Gary Post-Tribune semi-finals.
Fort Worth Star-Telegram finals.
Davenport Times semi-finals.
Centralia Sentinel finals.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

A field of 208 at the start—eight champions at the finish!

That's the setup of the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament which opens tomorrow night in the Coliseum. For three consecutive evenings the slugging will go on, and at the conclusion of Thursday's bouts Chicago will have the team which it will send into the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28.

All those 208 contenders have proved their merit. Some have distinguished themselves in Golden Gloves competition of previous years; others have taken titles in tournaments run by various athletic clubs; a few have been admitted on the strength of their survival in the Golden Gloves novice eliminations. Thus the eight ultimate winners face a terrific campaign before attaining their goal—Chicago championships.

Two Rings Tomorrow.

Chicago's boxing fans can expect to see practically every style of fighting during the three evenings of continuous action. Those who gather in the Coliseum tomorrow will find two rings set up. At 7 o'clock a pair of fighters will enter each. Punching will continue, hour after hour, until 83 bouts have been run off. On Wednesday evening there will be one ring and fewer bouts—32—but the competition will be getting tougher all the time as the field is reduced. Starting time will be shifted to 8 o'clock Thursday evening, when the semi-finals and finals are held.

In gymnasiums thruout the city fighters will be putting the finishing touches to their preparation today. The Catholic Youth organization, the Savoy A. C., the 124th artillery, and other groups all have their favorites which they hope to send to the Tournament of Champions.

The C. Y. O. will be depending on Harold Dade, Walter Cavaleri, Willie Moon, Joe Dupont, Edward O'Connell, Cornelius Young, and other hard hitting, experienced boxers. The Savoy A. C. will place most of its confidence in Homer Williams, Hezzie Williams, and Edwin Wagner.

It's a New Deal.

With these rugged fighters in the field it is apparent that the winners will be worthy of being called champions. They will have to be exceptionally good if Chicago is to have a chance in the Tournament of Champions which will bring more than 300 fighters into action from 23 states. In other years Chicago sent as many as 40 representatives into competition with the out-of-town boys. This time it will be different. With only eight representatives, this city will be on a parity with the other 43 centers in which newspapers are cooperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the sponsorship of Golden Gloves eliminations.

The tournaments thruout Golden Gloves territory will be concluded this week. Twenty-six of the 43 squads of champions already have been named. The other 17 will fight their way to sectional titles between now and Friday evening. Finals will be held tonight in six cities—Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Kenosha, South Bend, Centralia, and Fort Worth.

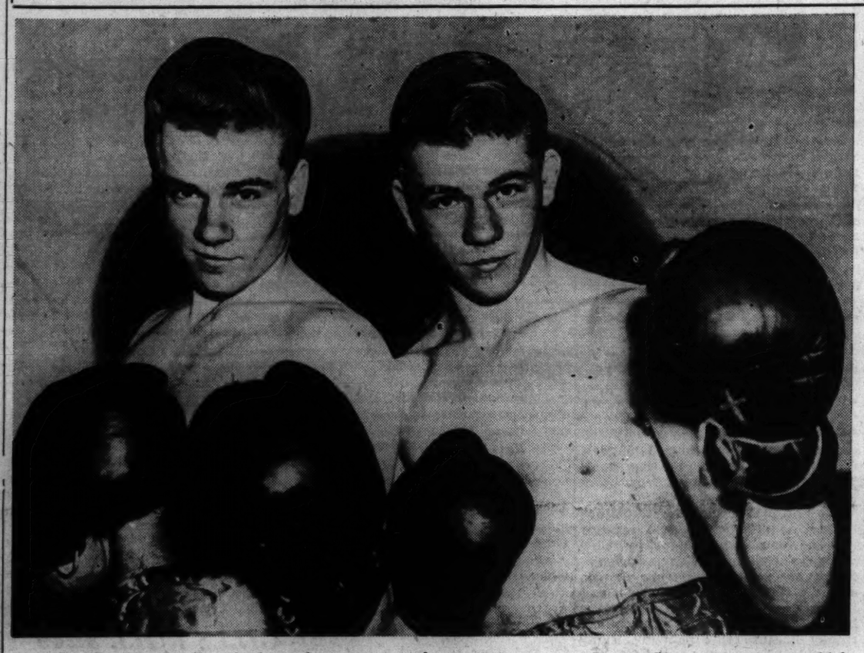
All With a Single Thought—Golden Gloves Title



The Preston family will be well represented in the Chicago open Golden Gloves tournament which opens in the Coliseum tomorrow. Twin brother Joe (left), fighting for the 124th Artillery, hopes to win in the 147 pound class, and Bill (right), also of the 124th Artillery, seeks the 135 pound Chicago title. Victory for the twin brothers will send them into the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28.

Purdue Plays at Michigan; Defends Lead

BY WILFRID SMITH.

While Purdue again leads the Western conference basketball race by virtue of its victory over Illinois while Northwestern was suprising Indiana Saturday night, the Boilermakers still are far from the goal of an undivided championship. All Big Ten teams have five games to play and with four of them tied for third place at four victories and three defeats, a step behind the second place Hoosiers, the 1940 pennant may be cut into bits before the conclusion of the race.

Tonight Purdue meets Michigan on its home court and altho the Wolverines have been beaten by Northwestern, Illinois, and Indiana, they may upset the Boilermakers. Michigan's series of lickings which included a 57 to 30 walloping by Indiana a week ago, ended Saturday with an easy conquest of Chicago. This was the Maroons' seventh conference defeat this year, but so far it has not been suggested that basketball be eliminated on the Midway.

Trouble Ahead for Purdue.

If Charles Pink, speedy dribbling guard, and Capt. Jim Rae, who scored seven of Michigan's 12 field goals against Chicago, receive more support, Michigan may keep pace with

A heavyweight who can punch and is an excellent boxer is Edwin Wagner of the Savoy A. C. Wagner weighs 234 pounds and is 6 feet 7 inches tall. He'll fight in the Coliseum.

CHICAGO'S OWN!

The fighting young men who will battle in the Coliseum tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday in Chicago's Open division Golden Gloves tournament, are filled with the desire to win. They want to earn places in the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 26, 27, 28. Only eight will reach that goal, but the courage and boxing skill of all Chicago's own will thrill you. The price scale:

POSTPONE BOUT BETWEEN GARCIA AND ARMSTRONG

Los Angeles, Feb. 18 (AP).—The middleweight championship fight between Ceferino Garcia and Henry Armstrong scheduled for Thursday night was postponed today until Friday, March 1.

The postponement resulted from a boil on Garcia's right knee cap.

Matchmaker Charlie MacDonald of the Hollywood American Legion stadium said physicians reported Garcia probably could return to training in less than a week.

Riggs Defeats Surface in South Atlantic Tennis Final

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP). Bobby Riggs of Chicago today defeated Hal Surface of Kansas City, Mo., 0-6, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3, in the finals of the South Atlantic tournament. Sarah Palfrey Fayban of Cambridge, Mass., defeated Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, 8-6, 7-5, in the women's finals.

CHICAGO IS 2D STOP MARCH 15 OF MAKI TOUR

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Taisto Maki, world's No. 1 distance runner, will make San Francisco the first stop on his cross-country exhibition tour to raise funds for Finnish relief.

Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U. and vice chairman of the relief fund's track committee, announced that Maki will run in an indoor meet in San Francisco March 5, probably in a three mile race. Eight other dates have been lined up, as follows:

March 15, Chicago; March 18, Kansas City; March 23, Detroit; March 29, Cleveland; March 30, New York; April 6, Buffalo; April 14, Philadelphia, and May 11, Los Angeles.

Originally Maki was to have run his first race outdoors at Los Angeles March 3, but relief fund officials felt this would be too early in the season for proper outdoor conditions.

Maki and Paavo Nurmi, here as his coach, are due to leave for training at Palm Springs, Cal., on Tuesday.

New York, Feb. 18 [Special].—The aggressive Chicago Blackhawks put a puck past Earl Robertson at 13:40 of the third period to gain a 1 to 1 tie with the New York Americans tonight and carry their defeatless string to seven straight games, a new club record.

Bill Thoms counted on a screen play for Chicago after the Americans had taken the lead early in the second period on Armstrong's shot. The tie was the third played by the Hawks on their current streak, the other four games ending in victories. The Chicagoans headed homeward after the game to prepare for a contest with the Canadiens Thursday.

Armstrong Gets Goal.

The Americans forced the early first period pace, with most Chicago attacks breaking up on the Shore-Murray defense. Seibert led a dangerous rush, but his rebound attempt was wide. Anderson and Chad clashed along the boards, applying elbows freely, but Referee Mickey Ion intervened before there was trouble. Chicago had stepped up its attack in the closing minutes, but couldn't get thru.

Robertson made a daring save off Allen at the start of the second period, sliding far out to break up a three-man rush. Boll engineered the first goal, carrying the puck into the corner and finally working it out to Sorrell, whose rebound was hammered in by Armstrong. The puck went in over Goodman as the agile Chicago goalie went down in the mêlée. The time was 3:47.

Thoms Ties It Up.

Shore shook Jackson loose and the big winger knocked Goodman down with a booming shot. The Americans stormily argued the puck was in but the goal judge disagreed. Seibert got a two minute penalty for holding on the play. The penalty was incomplete when the period ended.

Seibert got back from his penalty with no damage done and Chicago opened up with a series of four-man rushes with Gottselig and Seibert prominent in all of them. The Americans defended desperately, seeking to avoid the third period collapse that has cost them several games of late, but Thoms tied the score at 13:40 on a high shot that curved over Robertson's shoulder.

Cooper almost scored on another screened shot that went thru Murray's legs, and Bill Carse was inches wide as Chicago took complete command over the tiring Americans, but couldn't score again and the teams went into overtime, which also was scoreless.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

PROF. O. F. LONG, chairman of Northwestern university's faculty athletic committee, has been a member of the group since 1902. . . . Prof. Long introduced the rule limiting intercollegiate competition to undergraduates. . . . It was adopted by the Big Ten and later by practically every college conference in the country. . . . Lloyd Cardwell of the Lions has the floor: "In one of our games with the Chicago Bears I happened to give Joe Stydahar a hefty poke in the mouth and was amazed to see teeth flying all over the gridiron. . . . 'You heel,' Joe hissed after he had tackled me, 'you'll have to buy me two new plates.' Boy, was I happy when I learned those were store teeth." . . . Chuck Fenske, Wisconsin's brilliant miler, credits a boyhood newspaper route with the development of his championship legs. . . . Personal to Gabby Hartnett: Kirby Higbe, No. 2 pitcher on the Phillies' staff, has signed his contract and has asked to pitch the opening game of the season. . . . St. Louis, which has trouble luring a quorum into its baseball parks, is the best minor hockey league city in the country. . . . Attendance at American association ice games averages 8,000 to 12,000. . . . Boxing managers recently picketed the offices of the 20th Century Sporting club because Mike Jacobs had levied a $1.15 service charge on their complimentary tickets to the Garden.

Joe Louis, who took up bowling only recently, is reported [by his press agent] to be averaging 180 already. . . . Taisto Maki, the Finnish runner, pronounces it "Ty-sto Mackey." . . . Cocker spaniels were first in American Kennel club registration in 1939 with 7,166. . . . Buck Newsom, the garrulous pitcher, phoned Walter O. Briggs, owner of the Tigers, as follows: "I'm going to report at camp a day late. Have all the newspaper boys there so they can write the annual holdout story." . . . The Athletics' 42 game exhibition schedule will take them all over the southwest and into Mexico. . . . Bob De Groot, New York high school swimming star, is the son of a member of Holland's Olympic teams in 1908 and 1912. . . . Michigan State's new fieldhouse, one of the most modern athletic plants in the world, will house the state high school basketball tournament next month. . . . It seats 10,000. . . . Pro basketball fans in Sheboygan are generating a rivalry with supporters of the Chicago Bruins which may match, in time, the Packer-Bear feud in football. . . . A big delegation of Sheboygan fans has chartered a train for the battle with the Bruins Wednesday night. . . . At the same time fans in Oshkosh are booming their team as the logical rival to the Packers.

Kokomo Sue.

Sue was working for a gent
Who had never paid his rent
And who should have been evicted weeks before;
But it happened, strange to say,
When the landlord came that way,
That he always met with Susie at the door.

She would turn her floodlight eyes
Full upon him and the guy's
Heart would flutter like a palpitating spring;
In his worship of the dame
He'd forget for what he came,
And he'd go away without a blessed thing.

But one day he sent an aid
To make sure he would be paid,
And the fellow came on Susie unawares;
When he started to brush by
She just grabbed him by the tie,
And she heaved his worthless carcass down the stairs.

When the boss heard of this feat
He grew positively sweet—
"Won't you be my wife?" he asked her with a sob;
But the girl was quick to scent
That he loved her for the rent,
So she punched him in the nose and quit her job.

First of Cubs Leave Tonight for Magic Isle

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The first 1940 contingent of Gabby Hartnett's happy little family of Cubs, led by the boss man himself, tonight will set out for Santa Catalina Island. It will be Gabby's 19th annual pilgrimage to Mr. P. K. Wrigley's magic isle.

The first party, according to rather sketchy estimates by Traveling Secretary Bob Lewis, will be composed of about a dozen and a half, including players, club attachés, and a trio of eager journalists. The group will depart from the North Western station at 10:25 o'clock tonight.

Dr. Lotshaw Gets an Assistant.

A feature of the departing personnel will be the presence of an assistant to the veteran Cub trainer, Dr. Andrew David Lotshaw. The doc, perennially the hardest Cub worker from February to October, never before has had an assistant. Yesterday it was announced that Rudolph Lind had been appointed by the management to assist Dr. Lotshaw. Dr. Lind's name forthwith was added to the shipping list. Confidants of Dr. Lotshaw say the old workhorse and soother par excellence doesn't quite know what to make of this surge of liberality, but probably has nothing about which to worry.

The party organized in Chicago will include Coaches John Corriden and George Uhle. Clay Bryant, still unsigned, is listed as one of the voyagers. Paul Epperly and Clare Bertram, pitchers, are scheduled to climb aboard en route.

Pick Up 10 Thursday.

Ten athletes, including unsigned Jerome Dean, now professoring in Mississippi, have been ordered to appear at the Wilmington dock to set sail at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. These California pickups are Julio Bonetti, Dean, Larry French, Bill Lee, Jake Mooty, Vern Olsen, Charley Root, Claude Passeau, Bob Collins, and Al Todd.

The pitchers and catchers will have exactly a week to get in shape to make things tough for the second squad, which is scheduled to reach the training base Feb. 29.

The entire squad will remain on Catalina Island until March 13, when the outfit will embark for the mainland. The exhibition season will open against the White Sox in Wrigley field, Los Angeles, March 14.

April 12 the Cubs will be back in town. They will play the Sox April 12, 13, and 14, will try on their new uniforms on April 15, and on April 16 will open the season in Cincinnati.

TODD MATCHES CARD OF 72 BY DEMARET, WOOD

Williamson, Heafner Also Share Lead.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Houston, Tex., Feb. 18.—Jimmy Demaret, an old sixth ward boy who is Hagen, Jones, and Sarazen all rolled into one in the eyes of his golf-loving Houston neighbors, today shot a 72 at the River Oaks Country club. The smiling James had done 72's and better at River Oaks and elsewhere, but this particular card gave him a tie with four other contestants for the first round lead in the 41st annual Western open golf tournament.

Jimmy Demaret.

Prior to the home town boy's arrival late in the day, three other professionals and one amateur had posted 72's. They were Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., the hard luck champion of golf; Clayton Heafner, reformed candy maker from Linville, N. C.; Ralph [Bud] Williamson, 28 year old Fort Wayne, Ind., pro, and Harry Todd, the Dallas lad who now holds the Western amateur crown. Their performances evoked generous hands, but they might be said to have laid an egg compared to the huzzahs which greeted the Demaret finish.

3,000 Brave Sharp Wind.

Those cheers came from a partisan gallery of 3,000 which followed Demaret most of the way. They might well have been intended for a shift in the weather, which forced postponements of the first round on Friday and yesterday. This morning found a sharp wind cutting the course, but with no rain.

Shortly after 1 o'clock a bright sun cleared the skies and tonight's forecast indicated that same might remain thru tomorrow's second 18 and Tuesday's final 36 holes.

The Demaret public howled and groaned up and down the River Oaks acreage today. They wilted when Demaret three putted from 15 feet at the third and fired a barrage of yippees when he dropped a 25 foot putt for a birdie at the fifth, a barrage which slid down to a whisper on the next green, which he overshot. A 12 footer fell for a birdie on the 12th, but the woods at the 16th and a bunker on the 17th put a double crimp in their enthusiasm. The kid from Center street then planted an iron seven feet from the 18th pin and holed the putt for a finishing birdie that left his marching club more than satisfied.

Seven Shoot 74.

Seven 74 shooters followed the leaders. These included another amateur, tall Johnny Barnum of Houston; E. J. Harrison, Little Rock, Ark.; Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Winchester, Mass.; Bud Oakley of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Marty Furgo of Sharon, N. Y.

Byron Nelson, the highstrung Fort Worth native, who is defending the championship he won at Chicago's Medinah club last summer, got off to a poor start. Playing with Wood, the man whom he defeated for the national open title in a double playoff in June, the champ finished with a 78 after a front nine of 40, five over par. Nelson, who arrived from his victory in the Texas open at San Antonio, had played only one practice round, and then reported himself rarin' to go. The two day delay appeared to have affected his keenness.

HEAVYWEIGHTS BOX TONIGHT IN MARIGOLD SHOW

Three Bouts of 8 Rounds Head Program.

Three bouts of eight rounds will head a heavyweight boxing card tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

Lem Franklin of Cleveland is paired with Andy [Kid] Miller, Sioux City, Ia.; Harold Dettman of Detroit with Altus Allen, Peoria, and Lee Oma, also of Detroit, with Emil Camps, west side.

Franklin and Allen are former international Golden Gloves champions.

Tom Burns, stablemate of Oma and Dettman, will meet Ernie Easter of the south side in a four round opener.

Franklin can beat any one he can hit, and indications are that he will not miss Miller's chin despite the fact that Andy scored victories over Lee Savold and Tony Musto last year. Big Lem knocked out Buddy Millard recently. Previously he scored a knockout over Savold. Savold is booked to meet Bob Pastor in Madison Square Garden March 1. If victorious he will earn a title match with Champion Joe Louis.

Charley [Gorilla] Grubmyer will meet Cecil McGill in the windup bout of a heavyweight wrestling program in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, this evening. Promoter Fred Kohler has arranged four supporting matches. Magyar Morrell will meet Rudy Kay, Jack [Tiger] Moore will encounter Phil Malloy, Joe Dvorak will oppose Phil Gruber, and Walter Palmer will face Ned Taylor.

Barney Ross, retired undefeated lightweight champion, will be granted an Illinois referee's license today. . . . Ed White today will ask the state athletic commission for permission to promote a mat encounter between Bronko Nagurski and Everett Marshall in the Coliseum March 1.

Sam Pian, one of Davey Day's managers, is preparing to go to New York to see a welterweight fight between Lou Ambers, lightweight champion, and Al Davis there Friday. Pian has an idea Ambers will renounce his title if he beats Davis in order to pave the way for a title match with Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong. According to Day's manager, Ambers has indicated a desire to retire from the ring. He believes this will come to pass in the event Davis scores a knockout Friday.

Consequently, Pian wants to be on hand in case Promoter Mike Jacobs decides to arrange a match between Day, recognized as No. 1 lightweight contender, and the survivor of a 15 round event involving Lew Jenkins and Tippy Larkin, to be held in the Garden March 8.

Booker Beckwith, Golden Gloves graduate, will be unable to appear in a scheduled match in White City Friday because of a hand injury. The card is headed by an eight round rematch between Gene Spencer, South Chicago lightweight, and Phil Saeli of the northwest side.

FENSKE TO RACE 1,000 YARDS IN NEWARK TONIGHT

Newark, N. J., Feb. 18 (AP).—Five meet records appeared in danger today as the nation's track spotlight swung toward Newark armory and tomorrow night's 13th annual Seton Hall college games.

Chuck Fenske of Wisconsin, five time conqueror of Glenn Cunningham, was favored in the 1,000 yard specialty, but Sanford Goldberg of New York's Millrose A. A., was touted as a possible winner because of his record breaking 2:14.8 in clinching the Metropolitan senior 1,000 yard crown.

In addition to Fenske and Goldberg, the field includes Cunningham, Gene Venzke of the New York A. C., and Lou Burns, former Manhattan college star now running for the 69th Regiment A. A. of New York.

LAWNDALE FIVE CAPTURES FIFTH IN ROW, 50 TO 46

Lawndale lodge scored its fifth consecutive victory in the B'nai B'rith Lodge basketball league by defeating South Side, 50 to 46, yesterday in the Boys' Brotherhood Republic gymnasium. Salomon was handed its first setback in five games when Cardozo triumphed, 48 to 38. In other games, Lake View, defending champion, won from Albany Park, 35 to 23, and Sachar trimmed Austin, 50 to 14.

MOON MULLINS — A COMING OUT PARTY

Turfmen See Another Sande in Flinchum

Miami, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP).—The rest of the jockeys at Hialeah Park are shouting "Stop him! Stop him!"—but how can they stop him when none of them can even get close enough to catch him! The reference is to Roy [Jack] Flinchum, 1940 riding sensation.

Since Jan. 1 the diminutive Miamisburg, O., apprentice has ridden 35 winners and at his present rate may overhaul Don Meade's 1939 record of 256.

Even the seasoned and hard riding Eddie Arcaro can't seem to catch up with Flinchum in the spirited rivalry between the two. So far, Arcaro is trailing by three.

May Be Another Sande.

Booting in four winners in one afternoon is getting to be just a day's workout for the slender, 17 year old baby face kid, and three in one day is a breeze.

Veteran turfmen are beginning to think that young Flinchum may have the makings of another brilliant record similar to that of Earl Sande.

Flawless in his judgment of rating, Flinchum rides with an exceptionally short stirrup, which permits him to get more speed out of his mounts. That may account for his phenomenal streak.

Wright May Buy Contract.

Rumors around the paddock have it that Warren Wright, owner of Calumet farm, is dickering for purchase of Flinchum's contract, now held by the boy's father. He was leased to the Byrum brothers, who recently transferred their interest, which expires April 1, to the Lewin stable.

Altho an apprentice on the race track, Jackie actually has been riding since he was 11 years old—riding ponies at county fairs back in Ohio. His father has been in the horse business for years, campaigning a stable of platers in the smaller circuits.

Flinchum rode his first official winner—Odessa Beau—at Oaklawn Park, Ark., last March 14. During 1939 he rode 127 horses into first place, 108 in second, and 97 in third.

KILBOURN PARK TAKES LIFT LEAD 'AS 4 MARKS FALL

Kilbourn Park took the lead with 8 points as four records were broken and two tied in the opening half of the Chicago park district novice weight lifting meet in Lake Shore park yesterday. Ogden park, defending titleholder; Tuley, and Simons park each scored 5 points to tie for second place. The championships will be decided next Sunday at Lake Shore.

Aldo Gasparucci of Kilbourn cracked two marks in winning the 135 pound crown. He snatched 155 pounds, 10 over the old mark, and totaled 503 pounds in all three events, 25 pounds over the old standard.

Bob Holfels, Simons' park, tied the 148 pound class total record of 550, and broke this mark by 5 pounds on a fourth attempt. Mitchell Laczewski of Tuley park broke the clean and jerk mark while winning the 126 pound championship with a record tying total of 440 pounds. He hoisted 175 pounds in this event, 10 over last year's mark.

William Shwatal of Ogden park took the 118 pound title, tying the mark of 410 pounds set by Art Kober last year.

M'QUINN CHASES, CHASES, BUT RACE WON BY DUNCAN

Ted Duncan of Chicago won the 40 lap main event auto race last night in the 124th Field Artillery armory. His time was 80 minutes and 35 seconds. Duncan, starting in second place behind Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis took the lead on the first lap and stayed in front to the end. MacQuinn drove so close that he brushed Duncan's car on the turns, but he could not catch the flying Chicagoan.

Purdue Plays at Michigan; Defends Lead

Purdue. The Boilermakers were on top of their form against Illinois Saturday night, a tremendous first period lead serving to give the winners time to rally after that lead was cut to two points. The counter thrust produced a 33 to 27 victory over the Illini.

Purdue has a return game with Illinois in Champaign, always a stiff hurdle, and Indiana goes to Lafayette March 2, two days before the finale with Illinois. Iowa and Wisconsin are Purdue's other opponents. Thus, Indiana [unless upset again], definitely has a chance to tie for the title while Illinois also has a chance principally because of the remaining game with the current leader.

Northwestern possibly has more reason to complain of its fortune despite the astounding licking administered Indiana. The Wildcats have been beaten three times but a total of three points accounts for two of these reverses. Only against Purdue in the opening game, and then only in the first half, have the Wildcats appeared to a disadvantage. Northwestern rallied that night to tie the score but then faded to lose, 40 to 29.

Shakeup Helps Wildcats.

Northwestern's play is the more remarkable because Coach Dutch Lonborg has rebuilt the starting quintet sending Ad Vance and Bob Shepard to forward, and introducing George Benson and Don Clawson to the starting lineup. Benson's four field goals were as important as the five goals Vance and Shepard scored from up in front.

Tonight, in Evanston, Northwestern has its opportunity to gain revenge for the one point defeat by Ohio State in Columbus. The Buckeyes always are vexing. Satler and Schick, a pair of tall centers, have been particularly annoying. Iowa whipped the Buckeyes by 10 points a week ago chiefly because this pair eventually accumulated maximum foul totals, but Saturday night Ohio State stopped Wisconsin, 41 to 35.

Satler scored four field goals while Ohio State was beating Northwestern 28 to 23 in the first conference game last year at home. Later the Buckeyes won by four points in Columbus. The defending champions must win tonight to stay in the race and even then they have two games coming up with Indiana, a schedule which practically precludes success.

Badgers Still Dangerous.

Illinois' disappointment at the loss to Purdue must not be reflected in tonight's performance against Wisconsin. While the Badgers have won only two games, each by two points from Chicago and Minnesota, and Claude York, excellent reserve forward, is ill, they are dangerous because they may be underrated. Illinois' record recently has ranged from a 60 to 31 victory over the Gophers, high for team scoring this season and also including the individual scoring record of 34 points by Capt. Bill Hapac, to erratic performance against Northwestern and Purdue.

Illinois rallied successfully against Northwestern's defensive play to win in the last minute by two points, but the first period handicap against Purdue stifled hopes. How much Johnny Drish, regular forward for two seasons, will be able to play for Illinois is important. Drish appeared briefly against Purdue but he was kept out of the Northwestern game a week ago because of an injured ankle.

While Iowa's three game spurt was nipped Saturday by Minnesota, the Hawkeyes, on their home floor tonight may whip Indiana. The result will hinge on the offensive play of Siegal and Evans.

PROPOSES THREE AMENDMENTS TO N. Y. RACE BILL

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 18 [Special].—Admitting the pari-mutuel bill now pending could not be passed, State Senator John J. Dunnigan, Democratic sponsor of the measure, announced today that he would introduce three amendments to the bill tomorrow.

The first, and most important, calls for the deletion of the present specific minimum capacities clause. The original provisions set up a minimum seating capacity of 25,000 and parking space for 15,000 automobiles in tracks in the metropolitan area and 7,500 seating capacity and 10,000 automobile parking space in upstate tracks.

The second amendment requires that at least 80 per cent of the persons employed by racing associations in the operation of pari-mutuel betting systems must be American citizens and residents of the state for at least one year before their employment.

The final amendment will be the continuation of the present state admission tax on race track tickets. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman has included the tax in his 1941 budget as bringing in approximately $600,000.

SILVER BUYING ASSAILED AS AID TO RED MEXICO

Inflation Nest Egg, Senator Declares.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Senator John G. Townsend [R., Del.] declared in a statement issued today that continuance of the Roosevelt administration's silver buying program could have only two possible purposes: To subsidize the communistic Cardenas régime in Mexico and to provide a nest egg for inflation spending.

Senator Townsend.

Explaining that the national debt is close to the statutory limit of 45 billion dollars, Senator Townsend said the silver purchase program would enable the government to keep spending even if congress should refuse to raise the debt limit.

Hold 1,230,000,000 Ounces.

"The daily statement of the United States treasury for Feb. 9, 1940, shows this unutilized nest egg on hand now amounts to 1,230,000,000 ounces of silver, against which, at the 'monetary value' of $1.29 plus per ounce, the treasury may issue nearly 1 billion 600 million dollars of currency overnight," Senator Townsend said. "Every ounce of foreign silver now being bought under the 1934 silver purchase act simply increases that nest egg. The program is wasteful, futile, and dangerous."

From 1934 to 1939, Senator Townsend declared, Mexico produced silver for which it received approximately $220,000,000, an average of $36,666,000 a year, from the United States. Between $80,000,000 and $100,000,000 of this amount represented an outright subsidy or gift, due to the artificial price maintained by the New Deal's silver purchase program, he said.

Mexicans Agitate on Renewal.

Townsend charged that Mexican officials participated in the agitation for continuation of the silver buying program last June, when the senate adopted his amendment to the monetary powers bill terminating foreign silver purchases. This amendment was thrown out by the administration leadership in conference with the house.

After his bill to terminate the silver program had been reported favorably by a senate banking and currency subcommittee in January, Senator Townsend said, Mexico renewed its agitation and found the Roosevelt administration sympathetic. Senator Barkley [D., Ky.], he said, has delayed action by the full committee by urging further consultation of state and treasury department officials.

Senator Townsend quoted the testimony of Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, that silver is worthless from a monetary standpoint, and that the United States might as well take sea shells as to take silver in order to promote foreign markets for its goods.

Suggests Pension for Mexico.

"Why not simply put Mexico on our pension list and make it an annual gift of so many million dollars, so that Mexico can buy goods from our exporters?" asked Senator Townsend. "I wonder whether the administration would be frank enough to introduce such a bill on good neighbor Mexico's behalf.

"Mexico's attitude is not that of a country which has been seizing American properties without prompt or adequate compensation. Its attitude is not that of a country which has been receiving from us all sorts of favors on the theory that it is a good neighbor of ours. Rather, Mexico's attitude is that of an urchin who kicks his neighbor's shins in the knowledge that said neighbor is too big and too polite to express displeasure or to withdraw favors currently being granted."

World Trade Conference Will Be Held Tomorrow

About five hundred persons from all parts of the country will meet in the Stevens hotel tomorrow for the annual Chicago World Trade conference sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Export Managers Club of Chicago. C. M. Wynne, general conference chairman, said the group would discuss import and export problems, but would emphasize Latin American trade possibilities.

WORK SHIRTS.

Does the Reliance Manufacturing company make the "Big Yank" work shirt? This company's stock is listed on the Chicago Stock exchange. Can you tell me anything about its earnings and dividends?—M. F.

Answer: The Reliance Manufacturing company [Ill.] is the nation's largest manufacturer of work shirts, which are marketed under various brands, including "Big Yank." Other products are women's and children's dresses, men's and boys' shirts, work clothes, and underwear. Most of the firm's 15 factories are in Indiana.

Having redeemed 1,350 shares of preferred stock since Sept. 1, the company now has outstanding about 11,150 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value, and 222,855 shares of $10 par common stock.

Earnings of the company last year recovered sharply from a slump in 1937 and 1938, which followed a 10 year peak in 1936. Net income in 1939 was about 8½ times that of 1938.

Net income, earnings per common share and dividends per common share in recent years follow:

	Net income.	Earned per com. shr.	Divid. per com. shr.
1935	$265,741	$0.74	$0.60
1936	966,762	4.06	2.80
1937	*151,099	*1.09	0.90
1938	54,465	*0.16	0.50
1939	464,097	1.69	0.65

*Loss.

Regular dividends are paid on the preferred stock.

FARMING EXPENSES.

I make my livelihood from farming. What expenses may I deduct for my 1939 income tax return?—A. C.

Answer: If you operated a farm for profit [not as a hobby] in 1939, you are permitted to deduct from your gross receipts any ordinary and necessary expenses incurred during the year, such as cost of seed, labor, marketing, minor repairs to farm buildings other than your home, and small tools which become useless in a year or two.

When you purchase farm equipment and machinery or construct farm buildings, you are making capital investments which are not deductible. Depreciation of these assets, however, may be treated as expense.

If you raise live stock, you may deduct the cost of feeding and handling, but not the cost of buying animals, which again are capital investments.

If, however, you operate the farm for pleasure or recreation and not for a profit motive, you cannot deduct any loss from operations, but you must report any profit.

Ocean Freight Rate Rise Hits Trade in Grain

Rising ocean freight rates for feed grains have raised a problem among farmers in exporting and importing countries alike, grain traders reported last week.

They said that European farmers who must buy feed consider current prices of American and Argentine corn excessive, and that feeding is being curtailed. United States and Argentine farmers were said to be complaining that the prices they receive are too low.

Latest reports indicate that ocean freight charges are about 50½ cents a bushel on corn transported from New York to Antwerp, and that the rate from Buenos Aires to European ports is 76 cents.

Severe Shortage Reported.

A severe shortage is reported in steamers used in the international grain trade. About 60,000 bushels of Argentine wheat was received at a Texas port last week for transhipment to Europe, and additional quantities of that grain are said to be en route to this country. This unusual movement is believed due to the fact that the combined freight rate from Argentina to American ports and thence to Europe is lower than charges for direct shipment from Argentina to Europe.

During the week American farmers liquidated more than a million bushels of cash wheat they had pledged as security for government loans.

CODE OF ETHICS IS PROPOSED FOR AUTO INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 (AP).—Setting back speedometers of used cars and exaggerating the mileage an automobile will travel on a gallon of gas would be outlawed under a proposed code of ethics for the automobile industry made public today by the federal trade commission.

The commission emphasized that the rules—there are 30 in the suggested list—had not been approved, but would be submitted for discussion to representatives of the industry at a public hearing in Washington March 20.

The industry itself, the commission said, asked for the rules which are designed to protect the purchasing public and eliminate unfair methods of competition.

FEDERAL LEVY ON INDIVIDUAL INCOMES RISES

Tax on Aggregate 6.06 Per Cent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The federal government took more than 6 per cent of the individual net incomes reported for 1938 in the form of income taxes, according to figures released today by the treasury. This levy was higher than in 1937.

Altho the normal tax rate on individual incomes is 4 per cent, the imposition of surtaxes boosted the national total of income taxes to 6.06 per cent of the aggregate net income reported for 1938. On 1937 incomes the government's "take" had amounted to 5.42 per cent, or 1 billion 142 million dollars of the aggregate net income of 21 billion 88 millions reported for that year.

This study of preliminary statistics, of course, does not include corporation income taxes, nor the scores of other federal taxes, visible and invisible, paid out of 1938 incomes.

Report 764 Millions Due.

The treasury figures showed that more than 764 million dollars were due in income taxes on the net income of 12 billion, 619 million dollars reported for 1938 in 2,995,034 taxable returns. There were 3,061,686 nontaxable returns, in which the aggregate net income was 6 billion 45 million dollars.

These figures covered only returns filed between January and June of last year. Other statistics show that actual income taxes collected from individuals in 1939, on 1938 incomes, amounted to 873 million dollars, instead of the 764 millions reported due in this survey.

Forty-eight net incomes of individuals were $1,000,000 or more in 1938. The aggregate net income for these amounted to 95 million dollars, and the federal tax amounted to 42 million dollars, or nearly 44 per cent of the income. The tax ran as high as 53 per cent on 100 incomes between $500,000 and $1,000,000 reported for 1938, or 36 millions in taxes out of the 69 millions in net income reported for this group.

Other Income Collections.

There were seven fiduciary returns of net incomes of $1,000,000 or more. The aggregate net income for these was more than 12 millions, of which the government took nearly 5 millions in income taxes, or at a rate of 37 per cent. The total number of taxable fiduciary income tax returns for estate and trusts was 51,846, which had a net income of 233 millions and a tax liability of 40 millions, or 17 per cent.

In addition to taxes on net incomes there were 99,136 returns which showed net losses of 349 million dollars, and 24 of these had to pay taxes of $549,000 on losses under the tax on long term capital gains or losses.

Colombia to Pay 3 Per Cent on 6 PerCent External Loan

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—The republic of Colombia today announced it would pay interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum in United States currency on the coupon matured Jan. 1 on the 6 per cent external fund bonds due Jan. 1, 1961, and Oct. 1, 1961. The republic will also set aside $400,000 for purchase this year of these issues for retirement, the announcement said.

Metropolitan Life Assets Rise Above Five Billions

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Metropolitan Life Insurance company today reported its assets at the end of 1939 totaled $5,141,986,181, compared with $4,942,900,417 at the end of 1938. Life insurance in force aggregated $23,193,749,152, largest in the company's history.

Britain Seizes Holdings of 60 American Stocks for War Cash

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—Britain's drive for dollars to pay her war bills today brought a treasury order requiring British owners of 60 selected American securities to turn them over to the Bank of England at current prices.

The order will make the bank owner of a huge block of American stocks. Total value of the securities was not disclosed, altho Britons were required at the beginning of war to register their foreign holdings.

[It was estimated just before the war that British investments in the United States totaled about one billion dollars at the then prevailing rate of exchange.]

Wishes Orderly Marketing.

The treasury order said its purpose was "to ensure that realization of securities in American markets shall be orderly and that the total volume of sales from the United Kingdom . . . should continue at about the average volume of recent months." Further orders "may be made from time to time" requiring the transfer of other securities, it was said.

The 60 listed today were said to be only a small proportion of all the securities available from British holders. The prices were set at sterling equivalents, at the current official exchange rate, of current dollar prices.

Typical prices were Allied Chemical and Dye common, $175.48; du Pont de Nemours common, $182.92, and Swift & Co. common, $22.82.

A statement from a reliable source said that in no case do the securities form a large proportion of the total outstanding for any one concern.

An authoritative account of the background of the treasury move declared "it is believed that recent uncertainty has been worse for the United States market than knowledge that the British treasury has a definite long range plan."

Complain of Guarded Figures.

New York, Feb. 18 [Special].—Fear of heavy liquidation of British-owned American securities has plagued the stock market since the war began in September. The United States treasury and the Securities and Exchange commission keep the score on foreign selling of American securities, but the general complaint in stock trading circles is that it is kept too well.

The figures are not made public until months later, when they are of little value for the current guidance of traders. For example, the figures on the heavy foreign selling here in October were not disclosed until the end of last month.

In the main, the selling of American securities by British holders has been orderly, thus far.

NAME 15 PLANTS AS WINNERS IN SAFETY CONTEST

Fifteen companies were declared the winners in the 22d semiannual interplant accident prevention contest sponsored by the Greater Chicago Safety council, J. B. Gibson, chairman of the council's board of directors, announced yesterday. These companies worked more than 10,000,000 man hours with only 37 accidents. Forty-one plants had no lost time accidents and the remainder had 1,241 accidents.

Awards will be made to the winners at the 18th annual Midwest Safety contest at the Hotel Sherman on May 2.

Winners were Bell & Howell, Lever Brothers, Bastian Blessing, Link-Belt [Caldwell-Moore plant], Kester Solder, Wisconsin Steel works of International Harvester, Chicago Bridge and Iron, United Screw and Bolt, Mills Novelty, Chicago Surface lines [west shops], National Biscuit [Washington boulevard plant], Churchill Cabinet, Eagle-Picher Lead, Miller & Hart, and Allied Steel Castings.

STEEL OUTPUT STILL EXCEEDS NEW BUSINESS

Altho production is receding less rapidly, mills are still making steel faster than new business is being received, the magazine Steel said yesterday in a review of the industry. This indicates further adjustment will be made to balance supply and demand, the publication said.

The magazine placed the national operating rate at 69 per cent of theoretical ingot capacity, a decline of two points for the week. The rate was 55 per cent a year ago.

Chicago production declined six points to 68.5 per cent of capacity.

Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., Inc., to Observe 50th Birthday

Its 50th anniversary will be observed today by Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., Inc., with Chicago offices at 105 West Adams street. Arnold G. Stifel, president, and Louis C. Nicolaus, sons of the founders, head the company which has its headquarters in St. Louis. The company engages in underwriting and syndicating activities in industrial and public utility bonds and stocks and in municipal underwriting. Joseph F. Murphy, vice president, is in charge of the Chicago office.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITIES AND RETAIL TRADE DIP, BUT RUN AHEAD OF '39

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 (AP).—The federal reserve board reported today that industrial activity and retail trade declined in January and early February, but were well ahead of the corresponding period in 1939. These trends were reported:

The seasonally adjusted index of industrial production declined eight points to 120 in January.

Factory employment and pay rolls dropped more than seasonally.

Department, variety store, and mail order sales declined more than seasonally from the December peak.

Freight car loadings showed a seasonal downswing.

Exports maintained the high level of December.

Prices of copper, lead, silk, steel scrap, wool textile yarns, and some other basic commodities declined. There was little change in foodstuffs.

CHICAGO TRADE EASES.

Trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday that business in Chicago showed signs of a decline last week. Altho retail activity was ahead of national averages, the usual early Lenten drop in general business was apparent, they said.

RAILS DISCLOSE LARGE GAIN IN EXPORT TRAFFIC

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 (AP).—The Association of American Railroads reported tonight export traffic thru Atlantic and gulf ports was much larger last month than in January, 1939.

The number of tons of export freight lightered at the port of New York was 91 per cent above a year ago. At other Atlantic and gulf ports total exports, except grain, were 42 per cent larger than a year ago.

The association reported that "due to the frozen condition of the St. Lawrence river," a large volume of Canadian wheat was being moved thru Portland, Me.; New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Norfolk. In Philadelphia the increase was 250 per cent, and at Baltimore 112 per cent. The volume of export traffic other than grain increased 30 per cent at Philadelphia and 118 per cent at Baltimore.

PROFITS OF TWO LARGE CHICAGO COMPANIES RISE

Western Electric Net Above 16 Million.

The Western Electric company and Fairbanks, Morse & Co. yesterday reported large gains in 1939 profits.

Clarence G. Stoll.

Net earnings of Western Electric, manufacturing subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, were $16,476,000, against $5,734,000 in 1938, Clarence G. Stoll, president, announced. After payment of $12,600,000 in dividends and $3,026,000 in charges and reserves, $850,000 was added to surplus, which amounted to $18,204,000 on Dec. 31.

Sales Total Rises.

Sales in 1939 totaled $186,860,000, compared with $175,163,000 in 1938. Materials purchased by the company in the manufacture of telephones, sound equipment, and many other products totaled $62,000,000. Purchases were made in more than 1,300 cities and towns in all the 48 states and from more than 10,000 sources of supply.

The company expended $3,559,000 for plant replacements, improvements, and additions, and $5,889,000 of obsolete, excess, and worn-out plant was retired.

Federal, state, and local taxes totaled $8,438,000, an increase of $2,166,000 over 1938. Taxes consumed 34 per cent of the company's earnings.

Stoll said that the company continued its efforts to stabilize employment, with much being done "in controlling operations to lessen the severity of fluctuations in the business and the consequent effect on the working force." Payments under the company's plan for pension, disability, and death benefits totaled $2,189,000 in 8,639 cases.

Fairbanks, Morse Gains.

The largest profit which Fairbanks, Morse & Co. has had in any year since 1926 was reported by Robert H. Morse, president and general manager.

Earnings increased more than 300 per cent over the 1938 figure, totaling $2,469,884, against $558,539, Morse's statement showed. Per share earnings on the common stock in the respective years were $4.12 and 83 cents. In 1926 profit was $2,740,386, or $6.03 a common share.

Commenting on the increased profit, Morse asserted the showing was "significant in the light of tax payments for 1939, which amounted to $1,167,633, or $1.95 a share, exclusive of sales taxes."

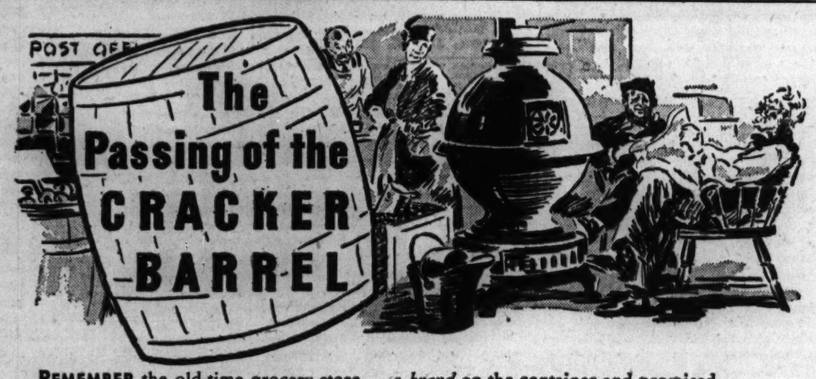
ST. LOUIS CHICAGO



REMEMBER the old-time grocery store with its cracker barrel, flour bin, big crock of butter and crate of vegetables?

In their place today we find the packaged goods of the modern grocery store . . . and the modern buyer knows more about the often invisible contents of those packages than she knew about the foods which were openly displayed.

Why? Because certain manufacturers specialized and set absolute standards of quality on the goods they sold. They put a brand on the container and promised that no inferior goods would ever bear that brand. And they kept that promise.

For fifty-five years, Alexander & Company has been doing that same thing for buyers of insurance. Our name has become a brand, because we, too, have made and kept the promise to use that name on only one quality of insurance . . . the best.

Take a tip from "America's Purchasing Agent," the housewife. Buy by brand. Ours has always stood for quality insurance.

WHAT DO YOU WANT TO KNOW? — when considering a new business connection or purchase your first one? First—will it be constructive, permanent, and remunerative? Second—is there opportunity for advancement? Third—will I be happy in the work?
The answer to all of these questions can be found in a connection with us. This is largely a woman's organization. Ninety-five per cent of our people are women. Ninety-five per cent of our executives are women. Branch offices—four in all—are run entirely by women. There are real opportunities here for the unusual woman. Many of our people made better than $4,000 last year and many more $3,000 to $3,500. We would like to tell you all about this intensely interesting opportunity. If you are between 28 and 48 years of age, are interested in things cultural and especially in the development of young children, come in and see Mrs. Wales. If out of town, write her. That takes real stamina, good education, and physical well being. Openings right now in our Educational Sales Dept. for home and for those who can leave the city. Guarantee while training, drawing account if needed, and liberal commission and bonuses. See Mrs. Hazel D. Wales at 360 N. Michigan-av., Suite 1004.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE.
You Can Still Make 1940
